MOVE BY WARRINER REVIVES PEACE HOPE IN COAL INDUSTRY

MINERS' ANSWER TO DECIDE

Workers' Chief Expected to Acknowledge Letter in Similar Vein.

OPERATORS' AIMS STATED

Must Reduce Costs, but Committee Is Not Bound by Instructions, Coal Man Writes.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 6.—The first ray of hope for a resumption of the anthracite wage parley appeared today in a letter from Samuel D. Warriner, President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company and Chairman of the Anthracite Operators' Conference, to John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America. The letter, in reply to Mr. Lewis's letter of last Tuesday which precipitated the break-up of the conference, ended with these words:

"In spite of the terms of your letter and the breaking off of negotiations, I am hopeful that means will be found to compose the differences between us and avoid a suspension of production. Every consideration demands that this be done."

The conciliatory reply to Mr. Lewis's communication was held to be extremely significant. The contents of the letter impelled State and Federal mediators to change their plans for leaving Atlantic City and to remain here over the week-end. If Mr. Lewis's reply to Mr. Warriner tomorrow is as conciliatory, and it is said that it will be, it is believed here that the basis of a further interchange of communications will have been laid and that the result will be a resumption of wage negotiations.

The fragile thread of an exchange of courtesies, mild in tone and conciliatory in character, appears to bear the only hope at present that steps may be taken to avert a strike of 155,000 mine workers on Sept. 1. So long as the disputants remain in communication with each other the hope of another series of joint negotiations will remain alive.

Mr. Warriner's Letter.

Mr. Warriner's reply to Mr. Lewis was mailed from Philadelphia and was released for publication at the operators' headquarters in the Hotel Traymore. It read:

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 6, 1925.

Mr. John L. Lewis, President, United Mine Workers of America, Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City, N. J.

My Dear Mr. Lewis.—Your letter of Aug. 4, was, I understand, read by you to the operators' Negotiating Committee and, it would seem, might better have been addressed to Major Inglis, the Chairman. I again assure you that this committee has full power.

It is, of course, untrue that the operators' Negotiating Committee is under instructions to continue to refuse any concessions regardless of the logic or merit of any of the mine workers' wage demands. The operators' committee is no more bound by instructions than your committee is bound by the demands adopted by the Scranton convention.

You have now taken the grave responsibility of abruptly terminating the negotiations because of our opposition to your demands as adopted by the Scranton convention. In short, you take the position that "negotiation" means instant agreement with your demands.

Would Reduce Costs.

It is true, as you say, that Major Inglis and I have made statements to the effect that production costs should be reduced. You are quite mistaken in your statement that we "desire to reduce wages in order to increase profit margins." We desire to reduce production costs—which are excessive—in order to conform prices to market requirements, to make our product more attractive to the consumer and so to maintain production and keep labor employed.

You state that the operators have vetoed "every construction" that the mine workers have made. You instance your suggestions in regard to freight rates, officials' salary, &c., as examples of your constructive suggestions. Our representatives insisted upon what is the obvious fact—that we have nothing to do with freight rates and that officers' salaries, legal expenses, &c., are not charged to the labor cost of producing anthracite.

There is only one really important matter to which I must refer, and that is your statement that you possess knowledge of the "anthracite operators' well known policy of keeping close to an arbitrator." This is alleged as your reason for refusing arbitration. If it means anything, it is an allegation that the operators have corrupted or would corrupt arbitrators and that all arbitrators are subject to corruption. I cannot believe you seriously make such an accusation. It condemns itself.

On this false premise you attack not merely a suggestion applying to this case. You attack a principle that is universally approved by right-think-

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans, who after forty years of exile has been called back to France by his party following their receipt of a moving letter from him, has left England for Belgium to be nearer France in case the authorities allow his return.

It is declared that the Duke, who once was adjudged insane and locked up in an English country house, is now in the best of health, mentally and physically. He recently returned from a big game expedition in Africa.

COMMONS GRANTS $50,000,000 TO MINES

PREMIER PICTURES DANGERS

LONDON, Aug. 6.—By the overwhelming majority of 351 to 18 the Government obtained tonight a vote of £10,000,000 in the House of Commons for the coal mining industry. The result was greeted with a shout of laughter, for the House had been listening for hours to a debate which had turned largely on new aspects of the events of the last few days. The Government had been charged with acting in fear and Lloyd George had used the term "Council of action" in referring to the trade union congress decision to support the miners.

The House was unusually crowded as the Prime Minister rose to move the credit. Every seat was taken on the floor and many occupied side galleries. The members were in subdued mood, and Mr. Baldwin himself showed how deeply he felt the gravity of the occasion. Rising amid a brief, almost perfunctory, cheer he began to set forth the Government's case in words carefully chosen not to irritate the packed benches of Labor opposite and in a manner studiously restrained.

He began with a historical summary. He had, he said, to explain to many new members how it was that this particular industry had so close a connection with the Government. He went quietly through its history since the great strike of 1912. The House listened in absolute quiet. Not a cheer was raised till he began to detail recent negotiations. Then a few defiant cries came from his opponents as Mr. Baldwin described how the owners' proposals for fresh wage scales were refused.

Baldwin States the Defense.

Then the Premier passed to his defense. Could the Government have intervened before? Absolutely not, he declared. If it had intervened and failed, that failure would have been ascribed to interference of the Government with two disputants on the verge of agreement after long months of negotiations.

"I am convinced," he declared, "from what I saw during the conferences that at no period could Government interference have saved us from coming to the situation as it stood last Thursday night."

Mr. Baldwin said the Government then had only two alternatives—"to have a stoppage or find a way out. There was no third alternative.

"To consent to the strike on the ground that it must come sooner or later was a counsel of despair," he added. "It may be there will be trouble, but it is the duty of statesmanship to try to avoid it."

Then Mr. Baldwin said something which stirred deeply the curiously quiet House of 500 members, who had been sitting motionless, drinking in every word he said, hardly uttering a cheer. They became still more intent as Mr. Baldwin, in giving reasons for intervening, said:

"I have heard in the last few days from men whose judgment I respect. They feel that in some industries there is the slightest flicker of improvement. How detected I don't know, except by that curious sense of coming events that trained business men have. But with industry in that state, could a Govern-

COLER INVESTIGATES BROWNING ADOPTION; TELLS OF PROTESTS

ALL PROPER, SAYS REALTOR

GIRL IS UPSET BY TURMOIL

Indignantly Gives Lie to Story of a Plumber's Helper That He Was Engaged to Her.

Inquiry and possible official action in connection with the adoption of Mary Spas of Astoria, L. I., by Edward W. Browning, a wealthy real estate operator of this city, will be started today at the instigation of Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare. Mr. Coler will confer with District Attorney Newcombe of Queens this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the details of the adoption, which the Commissioner denounced yesterday as a "highly unmoral transaction."

Mr. Browning, who held open house yesterday afternoon at his office, 153 West Seventy-second Street, while a crowd of more than a hundred men, women and children waited outside to catch a glimpse of his newly adopted daughter, denied that there was any "merchandising transaction" in his adoption and declared that "everything was as straight as a string."

He frankly admitetd having given a check for $500 to each of Mary's parents after the formal adoption as a "surprise present" and to express his good-will toward them.

When informed of the statements of Commissioner Coler and the probability of an official inquiry, he said: "It's all right for public officials to do their duty, but if they would put their hands in their own pockets instead of criticising me and aid Mary's sister who is ill out in Colorado, they would be doing something worth while. My action only sprang from kindness."

Girl Is on the Verge of Tears.

Mary, the girl in the case, whose naturally rosy cheeks and golden-brown curls call forth the admiration of every one who sees her, was made very unhappy yesterday by the unexpected turn of affairs. Several times she was on the verge of tears. And once she said:

"I would rather be the poorest girl in New York now than go through all this. Yes, if I had known this was going to happen, I would have starved to death before I would have offered myself for adoption."

It was Commissioner Coler who threw the first bombshell of this modern fairy story into the path of Cinderella's coach, which happens in this instance to be a Rolls Royce, when he announced at his office in the Municipal Building that he was determined to follow this case through.

"Hundreds of letters of protest and telephone calls have come to my office," he said, "from people protesting against the action of Mr. Browning. Feeling is running high among those who have communicated with me and charge it to be an unmoral transaction. And I consider it a highly unmoral transaction myself and the meanest piece of publicity I have ever known.

"In the Department of Public Welfare we do not allow a dependent child to be adopted by a divorcee or a bachelor. This is one of our strictest rules. I am now investigating a case of a woman in Brooklyn who is charged with having sold her baby. There is a law against that."

Mr. Browning obtained a divorce decree in Paris in May, 1924, from Mrs. Nellie Adele Browning, whom he married in April, 1915, and from whom he had been separated several years before their divorce.

The Commissioner expressed surprise that the adoption papers had been passed so quickly in the Queens County Court. He said he had no criticism to make of the Surrogate of that county, but thought that he had been misinformed of the circumstances of the case.

Not Concerned About Her Age.

He said further that he was not at all concerned with whether the girl was 16, as she and her foster father contend, or 21, as her neighbors in Astoria say she is, but interested only in the public welfare angle of the situation.

"The transaction was wholly demoral-

Mayor Hylan's political "lectures," broadcast over WNYC, the municipal radio, shall not be taboo in the Republican Captains' Club of the Twentieth Assembly District of Brooklyn, at 1,382 Bushwick Avenue, the Mayor's own district.

The club, it was learned yesterday, held a meeting Wednesday night to determine whether one person to whom the "lectures" were distasteful could tune out the Mayor's words. Such an incident, it was said, occurred the other night, and several of the club's members protested, asserting they wanted to hear "both sides of the argument." Alexander J. MacGregor, President of the club, it was said, announced at the conclusion of the meeting he would instruct the Chairman of the House Committee to see that no one person tuned out anything the Mayor said if a majority of the others present wanted to hear it.

SCOTT'S LIFE SAVED BY INSANITY VERDICT

HAD PERSECUTION DELUSION

Prisoner Is Silent at End of the Hearing—Will Go to Chester Asylum.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Russell T. Scott, three times held back from the gallows by temporary stays, was tonight finally saved from death for the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk, when a jury in Judge Joseph B. David's court declared him insane.

Instead of facing the death watch once again, Scott will be sent to the Chester Asylum, Judge David said. Tonight's verdict, which came after four days of testimony and wrangling, in which the State maintained Scott was not insane, was possible through the last stay obtained for Scott at 2 o'clock on the morning of July 24, four hours before the scheduled hanging.

Only once before in the history of Cook County were such proceedings successful when invoked to save the life of a condemned murdered. "Gene" Geary, notorious gangster, was thus saved and his case set a precedent, which was followed today.

The verdict was reached after nearly four hours of sharp talk among the jurors, following a day of spirited argument between the lawyers.

Scott Silent on Verdict.

Scott had nothing to say when the jury's findings were read. William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, his counsel, who a month ago obtained a verdict of not guilty for William Darling Shepherd, were Scott's lawyers in this proceeding and all they had to say was that Scott had been clearly proved insane and any other verdict would have been a tragedy.

It was principally because of the three nerve-wracking experiences of closeness to death that Scott now faces a future of life in an asylum, the jury members said. They accepted the argument of Messrs. Stewart and O'Brien, attorneys, that such occurrences would shatter the reason of even a strong man, and Scott was not strong.

Paranoia was the form of insanity that the two attorneys said Scott had. Drs. Harold Hulbert and James Whitney Hall, experts, said they had examined Scott and he had delusions of persecution which amounted to insanity.

Under the provisions of the insanity verdict, Scott is saved from the gallows only for so long as he remains insane. Should he at any future time be adjudged sane the sentence of death will again be in full force and he may be executed without further trial or hearing of any kind.

Nine lay witnesses, all of them officials of the county jail, including Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman, testified that Scott seemed sane and normal to them. Five physicians employed by the State said the same thing. The only ones saying the contrary were five alienists in the pay of Scott's friends.

Scott's Career a Varied One.

Scott was once promoter of the Detroit-Windsor bridge, and millionaire before he was 30 years old. A married man and father of three children, he fled his home in Detroit in 1923, when a young woman sued him for breach of promise. Losing his fortune, he turned bootlegger and then bandit and was convicted in Chicago on Dec. 12, 1924, of the murder of Joseph Maurer, a 17-year-old drug clerk, in a holdup in which he and his brother, Robert Scott, were accused of taking part.

Three times prior to the verdict of insanity Scott was saved from hanging by appeals to Governor Small and to the courts in which his lawyers, his wife, his father and hundreds of clubwomen in the United States and Canada joined and for which the public subscribed funds.

Twice his case has been before the Supreme Court for a writ of error because Scott's attorneys claimed the evidence showed Robert Scott killed Maurer, but each time the Supreme Court affirmed the jury's verdict. Twice Scott was reprieved by Governor

MOTHER OF 4 KILLED AS POLICE BATTLE THUGS AT HER DOOR

DETECTIVE SHOT, IS DYING

ROBBER KILLED IN HARLEM

Four Men Force 70 Gamblers to Disrobe—One Escapes in Underwear and Gives Alarm.

Taking one step outside of her ground-floor apartment at 433 West Thirty-fourth Street at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Mary Connelly fell, wounded by a bullet fired in a police battle with a bandit.

Her scream as she fell brought to the door her four small children, who were playing inside the apartment. The man at whom the police were shooting dodged into an adjoining area way and into a basement, where he was later caught. The woman was taken across the street to the French Hospital. There she died in a few minutes, the bullet having lodged under her heart.

Just before Mrs. Connelly was killed, practically in her own doorway, Detective Richard E. Heneberry of the Truck Squad was struck by a bullet, which cut an artery near his heart. Blood transfusions were resorted to at Roosevelt Hospital last night, but his death was expected momentarily.

The shooting started when Detective Heneberry in a police runabout stopped a stolen sedan in which four youths, one 18 years old and none above 22, were on their way to commit a hold-up.

"Follow that car," he said to Patrolman Thomas Maroney, who was at the wheel of the police automobile. Maroney turned west into Thirty-fourth Street behind the sedan. A closer look convinced Heneberry that something was wrong. The four young fellows did not look natural in a sedan.

"Stick 'em up against the curb," he ordered. Maroney cut in ahead of the sedan and Heneberry shouted for it to stop. The sedan ran against the curb and stopped. Both doors opened. Two youths came out on one side and two on the other. All four opened fire and ran. Heneberry and Maroney both fired in return. Then Heneberry fell wounded. The shooting brought policemen running from all directions.

All four of the young bandits had darted into doorways on the north side of Thirty-fourth Street near the place where they had abandoned their car.

Found Door Locked.

One of them, in bell-mouthed trousers and blue shirt, dashed to one door, tried it, found it locked and then ran into a passage to the rear of 433 West Thirty-fourth Street, in front of which he and his companions had left the car. His hesitation delayed him until four policemen were almost on his heels. The fugitive was near the rear and the four policemen were entering the front of the passage when Mrs. Connelly stepped out of her apartment and was shot.

The exact manner in which she was shot was uncertain because of the excitement at the moment and the confused stories of what had happened. The first account was that the fugitive seized her, swung her around, and used her as a shield, and that one of the policemen shot her. According to Policeman Joseph Jockel, one of the four in the battle, the youth did use Mrs. Connelly as a shield and also shot her. Jockel's own revolver was undischarged, but his companions did some of the shooting. The other three policemen were Werner of Traffic A, Lawlor of Traffic B and Melbourne of the West Forty-seventh Street station.

Whether the woman stepped outside on some ordinary errand or whether she had heard the shooting and wanted to see what the excitement was about could not be ascertained.

The four children, who were all a short distance from their mother when she was shot, were Helen, 11 years old; Charles, 8; Walter, 6, and Basil, eight months old. Mrs. Connelly was 35 years old, and the wife of Charles M. Connelly, formerly a baseball player in Philadelphia.

Shenandoah to Be a War Craft With 10 Guns; Treaty Makes the Los Angeles Ship of Peace

NAVAL AIR STATION, LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 6.—The status of the two giant navy dirigibles, Shenandoah and Los Angeles, is determined in orders received here today from the Bureau of Aeronautics in Washington.

The Shenandoah, some time within the next two weeks, is to be equipped with ten machine guns with which to repel possible enemy airplane invasion. The Los Angeles, by terms of the Versailles Treaty, is strictly a ship of peace and is to be used solely for commercial air transportation development.

If the ten machine guns arrive before Tuesday, the Shenandoah will remain in the hangar to have them mounted, two on the observation platform at the top of its frame work, two in the after-car, two in the forward control cabin and one in each of the four power gondolas. All will be of the standard 30-calibre type, although the observation platform atop the bag is large enough for the mounting of three-inch guns.

Should the guns fail to arrive by Tuesday and the weather be favorable, the Shenandoah will leave for a point off the Virginia coast, far out at sea, where the airship is to engage in important manoeuvres with the mastship Patoka. The tests are to prove that by re-fueling from a mobile base, such as the Patoka, the dirigible can make its cruising radius practically unlimited. If the tests are successful, they will mak the first time in history that a dirigible has taken on fuel from a base in the open sea. Both the Shenandoah and the Los Angeles have taken on fuel from the Patoka while the mastship was in harbor.

During the tests the Shenandoah also will demonstrate how it can conserve its fuel supply by being towed on the mast of the Patoka.

Lieut. Commander Zachary Lansdowne admitted this afternoon that the orders for the mounting of the mahine guns had been received from Washington. He was not certain as to when the guns would arrive.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 6.—The Rotary Club here will file a protest with the War Department in Washington against the plan to transfer the base of the navy dirigibles Shenandoah and Los Angeles from Lakehurst, N. J., to California.

WALKER FOR MAYOR ON TAMMANY TICKET, BERRY AND M'KEE HIS RUNNING MATES; HYLAN TO TAKE FIGHT 'TO WIGWAM DOORS'

Tammany Chief Declares Anti-Hylan Ticket Will Have the Confidence of the Public

Following the meeting of the Tammany Executive Committee at which the designation of Senator Walker and his running mates on the anti-Hylan primary ticket was decided upon, Tammany Leader George W. Olvany gave out the following statement:

> The representatives of the Democratic voters of New York County, in the firm belief that residents of the city of every shade of political opinion are keenly desirous of harmony and honest intelligent direction in the administration of public affairs, felt that it was their duty to present to the enrolled voters of the party and to the electorate generally, men who will have the confidence of the whole community.
> In presenting the names agreed upon this afternoon we feel that we are offering for the three most important offices in the city government men who have served the public faithfully and efficiently in legislative, executive and judicial life and who are entitled to promotion in the public service.
>
> We know that we have chosen three genuine representatives, progressive Democrats who will be responsible not to any single individual, but to the whole electorate, and who have capacity to handle and dispose of the city's business. They have all had years of public service. They know New York and its needs, its troubles, its hopes, its fears, its greatness and its shortcomings.
>
> The decision was arrived at only after the most painstaking consideration of all the elements involved.

MISS EDERLE STARTS GREAT SWIM TONIGHT

CONTEST ONE OF STAMINA

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 6 (AP).—A combined attack upon the turbulent waters of the English Channel will be made tomorrow night when woman champions from North and South America, Gertrude Ederle of New York and Lillian Harrison of Buenos Aires, start stroking from Cape Griz-Nez for the English shore at Dover, weather conditions permitting.

Today Miss Ederle, who has been training in the Channel waters for longer than a month, took a final workout accompanied by Miss Janner, member of the English Swimming team at the 1924 Olympic Games in Paris, and those who watched the two women slipping through the water off Griz-Nez were amazed at the American girl's speed and stamina.

Miss Ederle has made a tremendous impression upon all of the Channel swimming experts who have watched the progress of her training here and the opinion is expressed that if it is possible for a woman to swim the Channel, the feat probably will be accomplished by the New York girl within the next forty-eight hours. Weather conditions have been fairly good on the Channel during the last few days and tonight were gradually improving.

Miss Harrison's Fourth Attempt.

Miss Harrison's fourth attempt to swim the Channel has added interest to Miss Ederle's swim and the Anglo-Argentine girl's friends are hopeful that tomorrow's swim will terminate in a triumphant finish for her trials during the last two years.

Miss Ederle plans to start her swim twenty minutes before Miss Harrison enters the water, but Miss Harrison tonight said she hoped to reach Dover before her American rival. The swim will not be in the nature of a race, but more of a contest against tides and currents and a test of stamina in the cold and choppy channel waters.

Miss Ederle's advisers will hold a council of war tomorrow and after a study of all conditions will finally decide whether the start is to be made. Channel weather conditions are so uncertain as to render it impossible to decide whether conditions are favorable until the last moment. Jabez Wolfe, Miss Ederle's trainer, is confident that the American champion will be the first woman to swim the channel, while T. W. Burgess, Miss Harrison's trainer, is equally confident of her chances.

The present arrangements call for Miss Ederle to come to Boulogne after

POLICE OFFICIALS ACCUSED

Mayor Quigley Conspicuous in Democratic Convention Here—Fought the Klan.

BOSTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea and forty-three others were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury today on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. The object of the conspiracy, the indictments state, was "to encourage the illegal sale, manufatcure, transportation and importing of intoxicating liquor." The indictments resulted from Grand Jury investigation of an alleged "rum trust" in Chelsea.

The Mayor's brother, Thomas Quigley, a Police Inspector; Police Lieutenant John M. Bartley and Police Sergeants Walter A. Barden and Edward W. Isbister, as well as several patrolmen, are among others indicted. Included in the list are eight members of the Chelsea "Bootleggers' Union," so-called. All but three are residents of Chelsea, the exceptions being August Santini, New York; Edwina Forschner, Medford, and Michael Kinsley, Everitt.

The Grand Jury investigation was prompted by complaints of citizens and by statements made by Daniel J. Murphy of Chelsea, who made charges against Mayor Quigley and others when arraigned before the United States Commissioner in connection with a liquor case. United States Attorney Harold P. Williams appointed Elihu D. Stone an assistant in the investigation. It was said today that Stone had received several threats while the work was in progress.

Charge Ring Got "Spoils."

Witnesses called before the Grand Jury said that sea-going vessels had been docked at Chelsea and unloaded liquor cargoes under police protection, while liquor was carried through the streets under police guard. It was charged that the police raided independent dealers and turned over the spoils to the "ring."

Plants for manufacturing liquor were protected, witnesses said, and barrooms and night clubs were encouraged, in order to create a market for liquor. It was said that weekly payments were made to several "bagmen," who spent their time collecting money for the officials granting protection to liquor dealers.

The manufacturers, transporters, wholesalers, retailers, importers, bootleggers and alleged protective agents were thoroughly organized in separate groups under the general machine. Prices, wholesale and retail, quantity and quality of the liquors were fixed by the ring.

Percy Friedman of Chelsea, now serving a sentence of a year and a half in State prison for automobile thievery, testified for a day and a half before the Grand Jury, explaining the way in which stolen automobiles were utilized in transporting the business of the ring.

Rival businesses were invited into doing business with the machine and on refusal were driven out by repeated raids.

The investigation began when a dozen Department of Justice agents from New York and Washington were sent here at the request of United States Attorney Williams. They arrested about forty of the smaller dealers and paved the way for the action of the Grand Jury.

Mayor Issues Statement.

Mayor Quigley issued a formal statement tonight in which he declared that the indictment against him "brings into bold relief one of the patent evils of our Grand Jury system. A body of men lends ear to half a story, and, without hearing the other side, renders a verdict of suspicion, and suspicion only."

"That verdict," the statement said, "places a stigma impartially on the guilty and innocent, resulting all too

MAYOR IN A WARLIKE MOOD

McCooey Says Triple Alliance Slate Will Be Made Next Monday—Promises Surprises.

Executives of Tammany Hall and the Democratic organization in the Bronx issued a declaration of war on Mayor Hylan yesterday and unanimously chose a ticket to oppose the Mayor and his followers in the coming Democratic primary. This ticket was named:

For Controller, Major Gen. Charles W. Berry, Brooklyn.

Assurances had already been received before the designations were made that all three men picked to take the warpath against Mayor Hylan would go through with the fight, which promises to become one of the most bitter struggles in the political history of the city, as well as one of the most momentous in its consequences.

Perfect harmony prevailed at both meetings, which were held simultaneously, one in the Tammany wigwam at Fourteenth Street, the other at the headquarters of the Bronx County Democratic organization at 862 Tremont Avenue. The meeting at Tammany Hall lasted about half an hour, the Bronx meeting not more than fifteen minutes.

Olvany Praises the Ticket.

At the conclusion of the meeting held by the Tammany Executive Committee, George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, made public a statement in which he said the Walker-Berry-McKee slate had been offered as one which was entitled to the support of every voter who had at heart harmony and honest and intelligent direction in the administration of public affairs. He said the proposed ticket was entitled to the confidence of the whole community. Mr. Olvany's statement in full appears in another column.

Sheriff Edward J. Flynn, leader of the Bronx County Democratic organization, after his Executive Committee had met, said:

"The Executive Committee of the Bronx County Democratic Committee met this afternoon and decided to submit to the enrolled voters of the Democratic Party the names of three men who by reason of many years of faithful public service and experience have signally qualified to perform the duties of the three most important offices in the City Government.

"The records of the gentlemen whose names we present to the electorate are a guarantee of a progressive, honest and intelligent administration of the city's affairs and an orderly, harmonious and effective solution of its manifold problems. Their public lives have been dedicated to honest, straightforward, popular service.

"The names of these men are submitted because of the confidence which the people have reposed in them.

Recognition for the Bronx.

"In offering a candidate for the Presidency of the Board of Aldermen we are presenting to the people of the Bronx an opportunity to secure a voice in the affairs of the City Government proportionate to the borough's growing population.

"Our decision was arrived at after careful deliberation and our recommendation made with the utmost confidence for the people's approval."

There was a full attendance of executive members at both meetings. Both at Tammany Hall and in the Bronx hundreds of active party workers not holding membership in the Executive Committee were on hand eager to learn what decision had been reached at the meetings. The sidewalk in front of Tammany Hall was thronged with spectators, until it was found necessary to send for policemen to keep the crowd from blocking pedestrian traffic and clear a path to and from the Wigwam. It was a silent crowd and there was no demonstration at the end of the committee's deliberations when the result became known to those waiting beyond the closed doors and in the street.

It was learned after the meeting had adjourned that while it was in progress Mayor Hylan's name had been mentioned only once and then incidentally. John F. Curry, one of the Tammany leaders in the Fifth Assembly District, on the west side, which takes in the "Hell's Kitchen" section, said that there

"I Am Vaccinated" Buttons to Be Issued in the Campaign Against Smallpox Here

Buttons for vaccinations are the newest method of the Health Department to encourage preventive work against smallpox in an intensive campaign which will be begun soon in the middle east side district of the city, east of Park Avenue and between Fourteenth and Sixty-fifth Streets. The campaign will be directed chiefly at the million and a half school children in this section and factory workers.

Health Commissioner Frank J. Monaghan said yesterday he believed the buttons would help enlist the aid of school children. He said the motto on the buttons would probably be "vaccinated and protected." If this drive is successful, he said, similar methods will be used in other parts of the city as a preventive measure against other infectious diseases, such as measles, diphtheria and scarlet fever, as well as kidney diseases, heart disease and cancer.

A meeting of the committee in charge of the campaign was held yesterday in the offices of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. The plans approved at this meeting include the publication weekly of a four-page pamphlet and the distribution of circulars from public centres, including health and welfare organizations, schools, drug stores, factories, and shops, giving information on vaccination. Advertisements will be placed in the newspapers, and short talks will be made by Health Department speakers at moving picture theatres, illustrated by moving pictures. Even the radio will be used.

SENATOR JAMES J. WALKER

For Controller.

CITY COURT JUSTICE JOSEPH V. McKEE

Honor Unsought by Walker.

Senator Walker was not at the Wigwam. He was notified by telephone of the action taken by the committee at his law office, 61 Broadway, where he had been waiting within easy call in the event that he should be required to appear before the committee in person. It may be said authoritatively that the designation came to him unasked and without any effort on his part to influence the action of the committee. His friends, however, have been very active in his behalf and he is very highly thought of and held in warm affection by a majority of the Tammany district leaders.

"I regard it a most distinguished honor to be designated by the oldest Democratic organization in the world—Tammany Hall—and the youngest—the Bronx County Democracy."

That was all the Mayoralty designee would say for publication. If there was no bellicose note in his first statement, and no triumphant prediction of coming victory in the primaries, this does not mean that the Senator is not in a warlike mood or that he lacks confidence in the outcome of the battle. He has made up his mind not to open fire on the opposition until the shooting is to begin in earnest and, besides, there is an impression among the Tammanyites that Mayor Hylan when the time comes for his triple alliance—the organizations of Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond—to make up their slate, may find some excuse for not making a primary fight, choosing instead to run as an independent.

Senator Walker will not resign his present seat in the Senate, where he is leader of the Democratic minority. An examination of the constitution and the statutory provisions that govern in this instance show that while a lawmaker during the term for which he has been elected cannot accept an appointment under a municipal government, there is nothing to prevent him from seeking elective city office and remain a member of the Legislature. It is provided in the law, however, that in the event of his election the seat occupied by him in the Senate or Assembly automatically becomes vacant.

Prepares for the Campaign.

Senator Walker said last night that a campaign headquarters from which his fight will be conducted, with a campaign manager in charge, probably would be opened early next week. The Hylan primary ticket will not be promulgated until Monday, if then, so that there is plenty of time before actual hostilities are likely to open. Today the Senator will participate in a reception on the Cunard pier to his colleague in the Senate, Nathan Straus Jr., who might succeed him as Democratic leader in that body.

Senator Straus will return today from abroad with members of his family on the Cunard liner Mauretania, and a committee has been appointed to offer him official welcome home. In the afternoon Senator Walker expects to welcome another returning traveler, D. J. Koon, a New York lawyer and maternal uncle of the Mayoralty designee, who will come in on the Holland-America steamship Rotterdam.

Mayor Hylan said nothing yesterday to encourage a belief on the part of his opponents that he might refrain from going into the primaries. In fact, he professed to be in a most warlike mood—declared that he was "up to his neck" in the fight.

The Mayor, returning from luncheon, was asked at the City Hall if he intended to conduct a vigorous primary campaign. Mr. Hylan registered surprise at the query. He removed his glasses, doffed his hat, and frowned.

"You ought to withdraw that question and look me over," he told the reporter who asked the question. "I never pussyfoot in anything. I am in this fight up to my neck. I will carry the battle to their door."

Ask McCooey, Mayor Says.

Asked about the make-up of his primary ticket, the Mayor said:

"You had better see McCooey about that."

Later in the day Mayor Hylan entertained a distinguished visitor from the Bronx in his office. It was Public Works Commissioner William J. Flynn, who was reported to have deserted the Mayor and joined hands with his enemies. The Mayor, when questioned, said he did not care to discuss the call of Mr. Flynn, nor did he care to say anything about the outlook.

"We are working eleven, twelve hours every day," the Mayor said. "I need not say any more."

John H. McCooey, generalissimo of the Hylan forces and Democratic leader in Brooklyn, said yesterday that the Hylan slate probably would be promulgated on Monday evening. The executive committees of the Democratic organizations that have gone into the Mayor's triple alliance will meet on Monday night to take action. The statement was made after a conference of Mr. McCooey, Borough President Connolly of Queens, and David S. Rendt, Democratic leader in Richmond.

"You can say for me that it is reasonably certain that we will designate Mr. Hylan for Mayor on Monday, together with an all-city and county ticket," Mr. McCooey said. "We want to spring some surprises, so we don't want to announce the slate now."

That there is trouble in store for at least two of the leaders in the Hylan triple alliance, Messrs. McCooey and Connolly, would appear from the offers of assistance and support for the anti-Hylan ticket, received at Tammany Hall before the Executive Committee met.

Offer Help to Olvany.

Thomas F. Reilly of 558 Second Street, and Thomas F. Hickey of 32 Court Street, came over and had a talk with Judge Olvany on behalf of the United Democracy of Kings County, which maintains headquarters at the Court Street address. The two spokesmen claimed that the organization had a membership of 1,250, and that they were out to fight both Hylan and McCooey. The West End Democratic Club of the Sixteenth Assembly District in Brooklyn, where Kenneth Sutherland, former Senator and now an office holder in the City Administration, is the Democratic leader, also gave Mr. Olvany assurances of support for the Tammany-Bronx ticket.

From Queens came a delegation composed of former Congressman Charles Pope Caldwell, George E. Polhemus of Jamaica, former Assemblyman Nichols V. Nehrbauer of Long Island City and William O'Hare, who declared that they would call a meeting to organize the Democratic opposition to Hylan and Connolly both among Democrats in their borough. They assured Judge Olvany that they would carry four of the six Assembly districts in Queens for the anti-Hylan ticket in the Democratic primaries.

The Municipal Alliance, organized by Joseph M. Price of 305 Broadway, who claims a membership of 100,000 for his organization, sent its Conference Committee to Tammany Hall yesterday, where it conferred with Tammany Leader Olvany and Sheriff Flynn of the Bronx.

"We recognize and approve the attitude of the Democracy of Manhattan and the Bronx, which is trying to rid the city of the blight of Hylanism," Mr. Price, spokesman for the delegation, said in addressing the two Democratic leaders. "We urge, however, that the strongest candidates should be offered in order to secure the support of the large body of independents whose cooperation is essential to final success. Candidates who can appeal to the independent elements as well as to the organization voters should be placed on the ticket. We are instructed to report back to the Executive Committee of the Municipal Alliance in order that the future policy of the organization may be determined."

Says Alliance Prefers Walker.

After the visit to Tammany Hall Mr. Price said that while he could not say whether the Tammany slate would be approved by his organization, he felt certain that Walker would be preferred to Hylan by the members.

"If the Democrats name suitable candidates we will ask the independents to support them, and I hope they will go into every county and district to oppose McCooey, Connolly and Rendt. Our chief objective, of course, is to oust Hylan."

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall the name of Senator Walker was presented by Daniel E. Finn, leader of the district in which he resides. Martin G. McCue, Clerk of the Surrogates' Court and one of the leaders in the Twelfth Assembly District, seconded the nomination, while Peter Hamill, leader of the First Assembly District, presented the resolution formally recommending him for the Mayoralty designation.

William P. Kenneally of the Twelfth, James J. Hines of the Eleventh and Mrs. Mary G. Murphy, associate leader of the Third Assembly District, sponsored Charles W. Berry as designee for Controller. Sheriff H. Warren Hubbard, one of the leaders in the Eighteenth Assembly District; Mrs. Katherine D. Codding, associate leader of the Twenty-third, and Thomas M. Farley of the Fourteenth, Deputy County Clerk, sponsored Justice Joseph V. McKee, designee for Adermanic President.

Tammany leader Olvany delivered a speech of less than two minutes' duration as the meeting opened. He merely told the members that inquiries made for the purpose of ascertaining Hylan's strength had developed beyond doubt that the party could not win with him.

The Executive Committee will meet again on Tuesday afternoon, when candidates for county offices will be designated. Acting Aldermanic President William T. Collins is being talked of as a successor to James A. Donegan, the incumbent, who is a Hearst man; James J. Hines of the Eleventh Assembly District and Charles W. Culkins of the Third Assembly District were being mentioned at the Wigwam as being considered for the nomination for Sheriff. Miss Anne Mathews, it is believed, will be renominated for her present office, Register.

LABOR NOT FOR HYLAN.

Head of State Federation Denies Report of Endorsement.

James P. Holland, President of the State Federation of Labor, repudiated yesterday an interview published in a Heart newspaper on Wednesday in which he was quoted as saying that the State Federation of Labor had endorsed Mayor Hylan's candidacy.

"I had no interview with any one representing The New York Evening Journal, nor any one else," Mr. Holland said. "I am in complete harmony with Mr. Olvany and have never been out of harmony with him, nor have I ever had any controversy with him. The New York State Federation of Labor has never endorsed Mayor Hylan for Mayor or any other office. As President of the New York State Federation of Labor, I have no authority to speak for that body in municipal affairs. It is solely a State body and in municipal affairs the Building Trades Council and Central bodies are the organizations that are empowered either to accept or reject any candidate, their action being based upon the candidate's labor record.

"From the resolution passed by the Building Trades Council of New York City, it would appear that Mr. Hylan's labor record in refusing to comply with the law and pay the workmen the prevailing rate of wage was of such a character that he has been condemned by that body. With this action I have no authority to interfere and any statement published alleged to be an interview had with me in which I pledged labor support to Mayor Hylan is unwarranted."

TAMMANY SLATE ALL PROGRESSIVES

BERRY A WAR VETERAN

McKee in Assembly for Six Years and Has Been a Champion of the Five-Cent Fare.

All three candidates on the anti-Hylan slate are looked upon as Democrats of a progressive type. All have the approval of Governor Smith, who will make a fight for the anti-Hylan ticket in the primaries.

Senator Walker began his public career as a member of the Assembly. He was first elected to that body in 1909 as a representative of the old Fifth Assembly District, which had been represented by his father in the lower house at Albany more than a generation earlier. He served five years in the Assembly. In 1914 he was elected to the Senate, where he still remains. He has been Democratic leader of the Senate since 1920. In 1912, when a Senate with a slender Democratic majority of one vote came in, Senator Walker assumed the important position of President pro tem.

Among the legislation he has sponsored was a bill to unmask the Ku Klux Klan by compelling publication of its membership roll, its oaths, its constitution and by-laws. He also has been the sponsor of legislation providing for a liberalization of the prohibition law and of a resolution calling upon Congress to tone down the Volstead law by legalizing the manufacture and safeguard traffic in light wines and beer. During the Administrations of Governor Smith subsequent to 1922 he made a brilliant fight for the Governor's legislative program, succeeding in a 100 per cent. performance while the Senate remained Democratic.

Senator Walker is a lawyer with offices at 61 Broadway. He was born in the Greenwich Village section of New York and has lived there all his life. A "New Yorker of New York" is a phrase that was aptly applied to him by Bainbridge Colby when at the head of a delegation he urged his nomination for Mayor upon Tammany leader Olvany. Senator Walker is married and lives at 6 St. Luke's Place.

Berry Won War Honors.

Major Gen. Charles W. Berry, by profession a physician, rose to his present position as commanding officer of the New York National Guard from the rank of private. He fought in the World War with distinction and brought home a number of decorations.

General Berry was born in Greene County—of which Mayor Hylan is a native—in 1871. He has lived forty-five years in this city. He was graduated from Columbia University in 1896 and subsequently took a special course at New York University.

General Berry was Democratic candidate for Controller in 1920, but went down to defeat with the rest of his ticket. He was placed on the slate that year by Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy, who did not consult John H. McCooey about the nomination. At one time General Berry, while practicing medicine in Brooklyn, was the physician of Democratic Leader McCooey.

After his discharge from the army following the armistice General Berry was commissioned a Brigadier General in the National Guard. Governor Smith appointed him Adjutant General in 1919 and again in 1923. A few months later—in May, 1923—the Governor appointed General Berry commanding officer of the guard.

Of military decorations General Berry has received the Belgian Croix de Guerre with palms and the New York State Conspicuous Service Medal. He was cited for gallantry in action by the General in command of the Rainbow Division. General Berry has been an active Democratic worker in Brooklyn for many years and has served as Chairman of the Kings County Democratic Committee.

The public career of Justice Joseph V. McKee of the City Court, designee for Aldermanic President, extends only over seven years, six of which he spent in the Assembly, where he paid special attention to welfare legislation and measures to safeguard the five-cent fare.

His legislative career came to an end when Governor Smith appointed him a Justice of the City Court. He was elected for a full term as a Justice in the last election. He is 36 years old. For a time a few years back he was counsel for the American Federation of Labor. He is married and lives at 2001 Grand Concourse.

CHEER THE TICKET AT CONEY

More than 500 men and women, members of the Muskoota Democratic Club of the Bronx, descended on Coney Island and Brighton Beach last night in buses, burning red flares, blowing tin horns and bearing banners inscribed "Senator James Walker for Mayor" and "Major General Berry for Controller."

Crowds on Surf Avenue took up the cheering and the demonstration became more clamorous as the buses rolled on their way to the Hotel Shelburne, in Brighton Beach, where the Bronxites alighted and had dinner.

NAME NASSAU CANDIDATES.

Democratic County Committee Picks Nominees for Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Aug. 6.—The Democratic County Committee of Nassau County at a meeting here tonight selected their candidates for the coming campaign. Charles Koppe of Inwood was chosen as the candidate for Assemblyman for the First Assembly District, and will run against the Republican candidate, Edwin W. Wallace, who now holds the office. Francis J. Parks, a lawyer of Seacliff, with offices at 55 Liberty Street, New York City, was named candidate for Assemblyman from the Second District, to oppose F. T. Davidson, the present Republican Assemblyman from that district.

Albert J. Murray of Freeport was chosen as candidate for Sheriff. Thomas H. Cheshire, the present Republican County Clerk, was endorsed by the Democrats because of his popularity with the voters of both parties in the county. For the office of County Treasurer, Alfred M. Bayles of Syosset was chosen as candidate, and Charles S. Walls of Malverne will be the Democratic nominee for Controller. John W. MacAvoy of Oyster Bay was selected as candidate for Superintendent of the Poor. The District Attorney was not chosen last night, but the Executive Committee obtained permission to select a man without ratification by the members.

QUEENS LEADERS TO MEET.

Will Pass on Democratic Candidates on Monday Night.

Mason O. Smedley, leader of the Queens Democratic organization, has called a meeting of the Queens Democratic Executive Committee on Monday night at Democratic headquarters in Long Island City. Candidates of the organization will be discussed. It was declared yesterday by some of the leaders that there was no doubt of the endorsement of Borough President Connolly for re-election for the fourth time and of District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe for Supreme Court Justice in the Second Judicial District. It is understood that Leader McCooey of Brooklyn has agreed to allow Queens the opportunity to name a candidate for judicial honors this year, since Justice James C. Van Siclen of Queens, a Republican, will be a candidate for reelection.

There is considerable rivalry among Democrats in Queens for the nominations for Aldermen. All of the present Aldermen from the borough are candidates for renomination, but a number of opponents have sprung up.

It was stated positively at headquarters yesterday that the Queens organization would support Mayor Hylan.

PARTY SPLIT AT ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Mayor Clarence Vanzandt, Controller Joseph B. Wilson and District Attorney William F. Love, who were disregarded in the Republican slate, announced yesterday at Newport by James L. Hotchkiss, party leader, declared tonight that they would contest his designations and with a considerable following, precipitated a split in the party ranks.

Mr. Hotchkiss proposed the nominations of City Judge William C. Kohlemtz for Mayor, Ray F. Fowler, former Assistant District Attorney, for District Attorney, and H. Bradley Carroll, City Treasurer, for Controller. His announcement at the annual party outing on Irondequoit Bay, Neport, astounded the picnickers.

Today active organization began in the insurgent camps in every election district in the city and county for a fight to test the power of Mr. Hotchkiss as successor to the late George W. Aldridge as head of the Republican machine. Mr. Love and Mr. Wilson both declared that they would contest for their renomination at the primaries and an announcement from Mayor Vanzandt is expected tomorrow.

With the certainty of serious Republican disaffection this Fall, Democratic leaders today began plans to gain some offices at the next election. Representative Meyer Jacobstein, who has twice been elected to Congress in a strong Republican district, is being urged to make the run for Mayor. He will have the support of the City Manager League if he consents.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Queen Marie of Rumania went to Wales yesterday and was invested with the ancient Bardic degree at the famous Eisteddfod ceremony. She received the Welsh name of Mari Gwalia.

The ceremony took place at a town called Pwllheli. The Queen made a speech of thanks partly in Welsh.

'CALDER FOR MAYOR,' HEARD AT A DINNER

NO REAL BOOM STARTED

Harmony Among Republican Leaders Seen as Sign of Unity in Coming Campaign.

What was at first regarded by many as the start of a Mayoralty boom for former United States Senator William M. Calder of Brooklyn, brought together last night some two hundred Republicans at the National Republican Club for a testimonial dinner to the ex-Senator, who returned recently from a trip abroad.

The explanation of the affair came while the dinner was in progress. Ex-Senator Calder is President of the Republican Club, and the dinner was in the nature of a welcome home. His name was not mentioned in the after-dinner speeches in connection with the Republican nomination for Mayor, which almost certainly will go to a party man, or possibly an independent Democrat hailing from Manhattan. One Republican district club in Brooklyn—the one in Senator Calder's own district—adopted a resolution urging Mr. Calder on the Republican slatemakers, but it is likely the action was purely complimentary and taken without the knowledge of Mr. Calder.

Warring Republican leaders of Brooklyn sat amicably together in the hall and seemed to enjoy it. There were present Jacob A. Livingston, Charles C. Lockwood and F. J. H. Kracke; also State Treasurer Lewis H. Pounds, all of whom are by way of being notable figures in Republican politics on their end of the Brooklyn bridge.

Samuel S. Koenig, County Chairman of Manhattan, who has on more than one occasion unburdened his mind as to the harm the internal strife in Brooklyn was doing the Republican cause, in his speech took pains to bring home in diplomatic language to the diners the picture of harmony that was presented.

"This is the first time since I have been in politics," said Mr. Koenig, "that there has been absolute harmony in all the boroughs in Republican ranks. That ought to mean much in the coming political contest."

Speakers Praise Calder.

The diners, who had themselves been commenting privately on the unique sight of the Brooklyn love feast, caught the allusion quickly and responded with applause.

All the speakers praised Mr. Calder's record in public life, but none spoke of him directly as a candidate for Mayor. State Treasurer Pounds did it indirectly, however, when, speaking of the opportunity given to the Republicans by the Democratic split, he said: "Whether men like Calder are candidates or not, whether they are designated or not, they are in this campaign going to make the city better by the service they give."

When Richard Lawrence, Republican leader in the Bronx and Vice Chairman of the Dinner Committee, spoke of Mr. Calder's record of "never backing away from a fight he saw coming," some one near the speakers' table shouted: "Nominate him for Mayor."

The Dinner Committee's membership included the most prominent Republicans from all parts of the State. Senator James W. Wadsworth's name was on it, as well as the other titular leaders of the party, Charles D. Hilles, National Committeeman, and George K. Morris, State Chairman. A few of the others were Elihu Root, Chauncey M. Depew, Nicholas Murray Butler, James M. Beck, Charles E. Hughes, Ogden L. Mills and Benjamin B. Odell.

Herman A. Metz, Democrat, was seen in the audience by former Congressman J. Van Vechten Olcott and called upon for a speech. Mr. Metz responded in a happy vein and said that although he was a Democrat he had voted for Mr. Calder on more than one occasion, a favor which, he said, Mr. Calder had reciprocated.

Other speakers included ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, ex-Speaker H. Edmund Machold of Watertown and Jacob A. Livingston of Brooklyn. The audience listened with close attention while Mr. Livingston praised the guest of honor and said that if he "chose to re-enter the political arena we will all be glad to help him, especially those of us from Brooklyn."

Confidence in Campaign.

Ex-Senator Calder made a brief response, saying he accepted the honor of the dinner as President of the National Republican Club, upon his return from Europe.

"We are entering this campaign," he said, "with the confidence of all the party leaders, and, I think, the rank and file. We shall be in a fine position when the Democrats get through telling what they know about each other. It is not the record of Mr. Hylan we must expose in this campaign, but the record of the Democratic Party."

The Greater City Republican Committee, of which National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles is Chairman, met again yesterday for an hour of slatemaking. The committee is composed of the Republican borough leaders and the Chairmen of their respective Advisory Committees, one from each borough. They discussed candidates for several hours and adjourned to meet again Monday without making any announcement.

Mr. Koenig said that no conclusion had been reached and no slate would be announced earlier than Monday. Mr. Koenig was in conference with his town Executive Committee after the other meeting and said that the executive members of his organization would meet again to ratify any designations that may be made on Monday afternoon.

HEADLESS GIANT BODIES FOUND IN PARIS GRAVES

They Date Back 1,400 Years—May Have Been Christian Martyrs, Soldiers or Criminals.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—The discovery in St. Germain-en-Laye yesterday of the remains of a Merovingian cemetery, dating back to the sixth century, has aroused the keen interest of French archaeologists. Particularly revealing to the experts is the fact that the six skeletons which were exhumed not only suggest a race of men of imposing size, but also bear witness to the strange methods of burial which were practiced in their time.

These skeletons ranged in size, including the head measurement, from 6 feet 2 inches to 6 feet 7 inches. The cranium of the skeleton showed a thickness of 1 centimeter. In every case, however, burial had taken place following decapitation, the head being deposited on the chest of the man, his hands embracing it.

Some bodies were buried without shrouds. Others were enclosed in plaster coffins.

Whether the dead were Christian martyrs, Gallic or Roman warriors, or were executed criminals is a question which the archaeologists are not yet able to answer.

In view of the fact that these remains were discovered near a street which up to fifty years ago bore the name "Le Chemin de Justice" (Road of Justice), there is reason to believe that they mark the location of the burial ground for those who had been officially executed. The cemetery itself, however, is on the grounds of the ancient convent of Feuillancourt and may have been the graveyard of the Church of Feuillancourt.

The absence of objects in the inscriptions in the tombs suggest the early Christian era. The presence of a pebble placed on each slab level with the chest of the dead also recalls Christian rites. In any case, the archaeologists are willing to agree that these tombs date back to the sixth century.

Court Hints Leniency for Man Who Absolved Wife in Thefts.

Edward Dever, 27 years old, of 443 Eighty-third Street, Brooklyn, pleaded guilty before County Judge McLaughlin in Brooklyn yesterday to a second degree grand larceny charge and was remanded to the Raymond Street jail for sentence on Aug. 17.

His wife, who was indicted with him, was released on bail, after Dever had told the judge she was in no way responsible for the theft of $850 from Herman Stitch of 668 Riverside Drive through a fraudulant mortgage and other sums through spurious checks. "I forced her into complicity," said Dever.

"Yours is a manly attitude, and I shall remember that," said Judge McLaughlin.

MOTHER OF 4 KILLED; A SHIELD FOR THUGS

the dying woman, the fugitive emptied his revolver and then scrambled over a fence into the yard of an adjoining building. The policemen followed him, but he had disappeared. Some went into the building after him. Others went into the basement, which was dark and full of bins and hiding places. The policemen reconnoitered cautiously, heard and saw nothing and then withdrew. The search upstairs showed that the man was not there and had not escaped that way.

Fairly certain that he must be hiding near at hand, the policemen went into the basement again. They did not know whether the youth had any shots left in his revolver, but they took the risk and beat about the basement with their hands. They found nothing. Then they took a bigger risk and lighted matches. Policeman Jockel saw something cowering against a woodbin and pulled forth a trembling youth.

Out in the daylight the police found that they had a stocky, pink-cheeked lad who looked as if he was barely out of grammar school.

"I didn't do nothing," he repeated, and burst into tears. He said he was Edward Hart, 18 years old, of 18 Hamilton Street, and that he was a baker's helper.

In the meantime Policeman Maroney and others had entered the Webster Apartments, two doors away from the address where Mrs. O'Connell was killed. There they arrested John Burke of 59 Sheriff Street. Another fugitive had entered here and escaped. The fourth man also got away.

Crowd Threatens Lynching.

The shooting had attracted a crowd of 1,500 people. The news that the woman had been killed and the detective wounded mortally caused great excitement. When the two prisoners were escorted to the police automobile, the mob pressed around it, threatening the prisoners and shouting "Lynch 'em!" In a rush that was made on the small car the windshield was broken. Half a dozen policemen took positions on the running board and others broke through the crowd and drove to the West Thirtieth Street Station, where the prisoners were locked up on a charge of homicide.

The fact that the four youths were on their way to commit another crime when they were intercepted was established, according to the police, not only by the fact that they were armed and ready to shoot recklessly, but also by the discovery in the sedan of two coils of rope, apparently intended for binding victims. The automobile was identified as one which had been stolen from a Brooklyn physician on July 11. Captain Carey of the Homicide Squad and others questioned the prisoners at length as to past crimes and as to their accomplices.

The wounded detective had scarcely arrived at the Roosevelt Hospital when several policemen who had been in the battle followed him there, offering blood for transfusion purposes. They were informed that there was no time to make the tests which would be necessary to choose the man with the right type of blood. Internes and attendants, whose blood characteristics have been classified, are kept in readiness to respond to such emergencies. One of these was called on for the transfusion, but late last night it was said that Heneberry was very low.

The wounded detective was 30 years old. He had been on the police force six years and in the Truck Squad two years. He won his promotion to the rank of detective by making a sensational arrest two years ago, near Seventy-fourth Street and Broadway. He was severely wounded at the time and received a medal for bravery.

KILL 1, WOUND 2 ROBBERS.

One robber died in Flower Hospital begging for a sight of his two children, while two others were in hospitals severely wounded, following a pistol battle with the police after the robbers had held up seventy men in a dice game early yesterday morning at 4 West 125th Street.

Four men broke into the large room, where the gamblers and spectators formed several groups. All hands were ordered up and the men were lined up against the wall. The invaders then ordered all coats and vests taken off and dropped on the floor. The pistol muzzles were swinging nervously to keep the men closely covered during this process. Then the victims were lined up with their faces to the wall again and the money and the valuables were shaken out upon the floor and collected.

The gamblers were then compelled to take off their trousers and these were rifled in turn. While the robbers were thus occupied, one man slipped out unobserved; ran downstairs in his underwear and gave the alarm.

Policeman Frederick Conklin of the West Sixty-seventh Street Station ran up to 125th Street and Fifth Avenue just after the hold-up and started toward four men whom he supposed to be the robbers.

Conklin called on them to halt. One made a suspicious move toward his back pocket. Conklin recognized the man as William Nagle, who has a reputation of being very quick on the draw. Nagle was arrested in connection with the murders of Policemen Romanelli and Reynolds by taxicab bandits, but was released for lack of evidence. Policeman Conklin was quoted yesterday as having said at that time, "He may be quick on the draw, but he won't be quick enough for me." At any rate, Conklin fired at the first sign of a false move. Nagle dropped to the sidewalk, where, according to Conklin, he pulled the trigger of his pistol again and again, but the weapon missed fire each time.

One of Nagle's companions started to run away. He fell with a bullet from Conklin's pistol under his heart. A third man, who gave his name as George Muller of 211 West 109th Street, was brought down with two pistol wounds in the abdomen by Policeman Hugo Mayer. The fourth escaped.

The man wounded under the heart was James McCann, 29 years old, of 405 East 125th Street. He was carried unconscious to an ambulance and taken to Flower Hospital. Placed on an operating table, McCann revived.

"I'm dying," he said to a nurse. "Please have some one go to my house and fetch my two children. I want to see them before I die."

It was then 5:10 A. M., but two policemen were sent to the man's home to get the children. They had barely started when they were recalled. McCann was dead.

Nagle and Muller both were found to be seriously wounded in the body. A search of Nagle revealed $352 in money and some watches and chains. Muller, according to the police, carried $328 and McCann $70.

Because of the report that Conklin had discussed the probable outcome of a gunfight between himself and Nagle, Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora caused an investigation to be made. Witnesses were questioned by Assistant District Attorney Morgan A. Jones. He reported that the circumstances justified the shooting.

HOLD UP DRIVER, STEAL TRUCK

David Fero, a member of the firm of Fero & Durkin, truckmen, of 82 University Place, was alone on the seat of an automobile truck containing fifteen cases of merchandise at Wooster and Third Streets late yesterday afternoon when a touring car holding four men stopped beside the truck.

One man jumped out with a pistol in his hand and climbed to Fero's seat.

"Get down," he commanded. "Lie down in my car, and don't yell or you'll get all this has got."

Fero lay down in the touring car. The robber on the truck drove it away. Then the three men in the touring car drove Fero about the lower east side until shortly after 6 o'clock, when they stopped in front of a tenement at Avenue A and Eleventh Street, ordered Fero into the hallway and drove off.

Fero, who was unable to estimate the value of the truck and its load of merchandise, described the four men and, after examining photographs in the Rogues' Gallery, accompanied Detective Murphy on a search for them.

WALRUSES ATTACK MACMILLAN SAILORS

ENDURANCE FLIGHTS NEAR

Two Planes Are Scheduled to Reach Ellesmere Land Today to Establish Relay Station.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—A fight with a herd of walrus was described by Commander Macmillan of the MacMillan Arctic expedition in a message received tonight by the National Geographic Society.

The message, dated today and relayed by A. A. Collins of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, related that "in a walrus hunt yesterday three members of the Peary crew, in Bowdoin boat, were attacked by an infuriated herd of at least one hundred walrus." The kyack of one of the Eskimos aiding in the hunt was capsized, but he was rescued.

The explorer also reported:

"Engine trouble in one plane, and we are putting in a new one.

"Endurance test today. NA-2 and NA-3 plan to fly across Smith Sound and on to the centre of Ellesmere Land today to select a site for first relay station."

On every test flight the greatest apprehension is felt by the natives on the ground, who are unable to comprehend why the planes do not fall and who look for a disaster every minute.

Lieut. Commander Byrd, in charge of the flying detachment, in a radio message today to the Navy Department described yesterday's activities of the expedition at Etah, Greenland. He told of the forced landing of one of the planes which apparently was accomplished without damage.

"Performance of plane loaded and the maximum total weight with which plane could take off water was 5,500 pounds," he said. "That includes deadweight of plane and engine of 3,600 pounds. Performance of plane in air with the load was excellent.

"Airplane NA-2 had a forced landing today due to the failure of a blade in the water pump. Have to keep planes in water and operate practically entirely from water, as beach is too steep for practical use.

"Have calculated the variation of the compass here to be 103¼ degrees, but the sun has been out for only about two or three hours since we reached here and I cannot be certain of this variation. The intensity of the horizontal component of the earth's magnetism is so small here that the magnetic compass is practically useless in aircraft. The steering compass in airplane NA-3 indicated east for all headings of the plane.

"Mr. Gayer (J. J. of the photographic section) of the National Geographic Society has been untiring in his efforts to assist the naval unit. It is now 11:30 P. M. and the airplane NA-2 has just returned and the water pump O. K."

ETAH SPEEDS RADIO REPLIES.

MacMillan Party Answers Five Press Questions, First in 8 Minutes.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill., Aug. 6 (AP).—The first press service interview by radio with the Arctic was successfully completed at 1 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, today by The Associated Press when Lieut. Commander E. E. McDonald Jr. of the MacMillan Arctic expedition answered five questions.

The first question was sent and answered within eight minutes. The questions were sent at the rate of sixteen words per minute, international code, over the 3,700-mile distance north from Chicago to Etah, Greenland, where the expedition is anchored.

The questions were sent direct by The Associated Press from Station 9-XN here to station WAP aboard the Steamship Peary at Etah. A wave of 40 meters, 1,000 watts, was used in both transmission and reception. Lieut. Commander McDonald is President of the Zenith Radio Corporation (9-XN).

The first message sent was:

"What point and greatest distance you have heard or transmitted human voice by radio which would be of interest to The Associated Press newspapers?"

"I have heard code from New Zealand," McDonald replied. "Have worked code England, France, Holland, Sweden and Catalina Islands. Heard voice Chicago and Schenectady in daylight. Transmitted voice have been reported heard in Seattle, New England and London."

"Have missionaries begun using radio receivers and what do they expect about it?"

"We found only one missionary using radio. Rev. Perritt, Hopedale, Labrador, who has been to his home in London only three times in thirty-two years, gets mail seldom and says radio is a great boon. I presented missionaries with sets when they most needed them. They could not buy radio as they have insufficient funds to buy other necessities desired."

McDonald interrupted the questions to suggest that they be confined to radio matters. The third question:

"Is the Eskimo guide Itookashu with you?" (Itookashu was a guide with Peary and MacMillan on a previous expedition.)

"Itookashu now with us."

"Will it be possible to reach your planes by radio?" referring to the three planes carried by the expedition in its attempt to reach the North Pole.

"Have difficulty in maintaining two-way communication with planes, but expect to eradicate this."

"Do Eskimos fully appreciate radio concerts?"

"He just accepts it as another great work of the white man and to him it is not more wonderful than the phonograph."

The questioning from start to finish consumed an hour and a half, beginning at midnight, Eastern Standard Time.

Prior to the transmission of the questions the human voice was heard at Station 9-XN from WAP, saying "WAP—Etah." Shortly thereafter a concert of phonograph music radiocast from the Arctic was distinguished. Those at 9-XN familiar with the personnel of the expedition did not recognize the voice, which was a deep bass.

IRISH SOLDIERS ORGANIZE.

Form 'Wild Geese' to Aid Republican Veteran Immigrants Here.

Former Irish republican soldiers met last night at the Central Opera House and formed a new association known as "The Wild Geese," which has as its objects devotion to the cause of republicanism in Ireland and extension of aid to former Irish republican soldiers who come to this country without funds. Speakers denounced other Irish organizations.

Plans were discussed for the formation of an employment agency for placing former Irish soldiers. The committee in charge of the arrangements is Cathal McGuiness, Edward Boland, Sean Healy and John Carvey.

ROCKAWAY BROKERS FACING AN INQUIRY

NEWS OF IT CHECKS BOOM

Commissioner Hirshfield in Syndicate Which Will Develop Big Tract in Wavecrest.

Irregular transactions by real estate men, which are said to have cost the victims large sums, resulted yesterday in an order by District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe for a general investigation of boom conditions at the Rockaways. The offending parties are alleged to have conducted business without licenses. While reports of the investigation spread, trading fell off heavily in Rockaway Park, formerly the centre of the boom. It continued brisk at Far Rockaway and Long Beach.

Action against unlicensed brokers came when J. Wilson Dayton, President of the Long Island Real Estate Board, forwarded a formal complaint to the District Attorney's office.

"If there are unlicensed persons acting as brokers in the Rockaways they are committing a serious offense," Mr. Newcombe said yesterday afternoon. "My office will carefully investigate the facts that Mr. Dayton or any other person may have, and we will take immediate action if we find that the situation warrants it."

Assemblyman Brunner of Brunner & Farrell, larger dealers on Beach 116th Street, formerly the centre of the boom, admitted yesterday that his sales for twenty-four hours had dropped to $200,000. Two days ago they were reported as $500,000 a day, and over the week-end as exceeding $1,000,000 daily.

"Sales have fallen off, but there is more money in town than ever," he said. "You can't get in without $50,000, so naturally there are fewer here. The market is getting so that you can tell with some pretense of accuracy how much a given piece of property is worth."

Other Boom Centres Active.

Trading remained active at the three other boom centres, Edgemere, Far Rockaway and Long Beach, but at these places the larger concerns admitted a falling off. Schnall & Mann of Edgemere, who formerly reported a daily turnover of $2,000,000, admitted a drop yesterday to $500,000. No large deals were reported at the office of Andrew McTigue of Far Rockaway, despite the fact that Edgemere dealers had opened offices there overnight and announced that "Far Rockaway is running away from us."

Schnall and Mann and Lewis H. May of Edgemere opened Far Rockaway offices. Mr. Schnall said that he was handling there "several times" as much business as at Edgemere, and Mr. May also said that he was spending most of his time there because of heavier trading. At the office of William S. Pettit, Far Rockaway, it was reported that more investors and fewer speculators were coming in. This was supported by R. C. Gipson and I. Goldberg, Far Rockaway dealers.

Says Hylan's Visit Started It.

Ernest Gardiner, Secretary of the Rockaway Coast Development Company, formation of which was announced yesterday by Andrew J. Kenny, President of the Board of Trade, issued a statement in which he said: "This great boom began immediately after Mayor John F. Hylan appeared on the boardwalk over a week ago."

Mr. Gardiner is publicity man for the Board of Trade. He is a Hylan appointee to the specially created job of General Investigator for the New York City Board of Transportation and is now "on a vacation." Asked if the Mayor was investing in Rockaway, he said, "Not that I know of, but is there any reason why he should not?"

David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts, whose purchase of real estate in the Rockaways boom became known Wednesday and who said yesterday that he and three associates had bought the Manor House at Wavecrest for $250,000 and would operate it as a hotel, is interested, it was also learned, in the development of O'Donohue Park in the same section.

O'Donohue Park was bought last week by Isaac Zaret for $1,500,000, and he is said to have refused $1,000,000 profit on the transaction. This property has a frontage of 3,000 feet on the ocean. Mr. Zaret said he planned to cut it into building lots and had formed a syndicate to assist him.

Mr. Hirshfield is a member of this syndicate, which met at Mr. Zaret's office yesterday afternoon. Others present were George W. Kraft, President of the Bank of the Rockaways; E. Davis, Superintendent of the Queensboro Gas and Electric Company; William H. Sullivan, a contractor; M. Spear, Superintendent of the Flushing Gas Company, and Charles R. Bettes, Chief Engineer of the Queens County Water Company.

John W. Wainwright, probably the largest single property holder in the Rockaways, who has erected a sixteen-foot sign crediting the boom to Mayor Hylan and entreating people to vote for him, declared that even if the Board of Estimate should stop appropriation for the new boardwalk, Rockaway had enough other improvements coming to enable her to "carry on."

Mr. Wainwright was the last Mayor of the Rockaways, holding that office in 1897, when they became a part of the city. He declared he had headed committees to four preceding New York Mayors, but that Hylan had been the first to answer their requests for improvements.

Hotels Change Hands.

Much amusement was caused among local men, who no longer talk in figures other than hundreds of thousands or millions, by the result of historical research on the part of Mr. Gardiner. He declared that the Rockaways were purchased by the British in 1680 from Takapoosa, chief of the Rockaway Indians, for £150.

A number of hotels changed hands yesterday. The New York Hotel, corner of Boulevard and Seaside Avenue, was sold for $200,000. The Klepper Hotel, Beach Thirty-third Street, on the ocean, went to the Gerkel Realty Company for $140,000.

Iscrick & Nathan reported the sale of the Embassy Hotel, on the ocean at Beach Twenty-ninth Street, to the J. & H. Construction Company, a local syndicate, for $350,000. George C. Blackwell and Russell B. Correy sold the Far Rockaway Club on Greenwood Avenue. The purchaser contemplates erecting a six-story apartment house.

McKahon & Speiser reported the sale for the Segeer Realty Company to the Jamaica Bay Development Company of ocean front property extending from Beach Thirty-ninth Street to Forty-first Street for $1,250,000. The same company sold for William Vorst and others the Oriental Hotel and Baths at the foot of Beach Ninety-first Street to the Riviera Realty Company for $200,000.

Nassau at Long Beach Sold.

Irving Klein sold the Shiers Garage, Arverne, to Harry Basset of Far Rockaway for $150,000, and a parcel of lots in the same section for $150,000. Kensington Gardens, a hotel at Edgewater, went to a New York syndicate for $190,000. Mann & Schnall sold forty-two bungalows on both sides of Beach Fifty-first and Fifty-second Streets to Katz & Simon for $250,000.

Contracts were closed in Long Beach for the sale of the Nassau Hotel by the Hillman Hotel Company to Nathan & Tolins, Manhattan law firm, for $1,750,000. David Tolins, Corporation Counsel of Long Beach, merely said the transaction was "for a client." McCabe & Wolff were the brokers.

Arthur C. Sheridan, New York and Miami real estate auctioneer, reported the sale by E. E. Smathers of twenty-two Long Beach ocean front lots for $1,500,000 and their resale for $2,500,000. The Post Office building, he said, had been sold four times. The Hotel Lafayette, opposite the railroad station, has received offers of $1,000,000, but its owner has not yet sold.

Total business handled since the boom started in Long Beach Mr. Sheridan estimated at $14,000,000.

ROCKAWAY PARTNERS SUE.

Say Member of Firm Broke Contract by Taking Option on Land.

Justice Dike in the Brooklyn Supreme Court signed an order yesterday, calling upon four men to appear before him today and show cause why they should not be restrained from disposing of some property in Rockaway Beach, pending settlement of the question as to whether the property belongs to a co-partnership in which the complainants have an interest.

The complainants are David Goldstein, Hyman Shapiro, Samuel Kohn and Joseph Grodsky. They say in their petition that they, together with Charles Cornman, formed a partnership on July 31 to deal in Rockaway Beach real estate, each to receive equal shares of the profits. They began to negotiate for a piece of shore-front property between Beach Forty-first and Beach Forty-second Streets.

Kohn says in his affidavit that he obtained an offer of the property at a profit to the owner of $15,000. Cornman, the petition says, told Kohn to discontinue negotiations, because he said he could buy the property direct from the owner at a profit to the latter of only $10,000. The four complainants learned later, the petition says, that an option on the property had been obtained by Monochim Menschel and Joseph Cornman, who, it is alleged, were dummies for Charles Cornman, who, the petitions says, broke his contract and deprived the others of their share of the profits. The defendants, it is alleged, have threatened to dispose of the property.

PAPER MONEY FOR MEXICO.

Gold and Silver Certificates Will Be Issued by New Bank.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 6.—The Mexican Government believes the financial situation will be greatly improved when the Bank of Issue is started. Recalling the experiences of the Carranza Government in forcing paper money on the Mexican people, the Government, through Minister Pani, has decided to issue two classes of bank notes, one a silver certificate for five, ten and twenty pesos, which is redeemable at sight in silver coin, and 50, 100, 500 and 1,000 pesos in gold certificates.

The bank will open for business on Sept. 1. The bank notes will be issued slowly in order to gain the confidence of the people. It is possible that the Government will pay Federal employes in the silver certificate in order gradually to spread the bills through the country.

The Government will not force local banks to take shares in the Federal Bank but will extend an invitation.

If the banks do not care to take the 49 per cent. the Government will make up the difference.

A small amount of bills will be issued for several months in order to prevent withdrawal of gold or silver from circulation, as happened when the Carranza Government tried to make paper currency stand up.

The problem of paper currency in Mexico is due to the reluctance of the Indians to handle currency that is not coin.

Bankers of Mexico City state they have not received an invitation as yet to take shares in the bank and until an invitation is received they are unable to say what attitude they will adopt. Merchants believe if the bank is properly handled with a limited circulation of paper for the next six months or probably a year, business will benefit as the people become accustomed to the new money and have faith in the bank.

APPROVES PROPERTY SALE.

Referee Allows Trustee to Dispose of Part of McComb Estate.

Supreme Court Referee Ernest W. Marlow approved yesterday the application of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, as trustee for the estate of the late James Jennings McComb, for permission to sell the block front on the east side of Seventh Avenue, between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Streets. The property, which also has a Central Park South frontage, is to be bought by the Syndic Realty Company, which is said to have contracted for its resale to the New York Athletic Club.

The property, which will bring about $5,000,000, is only part of the trust established by Mr. McComb. The trust includes $269,700 in mortgages, $2,813,893 in bonds and $508,883 in stocks, with property in Dobbs Ferry, now being used as the Town Hall, which is to be sold for $25,000 to Evelyn Scott.

The beneficiaries of the trust are a son, Jennings Scott McComb, and three daughters, Mary Alice McComb Jones, Fanny McComb Herzog and Lillie McComb Hartigan and their heirs.

Will Widen 42d Street at Madison Avenue; Kiosk to Go and Traffic to Be Expedited

The subway kiosk at the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-second Street, which has been complained of for some time as an obstruction to sidewalk traffic, is to be removed and the Forty-second Street roadway is to be widened twenty feet at that point, according to announcement yesterday of the Madison Avenue Committee of the Fifth Avenue Association.

The report of the committee states that an agreement has been reached with the Transit Commission, the Board of Transportation, Borough President Julius Miller and the Liggett Company, owners of the building on that corner, which will insure the removal of the kiosk and the substitution of an entrance through the Forty-second Street side of the Liggett drug store.

The report adds that the city has for many years wanted to remove the kiosk because of its obstruction of sidewalk traffic and also to provide for widening of the street.

"The Madison Avenue cars," says the report, "swing around this corner within a few feet of the sidewalk and directly behind the kiosk, which hides approaching cars from view of pedestrians, many of whose lives have been endangered.

"Borough President Miller has agreed, when the obstruction is removed, to immediately start proceedings that will result in the widening of the Forty-second Street roadway. The curb radius at the northeast corner will be increased so that pedestrians and vehicles will have ample space for protection from the projecting ends of street cars making the turn. It will then be possible to expedite traffic movement through Forty-second Street and eliminate a large part of the delay and confusion that under present conditions often causes a solid jam of motionless vehicles in Madison Avenue for many blocks north and south of Forty-second Street."

CLUB RAID INQUIRY BEGUN BY REFEREE

President of One Organization Says Police Visits Were Far From 'Friendly.'

LIST OF MEMBERS ASKED

Will Be Furnished to the City's Counsel When Testimony Is Resumed Tomorrow.

The investigation of alleged "friendly raids" by the police, which Corporation Counsel Nicholson charges have been engineered so that favored clubs could get injunctions against further police interference and then operate unmolested as gambling places and speakeasies, was begun yesterday by Referee Joseph Kahn in his offices at 66 Broadway.

The case considered yesterday was that of the Park View Athletic Club, Inc., 107 West Forty-eighth Street, whose officers sought an injunction against police interference from Justice Aaron J. Levy on June 13. Justice Levy, after reviewing the evidence, declared the police had acted improperly and, reserving decision on the application for an injunction, appointed Mr. Kahn to investigate the case in detail, giving him wide powers.

Testimony heard yesterday was an amplification of that given in the moving papers before Justice Levy. Joseph Shalleck, counsel for the club, put its President, James Graham, and several of the members on the stand. Graham testified that he had been in the club when it was entered on four different days by different groups of police. The dates were June 8, 9, 11 and 12.

In each instance, he said, the police said they had no warrants but had received complaints of gambling and were there to investigate. The last time, on June 12, he said, they were very abusive, very disorderly in their search, and refused to identify themselves as policemen. He said they had taken records and papers from the treasurer's desk. He added that he had been frightened after the last visit and resolved to close the club up and never go back.

Other members took the matter up and got a lawyer, he said, and that night the complaint and affidavits were prepared in a drug store at Fiftieth Street and Seventh Avenue. An injunction against further police interference was asked the next day before Justice Levy.

During cross-examination of the witness, Russell L. Tarbox, Assistant Corporation Counsel, asked whether he could positively identify the visitors in the last search of the clubrooms as members of the police force. Graham said he could not, though all the club members believed they were policemen. Mr. Tarbox said the police records contained no entry to show that such a visit had been made and said it was the contention of the authorities that these men were not policemen. Papers accompanying the police answer to the injunction application specified the names of policemen alleged to have participated in the first three investigations of the club rooms, but not in the case of the final visit.

The close of the hearing was marked by a dispute between Mr. Shalleck and Mr. Tarbox as to when the hearing should be resumed. Mr. Tarbox said he had returned from his vacation only yesterday and wanted time to acquaint himself with the details of the case. The club attorney insisted the hearing should continue today. He said the case had been in the Corporation Counsel's office since July 13, and with the latter's "sixty assistants" there was no occasion for further delay. Referee Kahn fixed the adjournment to tomorrow at 10 o'clock on the understanding that testimony would be taken all day if necessary. Mr. Shalleck, at the City Counsel's request, said he would hand over to him a list of the club membership and other records of the organization.

Another freight car containing 150 barrels of "real beer" was discovered on an Erie Railroad siding in the rear of 1,622 Park Avenue, Hoboken, by six Federal agents, who said they made the find accidentally while on their way to a drug raid. An automobile truck on which five of the barrels apparently had been loaded was backed up to the car. The agents arrested three men who were on the truck. Arrangements were made to transfer the beer to a Federal warehouse.

SAYS BARGE CANAL GAINS.

Senator Gibbs Is Pleased at Increase in Water-Route Freight.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 6.—Increased shipping will be attracted to the Barge Canal to an extent that will justify the cost of a survey which is now being made by a State Commission, Senator Leonard W. H. Gibbs, Chairman, declared tonight at the conclusion of a meeting of the commission. He declared that all the talk that the Barge Canal would be scrapped was nonsense.

"Canal business is increasing this year despite the general poor conditions in the freight business," he said.

The commission today decided to meet in New York City in the rooms of the New York State Chamber of Commerce Sept. 9, 10 and 11. Other dates fixed are: Buffalo, Oct. 14, 15 and 16; Albany, Sept. 16 and 17; Glens Falls, Sept. 18; Utica, Sept. 22; Syracuse, Sept. 23; Oswego, Sept. 24; Ithaca, Oct. 6, and Rochester, Oct. 7.

"The commission has tried from the outset," said Senator Gibbs, "to establish with the shippers and operators a spirit of confidence and the knowledge that the present canal is being maintained efficiently."

It was announced that at the various meetings throughout the State the commission will take the testimony of insurance groups, shippers and railroad interests and at a later date it will meet in New York City and listen to the testimony of the financial group. It has been said that the financial interests in New York City have turned a deaf ear to applications for loans for Barge Canal activities.

COMMUTERS READY FOR ALBANY APPEAL

Public Service Commission to Get Petition for Rehearing Today or Tomorrow.

INJUNCTION RULING AWAITED

Court Not to Grant Rate Rise Stay if New Haven Agrees to Modified Rebate Slip.

The Westchester County commuters' petition to the Public Service Commission for a rehearing on the 40 per cent. commutation rate increase granted to the New Haven Railroad last month was drafted yesterday by Corporation Counsel Charles A. Van Auken and Milo R. Maltbie, advisory expert. It will be served in Albany either this afternoon or tomorrow morning, according to Mr. Van Auken.

The time of service will depend largely on the progress of the hearing which Justice Arthur S. Tompkins will hold in Special Sessions in White Plains this morning on the rebate certificate which the New Haven Railroad Company has expressed its willingness to issue to commuters. Justice Tompkins will issue his final order in the application of Frank J. Hermes, New Rochelle commuter, who sought an injunction against the increased rates. Justice Tompkins has announced that he intends to deny the injunction if the New Haven agrees to issue the rebate slip which the railroad proposed and the Court slightly modified.

Mr. Van Auken said he expected Justice Tompkins would not only settle the final form of the refund certificate, covering the difference between old and new rates, which will be refunded if the commuters win their fight, but also fix the time when the New Haven is to issue the certificates and rule whether the rebate would be retroactive to Aug. 1, the date the new rates went into effect.

"If on rehearings and after hearing both sides of the case," Mr. Van Auken said, "the commission decides that an increased fare is necessary for the railroad to continue, of course we will all agree to pay it. We are willing to pay a fair rate for good service, which we do not receive at the present time."

Corporation Counsel Hugh M. Hewson of Mount Vernon suggested that the anger of Mount Vernon citizens had been aroused to such a point that the railroad would encounter opposition in seeking bus franchises in Westchester. But Mr. Van Auken said:

"The question of franchises for bus lines is a question that will be decided upon its own merits. Speaking for the City of New Rochelle, I can say we do not intend to use any method that might be construed as an attempt to club the railroad into giving us what we ask for. The bus question and the railroad rate question are entirely separate."

The New Haven has made no application for bus franchises in either New Rochelle or Mount Vernon, according to Mr. Hewson, who explained that two applications were pending in Mount Vernon, one by the Westchester Bus Company of New York and the other by William E. Wheeler for the Third Avenue Railroad Company. The applications will be acted upon by the Common Council of Mount Vernon on Sept. 8. The same applicants have asked for franchises in New Rochelle, where no date for a hearing has been set.

Applications for bus franchises have been made in Port Chester by the West Chester But Company and in White Plains by the Tri-City Bus Company and the Metro Cab Company. White Plains is not involved in the New Haven rate increase. Officials of Port Chester said that the rate increase would not affect the granting of bus franchises.

Leverett S. Miller, President of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad Company, subsidiary of the New Haven, according to reports, is to head a country-wide bus system which is being organized and which will ask for franchises in Larchmont, Mamaroneck, Harrison, Rye and Port Chester, White Plains and Tarrytown.

Small, once on the day before he was sentenced to hang, and the third time he got a stay of execution from the Superior Court at 2 o'clock in the morning of July 24, four hours before he was to go to the gallows, and the sanity hearing was ordered.

When Scott was arrested after the holdup he was accused of having gone into the drug store with his brother Robert, driving several customers into the basement and himself taking the young clerk upstairs. There, it was said, he ordered the boy to open the safe. The boy fought, three shots were fired into his body and he was killed instantly. Russell Scott was caught a few days later, but Robert was never found.

Expected Life Sentence.

Scott pleaded guilty on June 15, 1924, thinking he would get a life sentence, but he and his attorneys were surprised and shocked when Judge Lindsay sentenced him to hang. Mr. Stanton, his attorney, rushed to the bar, crying, "For God's sake, Judge, you are sending an innocent man to the gallows!" He wept and pleaded with the Judge, who finally permitted Scott to withdraw his plea and plead not guilty.

During his trial Scott insisted it was his brother Robert, and not he, who had gone upstairs with the boy. He said they had gone into the store to buy whisky. He remained downstairs while Robert and the boy went upstairs. He said he heard a scuffle and shots and saw his brother leave with a pistol in his hand. He denied they had gone there to hold up the place.

Scott's wife and his aged father, Thomas A. Scott, have worked incessantly for commutation of his sentence. Hundreds of persons in the border cities became interested, believing him innocent. Residents of small cities on the border where Scott was known attended subscription dances to raise money to pay for the services of lawyers.

Clubwoman Offered $6,500 Aid.

Scott had lost in his two attempts to get a new trial, the two reprieves had been granted and he was sentenced to die at 6 A. M. July 24, when a final effort was made to save him. Clubwomen of Detroit had subscribed $6,500. The money was handed to Mrs. Scott on July 23. She hastened to Chicago, reaching there that night, and an hour before midnight, seven hours before her husband was to hang, she engaged Attorneys Stewart and O'Brien to make the final effort in his behalf.

Every Judge of the Superior Court was out of the city then save Judge David. The two lawyers located him at midnight, presented their petition to him, claiming Scott suffered from paranoia, and argued for a stay. It was granted at 2 A. M.

Judge David set Aug. 3 as the date for a hearing on the petition. The jury was selected on that date, Judge David not permitting either side much latitude in rejecting talesmen. Each side had but three peremptory challenges, and the State was not permitted to inquire if the veniremen had scruples against the death penalty.

LEFT RICH PARENTS TO BE JAZZ PLAYER

W. H. Mitchell, Princeton Graduate, Missing Since July 25, Found by His Father.

TRACED BY PAWNED WATCH

Young Man Promises to Give Up Piano Playing Job in Village and Return Home.

A desire to succeed in jazz music rather than in lumber was what prompted William Hamlin Mitchell, son of a wealthy lumber dealer in Buffalo, to disappear on July 25. The young Princeton graduate was found yesterday, and promised to desert the keys of the piano in a Greenwich Village cabaret and return to workaday tasks in Buffalo.

Announcement of the finding of Mitchell was made at the Hotel Vanderbilt by his father, George A. Mitchell, who owns seven wholesale and twenty-five retail lumber yards. Mr. Mitchell, who had advertised a reward of $500 for information leading to "Billy," said that the publicity had brought back his son, and that the $500 had been paid to a musician in the cabaret who, after ascertaining that nothing would be done to the new piano player at home, disclosed his whereabouts.

Mr. Mitchell said that his son motored from Buffalo to Batavia on July 25, selling his roadster in Batavia for $960, and that he discovered this after he had been summoned from the Canadian Rockies, where he had been on a vacation. The father said that he lost his son's trail in New York City. On Wednesday a pawnbroker, who read Mitchell's description in the advertisement, telephoned that a young man had pawned a $500 Swiss watch for $75. Mr. Mitchell visited the shop and identified the watch as his son's property. It was shown to Mrs. Mitchell and eased her anxiety.

A second telephone call in response to the advertisement was from a man who said he had read the advertisement in the newspapers. This man said that young Mitchell could be found at a hotel, a small one, where he was paying $8 a week for a room. The father visited the hotel and his son was soon over at the Vanderbilt.

Mr. Mitchell explained that his son was well versed in music, playing nine instruments, but excelling on the piano. He said that just before his son decided that he could no longer work for his father in the Tonawanda Lumber Company, but must strike out for himself, the young man wrote a letter to his mother. The letter was on the stationery of the Saturn Club in Buffalo and he told her of his ambitions. He advised her not to worry and said that if she wished to communicate with him to advertise in THE NEW YORK TIMES. This letter went astray, said Mr. Mitchell.

TUBE FLOOD COST CITY 2,500,000 GALLONS

The city lost 2,500,000 gallons of water during the flooding of the Queensboro tunnel of the B. M. T. which disrupted traffic from July 12 to July 14, according to testimony yesterday at a hearing by the Transit Commission into the causes of recent water main breakage. Assistant Counsel Carleton S. Cooke represented the commission, while Arthur G. Peacock of counsel for the I. R. T., which was also flooded, headed a corps of attorneys.

The purpose of the investigation by the commission, which is being conducted by William C. Lancester, Chief Engineer, is to determine whether the subways are protected from possible recurrence, and to prepare regulations to govern in such emergency.

Edward G. Davis, Assistant Electrical Engineer for the I. R. T., said that at the high point of the flood there were 1,000,000 gallons of water in the tunnel. He said that the Interborough had studied the floods carefully and was prepared to cope with any in the future. He said that at one time the water was six and a half feet deep.

John W. McKay, Borough Engineer of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, estimated the water loss to the city during the flood. He said the breakage of a twenty-inch main at Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, which caused the flooding of the tunnel of the I. R. T. tracks, was unusual and not likely to happen again.

The hearing was adjourned until 10 A. M. today.

FINDS OLD TOMBSTONE IN RIVERSIDE DRIVE

For many years Reginald P. Bolton, consulting engineer and close student of Colonial and Revolutionary history, has been engaged in excavation for relics of that period, both privately and as a member of the New York Historical Society. His latest find—what he believes is a tombstone from an old New England graveyard — was discovered without any digging at all in Riverside Drive near his home at 638 West 158th Street.

The stone is a slab of gray schist about two feet long, twenty inches wide and three inches thick, and bears the inscription, "Here lies ye body of Charles, son of Mr. Jabez Crocker Jr., and Mrs. Mary, his wife, who died Jan. 13, Anno Domine"—with the latter part of the date broken off save a "0" at the end. Mr. Bolton said last night that it bore designs around the edge and over the inscription similar to those employed on headstones in New England by English settlers.

Mr. Bolton found the stone on Wednesday night as he was taking an evening stroll. Its place in the middle of the roadway with several portions broken off, suggested to him that it had been thrown from an automobile.

Unable to account for it in any other way, he has built up the theory that some motorist touring through New England came upon a Colonial graveyard and wishing to bring back a souvenir, took the stone to the city. Then, according to the surmise, the pillager of the grave decided that an apartment house was no place to keep such a relic and got rid of it by night by throwing it from his car.

Mr. Bolton has advertised his discovery in the lost and found columns in the hope that some remaining member of the Crocker family will come forward to claim it. He believes the date of the stone is 1750.

Bell, President of the closed Carnegie Trust Company, filed with the People's Savings and Trust Company of Pittsburgh today, showed that the banker had suffered financial losses of about $10,900,000 during the past five years. The report covered Bell's assets and liabilities and was for the information of creditors.

SAYS KNAPP WED IN MARCH

Baltimore Newspaper Asserts He Quickly Abandoned Bride.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 6 (AP).—The Baltimore Evening Sun prints a copyright story today that Philip Knox Knapp, former Cornell student and army aviator who is wanted for the murder of Louis Penall, Hempstead (L. I.) taxicab driver last July 4, was married to a Baltimore girl last March.

Mrs. Knapp, according to The Evening Sun, was Miss Mary Tabb, 24 years old. She is quoted as saying that Knapp was introduced to her by a family friend and that they were married after a two weeks' courtship. She lived with him for two weeks in Philadelphia. Soon after returning home for a visit at the end of that time she received a letter from him saying their marriage was a mistake. He gave religious differences as the reason.

Steck's Recount Gain Now Is 208.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—With the Senate Elections Subcommittee's recount in the Iowa Senatorial contest half completed, Daniel F. Steck, the Democratic contestant, had made a gain of 208 in uncontested ballots tonight on the face of an unofficial calculation. The official tabulation issued today by the committee covering the recount in thirty-seven counties out of the seventy-eight in which paper ballots were used, gave Steck 140,907 and Brookhart 142,061 uncontested votes, while 665 Steck and 2,368 Brookhart ballots had been contested.

KLAN PARADE FAILS TO WORRY CAPITAL

46 TRAINLOADS ARE COMING

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Every precaution is to be taken by the police to prevent any disorder that may result from the parade of the Ku Klux Klan in this city on Saturday. Nothing has developed to indicate that any attempt at hostile demonstration against the Klansmen will be made.

Estimates as to the number that will take part in the parade vary from 5,000 to 30,000, and the influx of visitors is expected to reach at least 60,000.

The police do not expect to have any trouble in handling the crowds. A general order disposing of the force for the day was issued tonight. It does not provide for suspension of street car traffic either on or across the route of the parade, although cars entering the thoroughfare at intersections will be required to stop and await a favorable opportunity to pass without interference with the marchers.

Word was received here tonight that in addition to the forty-six special trains that have been chartered to bring Klansmen to Washington a large number of members of the organization will come from near-by States in automobile caravans. Advices reaching here from Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Pennsylvania state that the roads are crowded with autoombiles bearing Klansmen bound for Washington.

Of the special trains engaged by Klansmen, fifteen will come over the Baltimore & Ohio system, twenty-five over the Pennsylvania and three each over two roads leading into Washington from the South. There is a likelihood that five additional specials may be run by the Baltimore & Ohio road, thus bringing the total to fifty-one.

Klansmen specials destined for Washington have either started or are being made up at Cleveland, Toledo, Columbus, Pittsburgh and Johnstown, as well as other points nearer the capital.

L. A. Mueller, Grand Kleagle of the Klan for the District of Columbia, who conceived the idea for the parade, surrounded by his lieutenants, worked on the details of the parade from early this morning. He barred all strangers and denied admission to newspaper men.

Many women, members of the families of resident and visiting Klansmen, will appear in Saturday's parade and take part also in the ceremonies that will be held at the Sylvan Theatre in the Washington Monument lot, it was said tonight.

Just outside of the city, in Virginia, a fiery cross will be illuminated, it was said. This feature of the Klan ceremonial was originally planned for the Sylvan Theatre, which is not far from the White House, but was banned by the Federal authorities, who feared that such a display might excite the animosities of persons hostile to the Klansmen.

ROB I. R. T. BOOTH OF $279.

Negro and White Man May Be the Same That Looted 96th St. Station.

A negro and a white man, each armed with a pistol, held up Cohn Saunders, the ticket agent on the southbound side of the Thirty-fourth Street end of the Pennsylvania Station of the Inerborough subway last night shortly before the collection train arrived near midnight, and escaped with $279. While the engro menaced the agent with his pistol, the white man opened the safe, took the day collections amounting to $222, the night collection of $24 and $23 from the change drawer.

The pair then thrust the agent into a corner of the ticket booth and ran out just as several men came up to buy tickets. The collection train soon arrived and the police of the West Thirtieth Street station started a search for the robbers. It was thought that they might have been the same pair who during the evening ruch on Monday held up the ticket agent at the Ninety-sixth Street subway station.

HALT JERSEY BRIDGE PLANS.

Permission Denied for Spans Over Passaic and Hackensack Rivers.

The Newark Chamber of Commerce received word yesterday from the New Jersey Board of Commerce and Navigation that permission had been denied to the State Highway Commission to construct new bridges over the Passaic and Hackensack Rivers to form links in a New York-New Jersey highway with the opening of the vehicular tunnel.

The Newark Chamber of Commerce and the New York Towboat Exchange opposed the construction of the bridges, asserting they would menace navigation on the two rivers.

FIGHTS COST REPORT AS POSTAGE BASIS

WANTS 1919 RATES BACK

Calls Higher Basis for Advertising Matter Unfair Discrimination.

The Postoffice Department's cost ascertainment report, which furnished the basis for the higher postal rates effective on April 15, was erroneous "in its method of allocation and in the conclusions which it reached as to the proper rates," according to Arthur J. Baldwin, President of the National Publishers' Association, who cited the deficiencies of the report to the Postal Rate Commission at its hearing in the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday morning. Mr. Baldwin held that the report should be regarded as a "fact-finding rather than a cost ascertainment report" and admitted that it was "a wonderfully constructive and enlightening document."

"As a fact-finding report, it did determine the pro rata use of the postal services by various classes," said Mr. Baldwin, "but such a principle is not recognized by any rate-making body. If such a principle were recognized, then a carload of coal would pay the same freight as a carload of silk, and a night letter telegram would pay the same rate per word as a fast day telegram."

Mr. Baldwin said that he believed some of the evils of the second-class mails could be remedied by restoring the rates to the basis in effect on July 1, 1919, but with the requirement that each piece of each issue of any publication, except those enjoying free-in-county privilege, should pay a minimum charge of ¼ cent a copy.

Would Stop Discrimination.

Another contention by Mr. Baldwin was that the postal rates should not discriminate against advertising matter in favor of straight reading matter sent by second-class mails. To illustrate his point he read an extract from a magazine short story which Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee immediately denounced as obscene, asserting that the matter should have been barred from the mails.

Mr. Baldwin read the article from a magazine he did not name but which he said he had bought on a news stand yesterday morning. In one hand he held the opening page of the suggestive story and in the other a picture of a bathtub illustrating an advertisement. He asked why the bathtub advertisement that spread information of a modern health-giving convenience should not enjoy the same rate as the obscene matter.

Mr. Baldwin maintained that advertising was the "lifeblood of the country," and cited the history of the bathtub in support of that contention. The first bathtub, he said, was introduced in 1842 in Cincinnati by William Thompson. The innovation was at once the subject of a heated controversy in the medical profession. Philadelphia passed an ordinance banning the bathtub and Boston quickly followed suit. It was not until the Administration of President Buchanan that the first bathtub was installed in the White House, he said.

"Then everybody who visited the White House went to see the bathtub," said Mr. Baldwin. "Today 1,000,000 bathtubs are sold annually by twenty-one concerns. Now, who sold them? Advertising."

Calls Zone Rates Taxation.

Discussing the zone system of rates, Mr. Baldwin was asked by Senator Moses, the Chairman of the Commission, if he regarded the postal rates as a form of taxation or as a charge for service. The witness said he considered the zone rates a system of taxation.

"I cannot see, granting all you say is true," suggested Senator McKellar, "that the Government should furnish transportation free for advertising. It is perfectly evident to any fair-minded man that the zone rate has come to stay. There is no more chance of getting it changed than of flying to heaven. Now, since that is true, what means can the Congress adopt to give you the best service at the lowest rates! We want your views."

Mr. Baldwin made a number of recommendations, but before so doing he attacked the special rates granted to 6,120 of the so-called non-profit-making publications. These, he said, were mailed second class at the rate of 1½ cents a pound and in some cases average 100 to the pound. He admitted that many of the publications were worthy and filled a want, but he believed they should not enjoy a special rate which invited them to clutter up the mails and help increase the Post Office Department's deficit.

Mr. Baldwin called attention to the cost ascertainment report as applied to rural routes and showed that if the figures were applied to the actual number of pieces of different classes of mail handled the cost to the Government would be 1.92 cents for each piece of first-class mail; 1.93 cents for each piece of second-class mail; 3.51 cents for each piece of third-class, and 2.70 cents for each piece of fourth-class matter.

He further attacked the cost ascertaining report as a basis for postal rate making and by a detailed analysis of the circulation figures of many of the members of the National Publishers' Associations showed that, regardless of the methods of allocation "of these unreasonable charges to second-class matter," a profit actually was paid to the Government by many publications.

Mr. Baldwin explained that he previously had submitted figures showing that the Government's profit in 1923 for handling The Saturday Evening Post was $251,759.86 and The Ladies Home Journal $250,689.39.

Questions Re-entry Ruling.

In course of the testimony of B. A. Mackinnon, circulation director of The Pictorial Review, Senator McKellar asserted his belief that the Postoffice Department was violating the spirit of the Postal laws of 1917 by granting to large periodicals privileges of mailing at "re-entry points." He said such a practice practically nullified the zone rate, and suggested that an authoritative legal opinion be sought as to the right of the Postoffice Department to make such a ruling.

He declined to be drawn into an argument with publishers' representatives after adjournment of the hearing, on their contention that the re-entry mailing plan resulted in more revenue to the Government, saying he was merely interested in the legal aspect of the question. He suggested that the commission might consider a proposal to legalize the plan if it were found to be illegal.

On behalf of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, Elisha Hanson, legal representative, submitted at the request of Senator McKellar a statement of services performed by the Postoffice Department, "the cost of which cannot, under any proper theory of accounting, be equitably assessed against the paying senders of the mail." The cost of those services, as itemized by Mr. Hanson, included:

Rural free delivery	$87,000,000
Star routes	12,500,000
Government mail	6,572,000
Favored publications having preferential rates, including the so-called non-profit-making publications	15,000,000
Free transportation of literature for the blind	25,000
Foreign mails handled at low rates as fixed by treaties	5,000,000
Cost of C. O. D. registry, insurance, postal savings	22,000,000
Cost of handling Treasury savings accounts	225,000
Air mail (experimental)	2,500,000
Total	$150,822,000

Howard Davis, business manager of The New York Herald-Tribune, who testified before the Postal Rate Commission on Wednesday, was erroneously made to appear in THE TIMES as advocating a discontinuance of the zone rate. Mr. Davis favored continuance of that system.

The hearing will be continued this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

DU PONTS IN THE PROJECT

Standard Oil Also Concerned in Plans for New Engine and Cheaper Fuel.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. (AP).—A new motor and a new synthetic fuel which will revolutionize the automobile idnustry were annoucned today before the annual convention of the American Chemical Society.

Dr. T. A. Boyd of the General Motors Research Department, describing science's latest accomplishment in motor development, said that the engine was the most powerful of its type ever devised and that the fuel would yield fifty miles to the gallon.

Other claims for the innovations are that no gear-shift will be needed as the engine will operate at low speeds with virtually the same efficiency as at high speeds and that lack of flexibility, carbon trouble nad poisonous fumes will be eliminated, as the motor is more like a steam engine than an internal-combustion motor.

The engine, the speaker said, would be manufactured by the General Motors Company and installed in its five makes of cars.

The fuel, he said, would be manufactured by the du Pont Company and the gathering of the raw material and the distribution of finished product will be handled by the Standard Oil Company.

The synthetic fuel may be made from petroleum, coal or lignite. tI will be marketed under the trade name of "Synthol."

Charles F. Kettering, chief engineer of the General Motors organization, has been engaged for several years in developing a new type of automobile of light weight, which will be operated on fuel other than gasoline in the event of an oil shortage in this country. Reports as to the progress made in the manufacture of this new car have been encouraging and in conjunction with the manufacturer of the new fuel it is expected that not only the motor car manufacturers but also the oil companies will be able to supply the motor transportation needs of the nation in the event of an oil famine. The new automobile now being perfected is understood to weigh about 1,000 pounds, compared with an average weight of about 2,500 pounds for the automobile of the present day. It is reported that the Government's research bureaus are aiding the chemical and oil companies in carrying on their experiments.

The close working agreements among the three corporations which are carrying on the experiments, both in the motor and fuel fields, is brought about by the fact that the du Pont interests, which control the du Pont Chemical Corporation, also control the General Motors Corporation through ownership of a majority of the capital stock of the latter organization. The interest of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in the new arrangement comes through the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, which is controlled jointly by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the General Motors Corporation.

General Motors laboratories developed the famous tetraethyl fluid which gained prominence some months ago as a result of a controversy over the dangers in its manufacture and its consumption. The consumption of the product was prohibited in some States following the sudden deaths of several employes of the company manufacturing the product.

Tetraethyl, or ethyl gas as it was known to the public, according to its inventors, was credited with giving gasoline more power. Many of the larger oil companies immediately made contracts with the General Motors Corporation for supplies. At first the General Motors marketed its own production, but later it formed the new Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, which is jointly owned by the automobile manufacturers and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

According to the reports the latest fuel to be manufactured is much different from the tetraethyl gasoline now on the market, but it is understood that tetraethyl lead is one of the ingredients in the manufacture of the new fuel. Benzol is the base of the product and it can be made of coal, lignite and oil. It is understood that it will be marketed under the name of synthol. According to reports it burns very much differently from gasoline or any other motor fuel now used.

NEW ANTENNA HELPS IN RE-BROADCASTING

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug 6 (AP).—Termed by experts as revolutionizing the re-broadcasting of radio programs, a special selective antenna was put in operation for the first time tonight by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. Invented by Frank Conrad Assistant Chief Engineer of the company, the antenna is designed to pick up only signals from a certain direction, eliminating interference from the booster station.

The special antenna operated tonight was at KFKA, Hastings, Neb. Short wave lengths carried a musical program from KDKA at Pittsburgh to the Western station. Here it was intercepted on the special antenna and there amplified and put on the air again at the same wave length.

The antenna, said H. P. Davis, Vice President of the Westinghouse Company, makes possible the amplification of radio waves without changing the form or frequency.

"It is a real milestone in radio achievement," he said. "It provides the radio engineer with the thing he has been searching for to further his dream of making radio a practical, dependable method of communication over long distances which would not be accomplished without the use of so-called superpower."

He added that the new system made transmission dependable at great distances without loss of signal strength and free from static and other interference.

CROSSED AFRICA IN AUTO.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Bespattered with sand from the Sahara Desert, clay from the Niger, black earth from the Congo and yellow mud and sand from the South African veldt, a travel-worn six-wheeled motor car rolled into Paris this afternoon and down the Champs Elysées, astounding the occupants and chauffeurs of the smart-polished automobiles going and returning from the Bois de Boulogne.

At the wheel was Captain Delingette and beside him Mme. Delingette, an adventurous French couple who, accompanied only by a mechanic named Bonnaure, crossed Africa from north to south, from Oran to Capetown, in their lone car over unprepared and unexplored routes.

Leaving Colomb Bechar, south of Oran, Algeria, last November, the Delingettes reached Capetown in June, having covered 28,000 kilometers of desert, swamp, virgin forest, flooded rivers, lakes and veldt, passing partly through unknown and unexplored districts inhabited by tribes whose reception it had been apprehended might prove anything but friendly. Four army rifles and carbines slung on the side of the car handy for use showed that the party were prepared for any emergency.

Mme. Delingette, who now holds the record of being the first woman ever to have crossed the African Continent from one end to the other, had accompanied her husband on various expeditions previously, and they were both experienced African travelers. But when the Government entrusted Captain Delingette with a mission to study the practicability of establishing a roadway through the French possessions, and then southward as far as the Cape and the Captain announced that he would take his wife with him, all urged strongly that it was impossible for a woman to stand the physical fatigue and nerve strain and that she would prove a hindrance to the expedition. It was with difficulty that official sanction was finally obtained.

The party's adventures included sticking in the mud in the Niger district and waking up the following morning to find themselves in the centre of a vast lake formed by a flooded river. Once in South Africa the car was swept away by the angry torrent when crossing a ford.

ing men as the best means yet devised to arrive at justice between contending parties. The only alternative is industrial strife with its attendant waste and loss to the industry.

In spite of the terms of your letter and the breaking off of negotiations, I am hopeful that means will be found to compose the differences between us and avoid a suspension of production. Every consideration demands that this be done.

Yours very truly,
S. D. WARRINER,
Chairman, Anthracite Operators' Conference.

Lewis Withholds Comment.

"Mr. Warriner's change of position on relatively unimportant points is interesting, but I will withhold a reply until receipt of his letter," was Mr. Lewis's comment when a copy of the letter was shown to him.

The "change of position" referred to by Mr. Lewis was the statement of Mr. Warriner telephoned here from Lansford, Pa., on July 31, in which he said that the operators' subcommittee was acting under instructions from the whole industry in refusing all demands that might mean increased costs. In his latest letter Mr. Warriner declared "the operators' committee is no more bound by instructions than your committee is bound by the demands adopted by the Scranton convention."

As supporting his charge that the operators in the Negotiating Committee had power to make no concessions involving additional costs, Mr. Lewis, in his letter to Mr. Warriner, read at the last joint session on Tuesday, declared that Major W. W. Inglis, Chairman of the operators' Negotiating Committee, had made such an admission, which was widely published.

The miners are still of the view stated by Mr. Lewis, but the fact that Mr. Warriner has now assured the miners' chief that the operators are not bound by instructions leaves the way open for a possible resumption of negotiations. If the miners can be convinced that the operators' subcommittee has power to yield points and engage in what Mr. Lewis has termed a "bona fide" negotiation they may again be brought to meet the employers in conference.

COOLIDGE SUMMONS AIDS.

Calls Hoover and Sargent to Swampscott to Talk About Coal.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 6.—Attorney General Sargent will arrive at White Court tomorrow. Secretary Hoover will be a week-end guest, arriving here Saturday.

These two Cabinet members have been summoned by President Coolidge to discuss the coal situation and decide with the President upon the course the Administration will follow to bring an end to the dispute if a strike occurs on Sept. 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Secretary Hoover had planned to make the trip to Swampscott as a representative of the citizens of California, who want the President to go to San Francisco in September for a jubilee celebration. Mr. Hoover had not made final arrangements last night, as he must fit in his quick jump to the Summer White House with the meetings of the American Debt Commission, which is to open negotiations with the Belgian commission on Monday. It is possible that he will leave immediately after this meeting.

ILLINOIS COAL MINES OPEN.

Some Improvement Noted in Three Southern Counties.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The resumption of two Franklin and one Williamson County coal mine within the last few weeks and the announced plan to reopen three more Franklin and one Williamson County mine, with plans for doubling the force at another Williamson County coal mine, has brightened the horizon of the Southern Illinois coal field.

According to local mining men, the mine payroll for the last six months in Williamson, Franklin and Saline Counties has dropped 27 per cent. from the corresponding period in 1923, when mines were working nearly full time in the Summer months.

Franklin County has only had a 20 per cent. loss in payroll, going from $11,000,000 to less than $9,000,000.

Williamson County dropped from nearly $7,000,000 to a little less than $5,000,000, or 30 per cent., while Saline County dropped 37 per cent., going from $4,600,000 to $2,900,000.

Franklin County, normally employing nearly 16,000 men, has nearly 6,000 at work, with another 4,000 just resuming work or slated to go back to the mines soon. Williamson County, normally employing nearly 12,000 men, has less than 3,000 at work, with prospects of about another 1,000 back at work within another week. Less than one-third of Saline County's 7,000 miners are working, or have prospects of work very soon.

Although the number of mines working in Franklin County had dropped from twenty-two in July, 1923, to ten in July, 1925, the production of coal for July, 1923, of 931,906 tons, has only gone down to 900,000 tons. This was due to consolidations of smaller mines and the abandonment of others.

URGES BUYING COAL NOW.

Commissioner O'Malley Acts to Avert Probable Shortage Here.

Edwin O'Malley, Commissioner of Public Markets, issued a statement yesterday urging the public to buy coal now and avoid the high prices which might result from the anthracite coal strike threatened for Sept. 1. The statement was in response to the Mayor's suggestion that Mr. O'Malley and the Police Department survey the coal situation here.

"The people of New York," the statement said, "are again face to face with a situation which may become a very serious one. The state of affairs in the Winters of 1922 and 1923 should be a warning to the people now to avoid the hardships, with possible sickness and even death, resulting from a shortage of coal. There are several outstanding advantages derived from early purchasing.

"The first is the low price at which it is sold in the year. In April coal is cheapest, and the advance in price about 25 cents per ton per month until Fall, so that the longer people wait the more they have to pay. July and August are the quietest months in the coal industry and is an excellent time in which to buy. We should remember that a strike or even the mere threat of one is often but an excuse to 'jack up' the price, and by waiting the people only put themselves at the mercy of the dealers. The mine owners and operators are not concerned about the public welfare; they are interested only in profits.

"Furthermore, the miners would benefit by this early purchasing, because it would insure them steadier employment. Where they are employed but for a few months, that is, when the rush comes for deliveries of coal late in the year, they naturally demand a higher rate of pay, which, if the mine owners refuse to pay, may result in a strike. But were the miners assured of steady and continuous employment, they would be satisfied with lower wages.

"It should also be remembered that late in the year there is a shortage, very often, of freight cars. Many are used in the Fall of the year for carrying grain, corn, fruit and other commodities.

"Also the railroads prefer to ship coal, say to Canada and the lake regions, so that the cars may return loaded with iron and other material from these places for the blast furnaces of Pennsylvania and other destinations, thus giving the railroad a better return on its rolling stock by getting paid for a longer haul in both directions instead of the short haul to New York, with the return of empty cars to the mine.

"Then there is the danger of adverse weather conditions retarding the delivery of coal in Winter. We have snow and blizzards; the harbor may be full of ice, preventing the lightering of floats on which the coal cars are carried across the Hudson River; the railroads may be tied up; and the coal is often frozen in lumps, so that it cannot be screened, and we have to receive the dirt and whatever may be frozen to it, which cheats us out of our proper weight or allowance of coal and represents a better profit to the dealer.

"With all these advantages accruing from the early purchase of coal by the people, it is hard to see why they refrain from doing what is so obviously for the benefit of all concerned—except the mine owner and operator, for his gain is our loss. Yet it is always lamentable that when Winter comes we will have people frantically calling up the coal man and begging him for anything resembling coal that he can give them. The necessity for proper heating is next in importance to food, and if the people of this city, after being cautioned and warned now of the seriousness of the coal situation, do not look out for theim own welfare in time, they must later blame only themselves."

Mines Rush Coal Production.

HAZLETON, Pa., Aug. 6 (AP).—"Get out the coal," is the slogan of the anthracite operators of the Lehigh field since negotiations for a new wage agreement were broken off. It was learned today that efforts would be made to produce as great a tonnage as possible for the remainder of the month. The present wage contract expires Aug. 31. Mining companies are going after coal that can be reached quickly and are not doing anything to develop tracts that will not bring immediate yields.

ment do a worse thing for the country than allow it to be plunged into a struggle which must throw back for months, perhaps years, any chance of revival?" Then came the first big demonstration of the day.

Pictures Suffering in Strike.

Mr. Baldwin then discussed what the strike would mean. Speaking from his own experience with deep feeling he said:

"Not the men's leaders but the rank and file would suffer in such a stoppage as this. I have seen this kind of trouble at close quarters. I have seen works closing down and I have lived among people with works closing under paralysis following stoppage of the coal trade. It is not a thing which I am going by any action of mine to inflict on the innocent people of this country if there is any honorable way out of it."

Mr. Baldwin came to the inquiry which the Government had instituted and why he had adopted it. There had been many inquiries in the last few years into the mining industry, but little or no action taken on them. It was a hit at Lloyd George, who declined to carry out the nationalistic recommendation of the Sankey Commission, and the Labor members swung around to face him as he sat just across the gangway and snarled at him.

"Then I was told," went on the Premier, "that the coal industry was my baby and I had got to look after it, to which I very obviously replied, if it was mine, it was illegitimate."

The House laughed itself back to good humor, and Mr. Baldwin explained how he thought it a real duty to inquire into the economic possibility of improving the industry before deciding a reduction of the low wages paid was necessary.

"I think it is a sad climax of the evolution of popular government that men who have a great deal to gain by progressive democracy allow themselves to be deflected from natural evolution, to take a course directly against everything for which democracy stands. I don't know if such a policy is endorsed in all its implications by the whole Labor Party. If that be so, I don't see how constitutional government can live."

Deep cheers from his supporters greeted the Premier's protest and Labor moved uneasily as he concluded in still graver tones:

"I have done my utmost in the last year or two, from deepest conviction, to secure industrial peace in this country, and I have done it because I believe anything else will lead to disaster in that it is only under peace that we can produce in this country for our dense population and enable them to reach such a degree of comfort and prosperity as every one of us desires they should reach. But let me say this in conclusion: It is a matter of the will, and just as the will to peace can bring peace so the will to strife can bring strife. And if the will to strife should temporarily overcome the will to peace, and it would only be temporarily in this country, and if we were again confronted with a challenge of the nature I have described, let me say that no minority in a free country has ever yet coerced the whole community. The community will always protect itself, for the community must be fed and it will see that it gets its food.

"I am convinced that if the time should come when the community has to protect itself with the full strength of the Government behind it, the community will do so and the response of the community will astonish the force of anarchy throughout the world. I say this entirely in the spirit in which John Bright many years ago warned people about the danger of delaying reforms. I say it merely as warning and I know I am stating what is a deep fundamental widespread instinct and the belief of a vast majority of the great and free people who inhabit the country."

"I think the Government has done all it can do. I am not unaware of all the criticisms passed on me, but it is very much easier to be rattled into a fight than rattled into peace."

The Premier paused and turned to face the Labor Party immediately across the house. He had finished with the defense of his actual policy. Now came the serious constitutional issue involved in the events of the last few days.

"We were confronted last week," he said, "with a great alliance of trade unions who had the power and the will to inflict enormous and irreparable damage on the country. Apparently they had some deliberate and avowed policy to force a stoppage of this kind regardless of suffering."

The Premier's stern words produced a sensation on the Labor benches. Cries of "No!" arose, and the members swayed back and forth like reeds in a storm. From the Ministerial benches came cheers. Mr. Baldwin went steadily on:

"I speak in my position of responsibility as first Minister to the Crown.

MacDonald Replies to Premier.

Ramsay MacDonald sprang to his feet to reply to the Premier, and swinging around continually to appeal to his supporters behind him, he took up the challenge. He reviewed the Cabinet's handling of the present dispute, finding it amiss at many points. He placed special censure on the way the mine owners had posted notices, thereby mobilizing against them public opinion of all classes, sections and parties, and he went on to contend the trades unions in general believed the miners in fighting their own battle against reduction of wages, were fighting the cause of the wage earner in general.

Mr. MacDonald gave way to Lloyd George, who spoke under the disadvantage of having his bitter enemies of the Labor Party almost sitting beside him, and again and again his argument was broken by angry trade unionists shouting taunts across the narrow gangway. He began by criticizing caustically the terms under which the Government was granting a subsidy, asking what expectation it had that the whole mining industry could be reorganized by next May and what control it had over it during the period of truce.

"The trouble with the present proposal," he said, "is that it is nationalization in the worst form. It guarantees wages and profits without any control, limit or restrictions."

With a few gibes at the Home Secretary for his brave words against the Reds and his surrender to men who were boasting they had forced the Government's hand by direct action, Lloyd George concluded with a straight question to the Prime Minister: "Are you quite sure that on that matter it was really you who had governed?"

A little later a dramatic turn was given to the debate by Robert Smillie, veteran leader of the coal miners. As he rose the benches filled quickly to hear what the man who fought so many fights would say in the electric situation. But he had no desire to add fuel to the fire. Standing with his broad, bent shoulders among his labor colleagues, he had only kind words for the Prime Minister. He regretted questions of anarchy had been brought in, he said. He was sure there was something on the human side which had appealed to Mr. Baldwin and he felt he must have realized what a reduction in wages would have meant to the miners' women and children, and so decided to take the course he did.

Churchill Hints at Labor Curb.

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP).—Winston Spencer Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, ending the debate for the Government, said he had listened to speeches from every quarter of the House, but that he had heard no effective objection to the course the Government had taken. The Government, the Chancellor asserted, had followed a precedent set in 1921. This was an allusion to a subsidy of £10,000,000 which the Lloyd George Government granted the mining industry in the dispute between the miners and the mine owners during that year.

There was no danger whatever, Mr. Churchill went on, of the bottom being forcibly driven out of the coal market in consequence of the system the Government had adopted. The Government's plan was a more thrifty one than that of the Government of Mr. Lloyd George in 1921.

The Chancellor dilated on the challenge to the community from the trade unions. He said there was a growing disposition among the trade unions to use the exceptional immunities they possessed under the law, not for the purpose of ordinary trade disputes, but in the pursuit of far-reaching political and economic aims. An attempt to hold up the whole community by a threat to cut off vital supply services and the employment of such a threat as a political weapon, which had been increasingly apparent of recent years, was a grave fact which would require profound and continuous attention by Parliament. Mr. Churchill stated incidentally he had no intention for the present of proposing any additional taxation to meet the mine subvention.

James J. Davis, American Secretary of Labor, who came here especially from Dublin for the purpose, was an interested auditor of the debate from the distinguished strangers' gallery. In the course of the evening Mr. Davis was introduced to a number of prominent Members of Parliament, including Ramsay MacDonald. Mr. and Mrs. Davis were dinner guests tonight of David Lloyd George and his son, Major Gwilym Lloyd George.

FRENCH LOSE HOPE OF MOROCCO PEACE

Abd-el-Krim's Demand That He Be Treated as an Equal Power Blocks Negotiations.

TRIBES ARE AGAIN WAVERING

Their Attitude Suggests That the Riff Leader Has Promised to Take the Offensive Soon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—What chances of peace with Abd-el-Krim there were two weeks ago seem to be slipping away. The Riff leader's insistence on being treated as an equal, and his demand for public negotiations at a general conference of all interested powers has changed the whole situation as the French saw it when Marshal Petain was in Morocco.

During these past weeks French effort has been to get the whole business settled out of court, but the Riff leader has found himself in a strong enough position militarily to demand that the settlement be made publicly. His argument is the telling one that if the French and Spanish are willing to recognize his independence they ought to be willing to do so at once by sitting down with his representatives to discuss peace conditions.

For the French Government that is a difficult situation to face. The Nationalist press has quickly countered any possibility of a compromise peace with a strong demand for a more energetic conduct of the war. To their advice one-half the Government is inclined to listen. The other half inclines rather to dread the disapproval of the Socialist conference, which meets in a few days, and can be counted on to demand open negotiations with Abd-el-Krim and full recognition of his independence.

From a military point of view the course the Socialist advise seems to those in charge of affairs the wiser. General Naulin has not enough men in Morocco to begin any large offensive. In eight weeks' time the rains begin which will make the transport of heavy guns and munitions impossible, while the light armed Riffs can harrass all French posts almost with impunity and continue propaganda among the tribes.

There seems little doubt now that though Abd-el-Krim began unofficial negotiations with the expectation of getting from them all he wanted, he has, since the Franco-Spanish accord was made, continued them solely with the object of gaining time until the rains begin. Whether he would have done so had the Franco-Spanish offer been made firmly and openly is one of many aspects of the situation which is causing a great deal of discussion in political circles in Paris. The Government is being charged by both sides with having mishandled the situation. The Nationalists are critical of all peace activities which have characterized these past weeks, while Socialists are denouncing the Government for having linked up with Primo de Rivera.

In official circles there is a decided change from the optimistic spirit which has been shown recently, for here no one deceives himself about this, that if the war continues it may last well into next year and prove a serious drain both on the financial and human resources of France.

Tribes Are Again Wavering.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

FEZ, Aug. 6.—The fairly quiet "siesta" during the present hot weather was broken today only by successful French expeditions relieving Tafrant, Fez el Bali and a small post near Kifane. An important propaganda war is being waged by the French and Riffians. The aim of both sides is the control of three big tribes who live in the districts covering Ouezzan and Taza.

The Masmooda tribe, numbering 2,000 warriors, inhabit the area from the Loukkos River through the mountains to the south on both sides of the main road leading west from Ouezzan. Abd-el-Krim caused the northern faction to revolt, their defection being chiefly responsible for the recent menace to Ouezzan. For the moment it seemed the French action with tanks at Azjen would succeed in bringing the rebels back and holding other members of the tribe in line. Abd-el-Krim, however, must be taking strenuous measures to keep them, for today it is reported violent Riffian propaganda and threats of reprisals are making the Masmooda tribe hesitant again.

The other two tribes, Thouls and Branes, the former with 2,000 warriors and the latter with 5,000 both inhabit the district just north and northwest of Taza. Their complete defection early in July brought the front back within eight miles of the railroad in this region and caused the evacuation of the civilian population of Taza. Here two French flying columns have been actively pursuing a vigorous policy, similar, on a smaller scale, to Sheridan's in the Shenandoah Valley and Sherman's march to the sea—burning crops and villages and spreading devastation through as much as possible of the regions the tribes abandoned when they joined Abd-el-Krim. The aim is by punishing them to bring them to terms, and as the tribesmen from the hilltops saw the clouds of smoke rising from their homes many began to weaken. The Thouls went so far as to open negotiations for return under the French wing. Today, however, their good intentions also are reported temporarily checked by even a greater fear of the Riffans. Abd-el-Krim has sent his regulars among these tribes, seized more hostages and warned the Thouls and Branes all their notables would be shot if they did not fight harder or showed signs of wavering.

The sudden change in the attitude of these three strategic tribes, separated as widely as Ouezzan and Taza, may be highly significant. But Abd-el-Krim cannot hold them indefinitely by hostages, threats and reprisals; he has got to have something stronger to offset fear of French reinforcements. Their changed attitude may be due to his promising he is going to start an offensive soon both at Taza and Ouezzan.

RUSSIAN TEXTILE UNIT IN BANK DEAL HERE

MOSCOW, Aug. 6 (AP).—The All-Russian Textile Syndicate has purchased this year $36,300,000 worth of cotton from the United States, part of which is already in transit, according to official information here. It is said the operations were financed by the Chase National Bank and the Equitable Company of New York.

Further negotiations looking to the consolidation of Soviet business connections in the United States are being carried on here by Reeve Schley, Vice President of the Chase National Bank, the Soviet Bank for Foreign Trade and the State Textile Syndicate.

Agreement in principle has been reached on numerous points regarding future commercial banking business between Russia and the United States, it is said. These agreements will be ratified when Mr. Schley returns to New York soon.

Mr. Schley, who, with a Mr. Fleming, a New York cotton man, has been here since Aug. 2, has investigated the conditions of the Russian cotton-growing area and the Russian textile industry. He expects to visit Leningrad and Nishni Novgorod before returning to New York.

A cable from Moscow on Aug. 2 announced the arrival there of Mr. Schley and Mr. Fleming, a cotton man connected with the Textile Commission, to negotiate with the All-Russian Textile Syndicate purchases of American cotton and the rehabilitation of the Soviet textile industry along technical lines employed in the United States.

Deputy Moves to Adjourn the Session to the Tiergarten.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—Reluctance of Germany's lawmakers to spend hot Summer afternoons discussing the Government's tax and tariff bills in the Reichstag almost led today to holding the parliamentary debate outdoors in the nearby Tiergarten. A Socialist speaker indignantly informed the presiding officer that since most of the Deputies were sitting out under trees in the Tiergarten instead of on the Reichstag benches he would move that the sitting be transferred thither. He suggested also that a sufficient number of loud speakers be provided to reach the inmost recesses of the big park.

The motion to emulate the open air sessions made fashionable at the Dayton trial was defeated largely through fear of the effect the broadcast oratory might have on the valuable fauna in the zoological gardens which form part of the Tiergarten.

He sent an especial benediction to Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago and the entire Chicago Diocese, briefly mentioning the forthcoming Ecclesiastical Congress there.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Georges Palante, Professor of Philosophy and author of many philosophical works, shot and killed himself at his home near Rennes yesterday.

According to his friends, the act was the logical consequence of his pessimistic attitude toward life and his belief that death was an avenue of escape. One of his queer theories that he was found of describing was "philosophical suicide," and he did not conceal the fact that some day he was likely to apply the theory to himself.

SEIZED AS GEM "FENCES"

Two Held Following Alleged Confession of Actor's Ex-Valet.

Two men were arrested yesterday on Staten Island charged with having received stolen goods as a result of the alleged confession by Louis Richards, former valet to Frank Tinney, who is under arrest charged with having stolen jewelry worth $3,000 from Miss Kathryn Ray, that he disposed of the goods to them for $500. The men are Edward Volkman, 28 years old, of 56 Fingerboard Road, Fort Wadsworth, and Philip Shevlin, 56 years old, of 1,156 Bay Street, Fort Wadsworth. They were arraigned beafore Magistrate Bridges in New Brighton Police Court and held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

Richards was arrested last week in Rochester when he was identified by a former member of the Music Box Revue as a valet who had disappeared last October simultaneously with a number of diamond rings and bracelets left in his care by members of the company.

Impoverished Clerk Shoots Woman for Breaking Their Friendship.

Jacob Simons, 57 years old, who says he was formerly wealthy but now is a clerk living at 608 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, fired two shots yesterday afternoon at Mrs. Etta Kronish, 32 years old, in the hallway outside of her apartment at 600 West 142d Street, wounding her in the back of the left hand. Pursued by tenants, Simons ran to Riverside Drive and 141st Street, where he was arrested by Patrolman McCormick of the Traffic Squad. He was taken to the West 152d Street Police Station, where he told the police he had shot Mrs. Kronish because she had broken off their friendship of several years.

Mrs. Kronish was taken to the Knickerbocker Hospital, where the bullet was removed, and then was permitted to go home. She denied having had any altercation with Simons. "He must have been drunk or crazy," she said. Simons was held on a charge of felonious assault.

Insane Patient Escapes.

The Brooklyn police broadcast last night an alarm for Waino Wasarenen, 25 years old, an inmate of the Brooklyn State Hospital for the Insane, who slipped away from a guard while walking about the hospital grounds on Clarkson Avenue. The patient was described as harmless.

BANK OF ENGLAND CUTS MONEY RATE

OPTIMISM FOLLOWS SHOCK

London Feels Country Is Improving Financially and Doubts Our Money Will Leave There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Financial circles here were taken completely by surprise today when the directors of the Bank of England announced a reduction in the bank rate from 5 to 4½ per cent.

When the first shock of surprise was past the effect was to arouse optimism and to cause a feeling of buoyancy in the "City" money market. The Stock Exchange, which was quite unprepared for the action from the Bank of England, showed its satisfaction in an immediate rise in stock prices, particularly gilt-edge stocks and English railway securities.

The news aroused enthusiasm on Change and caused some excited bidding.

The general impression here seems to be that the reduction in the bank rate means England's financial position is improving. In some banking quarters it is pointed out that the main effect of a high bank rate is to keep foreign money—especially American—in London, but it is believed in this case that the reduction of the bank rate will not cause that money to leave here immediately, since much of it was lent on time deposit and hence cannot return to New York or elsewhere until its time is up.

Estimates vary on how much American money is now in London—some reckon it as high as $400,000,000, but this probably is exaggerated.

The effect of reduction of the bank rate on market discount quotations was minimized by the fact that clearing banks while lowering their deposit rates by a full one-half per cent—from 3 to 2½ per cent.—only reduced the rate at which they lend to discount market by a quarter of one per cent.—3¾ to 3½ per cent.

When this was realized the discount rate stiffened a little. The margin between the bank rate and the market rate was thus narrowed from three-fourths to half of one per cent.

Money was obtainable at 3¼ per cent. in the afternoon from lenders outside the group of clearing banks, since the bank return indicated that market balances had benefited from the recent Government disbursements.

It was promptly realized here that the reduction of the bank rate would probably aid Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill in defending the much criticized subsidy to the coal industry whereby the coal strike was averted last week.

Attributes Cut to Gold Standard.

"The reduction in the bank rate from 5 to 4½ per cent. is a direct outcome of the restoration of the gold standard. It will be remembered that in March the rate was raised from 4 to 5 per cent., following an advance in the New York rate from 3 to 3½ per cent. It was felt that it was wise, as a measure of precaution, to widen the margin between the New York and London interest rates, in view of the possible early effects of restoration of the gold standard.

"When, at the end of April, the restoration was decided upon, there were widespread fears that a large efflux of gold would take place because of depression of our export industries, and that a rise in the bank rate to 6 or 7 per cent. would ensue very quickly. For a week or two there was a substantial outflow of gold, but it soon was offset by an influx of metal from the various places.

"To date there has been a net influx since April 20 of 8,600,000 pounds. This inflow has caused surprises in many quarters, especially as six gold-exchanges—the American, Swiss, Dutch, Austrian, German and Swedish—stand below par, while the Swiss actually is below the gold exporting point.

"But it would not have occurred but for the wide margin between the interest rates here and New York, which has caused a considerable amount of American money to be invested here.

"Other foreign moneys have also sought investment in London but, as the state of exchanges indicates, less on account of the rates of interest than of the confidence now felt in the future of the pound sterling."

See No Change Imminent Here.

The reduction from 5 per cent. to 4½ per cent. in the Bank of England's discount rate, announced yesterday, put a stop to rumors in Wall Street that the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate would be advanced in the near future from its present 3½ per cent. level. The New York bank has cooperated closely with the Bank of England to maintain stability since the British return to the gold standard late last April, and an advance here, following the British reduction, it was pointed out, would be a disturbing influence in international finance. On the other hand, with money rates in New York generally showing a firm tone in advance of the Autumn business requirements, conditions do not call for a reduction in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate, so that bankers in general believe that the present New York rate will be continued indefinitely.

The Bank of England's action was interpreted by New York bankers to mean that business stimulation was regarded as more important in London than further protection to sterling exchange, which has been steady at a virtual parity for months. The industrial depression in England, the threatened coal strike and other labor troubles have been called to the attention of the Government in increasingly insistent terms recently. It is expected that the easier money rates will contribute to a renewal of industrial activity and help British trade, both domestic and foreign.

Since the British return to the gold standard, the Bank of England has imported large quantities of gold, and exports of gold have practically ceased. Gold reserves have been built up to their highest point in history, and as a result exchange has held steady and large balances have been drawn to London from various parts of the world, including the United States, as American banks found they could get a better return on their funds in London than in the New York market.

Bankers here cited the economic law that "hard" money aids exchange through the attraction of funds, while "easy" money aids trade. Business interests in England have complained that suffering has been caused to them by the drastic financial policy under the gold standard. As New York bankers see it, the point has now been reached where the Bank of England considered its technical position so strong that it could risk developments in the exchange situation in order to help business. In some quarters also it was believed that fears of large exports of gold should the Bank rate be reduced were unjustified.

Bankers here said that if the general bank rates in London should be reduced to maintain their previous ratio to the Bank of England discount rate considerable American balances now held in London probably would be recalled to this country. Bankers' bills in London have been quoted at about 4¼ per cent. during most of the time that the Bank of England rate has been 5 per cent. If the general bank rate level in London is reduced appreciably it is declared American banks will find it more profitable to place their money here.

Will Watch Sterling Exchange.

It was in this connection that bankers emphasized the unlikelihood of any advance in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate. Since money finds its way to the best market, an undue flow away from London and to New York might result from an advance here. This is not to be desired, as the chief aim of the American banking world now is to reduce this country's excess stocks of gold through exports of the metal, while England desires to build up its holdings of gold to protect the country's position under the gold standard.

A close watch will be kept on the movements of sterling exchange to detect any effect traceable to the bank rate cut. It is generally believed, however, that there will be little variation in the exchange rates, in view of the strong financial position of Great Britain. Even the seasonal purchases which usually tend to depress sterling in the Autumn are not expected to be felt to any great extent this year. Purchases of wheat and cotton are chief factors in this situation almost every year. This year, however, the European wheat crops are so large that little, if any, buying in America will be necessary, and cotton has been bought ahead to such a great extent that Autumn purchases are expected to be smaller than normal.

TRIES TO BOARD TRUCK, SLIPS AND IS KILLED

Trying to catch a ride on a truck at Grand and Johnson Avenues, Jersey City, yesterday, Robert Bridges, 28 years old, of 110 Grant Avenue, that city, slipped under the wheels and was killed. William Dzunsky, the driver of the truck, of 362 Gordon Street, Perth Amboy, was arrested.

The truck was heading toward the Pennsylvania Railroad ferry landing, and as Bridges, also headed that way on the sidewalk, signalled for a ride to the driver and received a nod of assent he ran for the truck. He missed the step and tumbled to the pavement, the left rear wheel passing over him.

Joseph Mossat, 22 years old, a waiter at Castle's Hotel in Long Beach, L. I., was killed early in the morning when the car on the running board of which he was riding struck a telegraph pole at East Merrick Road and St. John's Place, Freeport, L. I.

Mossat and another waiter got a lift from a motorist. The other waiter sat with the driver, while Mossat stood, and when the car hit the pole was hurled fifteen feet, dropping on his head. The other waiter and the driver were not injured. The driver left after the accident without giving his name.

Horace Sherer, 75 years old, was killed by an automobile bus while crossing New Brunswick Avenue at Nattabo Place, Perth Amboy. Sherer formerly lived in the Bronx and made his home with Mrs. Frieda Balderdree at 475 New Brunswick Avenue, Perth Amboy. The driver of the bus was not held.

Riding on his cousin's truck in Jersey City, Bernard Pertance, 13 years old, of 597 Grand Street, Jersey City, was seriously injured. He was on the seat and received a fractured skull when the truck struck a depression in the roadway, lurched and threw him into the rear of the truck on his head.

Alfonso Dembler, 6 years old, playing in front of his home at 28 East Ninth Street, Jersey City, was struck by an automobile driven by Daniel Schwartz of 295 Third Street. He was taken to the City Hospital with possible internal injuries and a fractured right hip.

Empire Steel Accepts Settlement.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 6 (AP).—The British Empire Steel Corporation today advised Premier Rhodes that it had accepted the Nova Scotia Government's proposals for a settlement of the provincial coal strike, which has tied up production since last February. The miners yesterday voted to return to work under the Government's proposals.

lunch tomorrow. She will at once go to sleep at the hotel on the wharf opposite where the tug Morinie is moored. At 8:30 o'clock in the evening she will go aboard the tug, which will start at once for Cape Griz-Nez, where the American girl will plunge into the sea from the rocks at the foot of the lighthouse. Miss Harrison, who, as on her previous attempts, will be accompanied by the tug Alsace, will make her start from Griz-Nez Beach.

Boulogne is greatly excited over the double-header Channel swim tomorrow. It has seen many a Channel contestant start out across the turbulent waters from Griz-Nez in recent years, but never two women with the records of Miss Ederle and Miss Harrison struggling side by side toward the English coast.

A small army of photographers, movie operators, sports writers and prominent sportsmen have arrived here and the two tugs will be crowded with all who can find space aboard them.

Night Scared Mlle. Sion.

DUNKIRK, France, Aug. 6 (AP).—Jane Sion, the French woman swimmer who barely failed to swim the English Channel Tuesday, has returned home and will not try again before next year.

She feels that her record for women swimmers in approaching nearer the English shore than any other who has attempted the difficult Channel crossing is enough reward for this season. Mlle. Sion eagerly denied that cold or fatigue overcame her Tuesday night, although her companions gave that as a reason for her giving up the struggle.

"It was a stroke of 'cafard,'" she said, using the soldier's term for discouragement, in explaining why she left the water.

"At 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon I was an hour ahead of Tiracocchi, who crossed in record time in 1923, and I swam courageously against the tide as long as daylight lasted, but when night began to envelop me a feeling of weary dejection came upon me and the thought that those lights on the English coast, which it almost seemed I could reach out and touch, would actually take three or four more hours to reach, froze me more than the water and I had no will to continue.

"The water was all right; it was not too cold. I still believe that I am capable of swimming the Channel, but night made me afraid, and darkness alone was responsible for my defeat."

BELGIANS TO MEET DEBT BOARD MONDAY

Refunding Discussion Is Expected in Washington to Last Two Weeks.

FRENCH MISSION DUE NEXT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The question of refunding Belgium's war debt to the United States will be taken up next Monday by the American and Belgian Debt Commissions.

This announcement was made today after a meeting of the American commission. The members of the Belgian commission, it was said, expected to remain here for about two weeks and had made arrangements to sail from New York on Aug. 22.

The meeting of the American commission was the first held in several months and the status of all of the debts owed to the United States by European nations which remain unfunded was reviewed. It is expected that France and Italy will send commissions to this country in September, although no definite dates for the initiation of negotiations have been set by these Governments. It is the hope of the American commission that tentative funding agreements with Belgium, France and Italy may be ready for submission to Congress when the next session begins in December.

No Rating Issue Raised.

The American commission has received no official word from Belgium asking that a different rating be accorded to loans made before the armistice on Nov. 11, 1918, than to the loans made after the armistice. In fact, the intimation was given recently that there was already an understanding among the Belgian and American officials that the entire debt of about $480,500,000 would be treated without consideration of contentions that former President Wilson agreed to relieve Belgium of payment of the pre-armistice loans and assess them against reparation collections from Germany.

It is understood that the Belgian delegates at Monday's meeting will place before the American commission their tentative proposals and all data dealing with economic and financial conditions in Belgium which may have a bearing upon the capacity of that little nation to meet its obligations. The one point established definitely at this time is that the American commission will insist that at least some payment, to be applied to the reduction of the principal amount of the debt, shall be made annually, immediately following the adoption of a funding agreement. This would not place a very heavy burden upon the debtor nation.

The question of interest payments must then be taken up. In the British compact Great Britain agreed to pay 3 per cent. interest for the first ten years and 3½ thereafter for fifty-two years, with the proviso that half of the interest might be delayed during the first five years and be welded with the principal amount of the debt.

In the cases of Belgium, France and Italy it is possible that a somewhat similar scheme may be suggested, with the interest, however, starting at a lower rate, possibly 2½ per cent., and the nations' being permitted to delay half or more of this interest during the first five or ten years.

French Mission Due in September.

PARIS, Aug. 6 (AP).—It is now virtually settled that the French mission which is to go to the United States to arrange a settlement of France's war debt will leave for Washington during the first fortnight of September.

The French Government has decided to treat the debt settlements with Great Britain and the United States as two distinct and separate undertakings, and that whatever may be the stage of the negotiations opened ten days ago at London between France and England in early September, the French mission will proceed to the United States.

ACCORD NEAR IN PARIS ON THE RUSSIAN DEBT

Tentative Basis Calls for New Bonds on Pre-War Loans—War Debt to Be Canceled.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Russia's offer to France for the repayment of pre-war debts is being considered by the French Government, and there seems to be a very good prospect that it will be accepted. Negotiations have been conducted by Deputy Dal Biez for France with Ambassador Krassin, and the basis for a settlement has been reached.

It must be remarked that in the negotiations the French take no account of the war debt to Russia. That debt was contracted in the common cause, and it is fully realized that it must be considered as simply wiped out.

The French interest is in behalf of the 4,000,000 holders of Russian bonds in this country who thus invested their money in Russian industrial ventures, railways and Government loans in the years before the war.

Russia proposes that new bonds be issued to take the place of the old ones, but at reduced capital value, and on these the interest will be guaranteed out of the Soviet budget.

The effect of such an arrangement in France, where one-tenth of the people are holders of Russian bonds, would be very great, and behind the apparently simple financial operation there lies a great amount of political activity.

SELLS 7 TUGS TO FORD.

Board Gets $42,500 Each for Ocean-Going Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—The Shipping Board authorized the sale to Henry Ford today of seven ocean-going tugs for $42,500 each.

A previous offer from the Detroit manufacturer for the tugs, which it is understood he intends to use in scrapping the 200 vessels recently awarded him by sale, was received today. It was for $40,000 each. This was rejected by the board, which then instructed the Fleet Corporation to negotiate with Mr. Ford on the higher figure.

The tugs have been idle for some time, and with their sale the board has only three left.

Buy for Cash
The Safe and Sane Way

FOR 67 years Macy's has bought only for cash, and sold only for cash. That is the method that prudent, thrifty shoppers prefer.

There are those, however, who practice little prudence and less thrift. To these self-indulgent souls, whose extravagance finds support in the instalment plan of buying, this warning uttered recently by Charles E. Treman, president of the Bankers' Association (as reported recently in the Evening Post), is addressed:

"One of our greatest economic abuses has become exaggerated. I refer to merchandising on the instalment plan. Mr. James, of the Federal Reserve Board, warned the public of the 'morphine of credit.' Certainly during the last year this morphine has been administered in large doses.

"Is it not time to put the brakes on spending money for unnecessary articles and for luxuries, before the money is earned? The members of this association can do much in discouraging this tendency."

Macy's applauds the suggestion. This store is doing all in its power to discourage this extravagance. Macy customers enjoy the comforting knowledge that they are not only benefitting themselves by saving through buying for cash, but that their safe and sane method is helping the nation's business to keep an even keel.

ORIGINAL BIXBY PLEA DISCLOSED IN FILES

WIDOW'S ADDRESS TOLD

Bay State Adjutant General Mentioned Her Five Sons in Report on Five Newhall Boys of Lynn.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The authenticity of the famous Lincoln letter to Mrs. Lydia Bixby of Boston after Lincoln had been informed she was the "mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle" seems to be established beyond shadow of a doubt by original records found in the files of the War Department.

Many "facsimiles" of the letter are available, but failure to locate the "original" had led some to doubt that Lincoln ever wrote such a letter and to wonder whether the copies were made from a forgery.

The records, made available today for the first time, include the original communication from John A. Andrew, the War Governor of Massachusetts, and William Schouler, who was the Adjutant General of Massachusetts in 1864, citing the case of Mrs. Bixby as being "remarkable," because, as they put it, she had sent all five of her sons into the Civil War and all of them had been killed.

General Schouler stated that Mrs. Bixby had come to his office at Boston and exhibited "five letters from five company commanders, and each letter informed the poor woman of the death of one of her sons."

The address of Mrs. Bixby is not given in any of the standard lives of Lincoln, which quote the Lincoln letter, but General Schouler's letter stated that she lived at 15 Dover Street Place, Boston.

The records do not show that "all" five of Mrs. Bixby's sons were killed in the war. Records so far uncovered do show that four of them served, that two of these were killed in battle, that a third was captured and died in a Confederate prison and that the fourth was honorably discharged and mustered out at Boston on Dec. 19, 1864, which was twenty-eight days after the date of the letter of Lincoln to Mrs. Bixby.

Andrew Suggested Bixby Letter.

Besides General Schouler's letter, the files also contain one from Governor Andrew in his own handwriting, dated Sept. 24, 1864, in which he said with regard to Mrs. Bixby:

"This is a case so remarkable that I really wish a letter might be written to her by the President of the United States such as a noble mother of five dead sons so well deserves."

From this it appears that the responsibility for the letter from Lincoln to Mrs. Bixby rested upon Governor Andrew.

The records further show that after hearing from Governor Andrew, the War Department wrote to Adjt. Gen. Schouler asking for the names of the five sons, that this request was complied with, and that Major Samuel Breck, then Assistant Adjutant General, in a report called attention to Governor Andrew's wish that such a letter be written to Mrs. Bixby.

The files disclose that not only the Bixby case, but also the service in the war of the five sons of Otis Newhall of Lynn, Mass., was called to the attention of Charles A. Dana, Assistant Secretary of War and late editor of The New York Sun, by Colonel James Allen Hardie, then Inspector General, and that Governor Andrew's recommendations were approved by Mr. Dana in a pencil notation.

The record shows that Governor Andrew cited the Newhall and Bixby cases to the War Department simultaneously and that not only he, but officers of the department, regarded bth cases as remarkable. The earliest letter in the record is a letter from Otis Newhall to Governor Andrew, written six months to the day ahead of the Lincoln letter to Mrs. Bixby.

Letter of Lynn Father of Five Soldiers.

The Newhall letter was as follows:

Governor Andrew:

I am about asking from the War Department for the honorable discharge of James O. Newhall of the late Eleventh Regiment, one of my sons who has recently been sent back to service from the hospital at Readiville, at which place he has been for some two months in consequence of wounds received in battle at Spottsylvania.

I ask for it for these reasons—he enlisted in December, 1861; was mustered into service early in January following, and went with others to recruit the Massachusetts 11th with the expectation of being mustered out with the regiment.

This expectation was seemingly made sure by an order issued by your excellency in July following assuring those who then went to recruit the old regiments that their term of service should expire with those regiments. This was done, but those who went before, and without bounty, and suffering the hardships of the Peninsular campaign in addition, were denied this boon.

Of the eight men who went to that regiment from this city at that time, he alone is remaining. The others were either killed in battle, died of disease or were discharged from service on account of wounds or other disability.

From the time he was mustered in service until he was wounded at Spottsylvania he was never absent from duty, never having spent an hour in hospital, but was, as I am informed by his Captain, a good soldier throughout, taking part in most of the battles of that gallant old regiment.

He is one of the five sons that went to sustain the honor of their country in the early part of the rebellion, and I cannot but take pride in referring to them as having performed their duty nobly and well.

Two of these remain at front. One was lost at the second battle of Bull Run, one other taken prisoner after being wounded in Battle of Wilderness in May last, and is now somewhere among the rebels, the other is the one referred to. None of whom, excepting the latter, having been at home during their entire period of service.

And now, Governor, I write to ask from you a word of recommendation to the proper authorities for his discharge. By doing which you will greatly oblige

OTIS NEWHALL.

P. S.—I would refer your Excellency to General Schouler and Hon. E. S. Davis at the State House to whom I am personally known.

The above letter is not the original one written by Newhall to the Governor, but is a copy that was made in the office of the Governor in 1864 and forwarded to the War Department.

Schouler Reply Brings Up Bixby Case.

Executive Department:
Boston, Sept. 24, 1864.

Will the Adjutant General please report whether by the rule adopted by the War Office this man comes within the category of those entitled to discharge under Order No. 28 of 1863?

J. A. ANDREW.

On the same date General Schouler reported to the Governor. Not the original, but a copy made in the Governor's office was sent by the Governor to the War Department, and it was in this report that General Schouler cited the case of Mrs. Bixby to Governor Andrew.

General Schouler's letter reads:

Adjutant General's Office,
Boston, Sept. 24, 1864.

His Excellency John A. Andrew, Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

Governor: In answer to your Excellency's inquiries, I have the honor to report that the case of James O. Newhall does not come within the rule adopted by the War Department in regard to General Order No. 28, Series of 1863. Only recruits who went into old regiments between the 21st of July and the 31st of December, 1862, are entitled to be mustered out when the tetrms of service of their regiments expire.

The statements made by Mr. Newhall in the enclosed letter I know to be true. He had five sons in the army and they have been good soldiers. I think, therefore, that he presents a strong claim for a favorable consideration of his application. Perhaps the Secretary of War would order the young man's discharge if he knew he was one of five brothers who have served faithfully, almost from the beginning of the rebellion.

Records of Mrs. Bixby's Sons.

Pardon me if I add a word in regard to a still more remarkable case than the one presented by Mr. Newhall. Your Excellency may remember that I had the honor two years ago to speak to you of a widow lady, Mrs. Bixby, in the middle walks of life, who had five sons in the Union Army, one of them was wounded at Antietam and was sent to a hospital in Baltimore or Washington.

She was very anxious to go and see him and your Excellency was kind enough to draw your check for $40 to pay her expenses, and she made her journey. The boy recovered and joined his regiment again.

About ten days ago Mrs. Bixby came to my office and showed me five letters from five company commanders, and each letter informed the poor woman of the death of one of her sons. Her last remaining son was recently killed in the fight on the Weldon Railroad.

Mrs. Bixby is the best specimen of a true-hearted Union woman I have yet seen. She lives now at 15 Dover Street. Each of her sons by his good conduct had been made a sergeant.

With great respect, I have the honor to be

WILLIAM SCHOULER,
Adjutant General.

Governor Andrew evidently retained the originals of the Otis Newhall and the General Schouler letter of Sept. 24, 1864, for his own files, and had copies prepared which he endorsed for the consideration of the War Department.

Pleas for Newhall and Bixby Sons.

Boston, Sept. 24, 1864.

I send these copies.

1st of letter to me by Mr. Otis Newhall of Lynn, Mass., father of five sons, all of whom entered the Union Army, one of whom was killed, one of whom is a prisoner held by the rebels, two of whom are at the front, asking for the discharge of the fifth son, who has once been wounded.

Under the circumstances, I should think that an exercise of the power to discharge at discretion would do good and be a grateful recognition of the claims of a patriotic family.

2d a report to me by the Adjutant General of Massachusetts on the case—in whih he mentions that a widow, Mrs. Bixby, who sent five sons to the army, all of whom have recently been killed. This is a case so remarkable that I really wish a letter might be written her by the President of the United States, such as a noble mother of five dead sons so well deserves.

JOHN A. ANDREW,
Governor of Massachusetts.

The Newhall and Schouler letters, as thus endorsed by the Governor, were received at the office of the Inspector General on Sept. 26, 1864, as shown by this notation made by Colonel Hardie at the time:

Respectively referred to the Adjutant General for report.

James A. Hardie, Col. Ins. Genl.
War Department, Sept. 26, 1864.

It went to the Adjutant General's office in the War Department the next day as shown by this notation:

"Received A. G. O., Sept. 27, 1864."

At this point there is a break in the record, which shows that after receiving Governor Andrew's endorsement and the two enclosures, Major Thomas M. Vincent, Assistant Adjutant General at Washington, on Oct. 1, 1864, wrote to General Schouler asking for the names of the Newhall and Bixby sons.

Letter to Which Lincoln Referred.

There is no copy of the Vincent letter on file, but the original of General Schouler's reply, dated Oct. 12, 1864, is there. This second Schouler letter is the one to which President Lincoln referred in his letter to Mrs. Bixby. It reads as follows:

Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
Boston, Oct. 12, 1864.

Major Thomas M. Vincent, U. S. A.
Washington, D. C.

Major:

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the first instant requesting me to send you the the names of the five sons of Mrs. Bixby, and Otis Newhall who were in the military service, also the regiments and companies to which they belonged. They were as follows:

Corporal Henry Bixby, Company K, Thirty-second Regiment, mustered in Aug. 5, 1862. Killed at Gettysburg, July 1863.

Private Edward Bixby, recruit for Twenty-second Regiment, Mass. Vols. Died of wounds, in hospital at Folly Island, S. C. He ran away from home and was mustered in the field.

Private Oliver C. Bixby, Company E, Fifty-eighth Regiment, Mass. Vols. Mustered in March 4, 1864. Killed before Petersburg, July 30, 1864.

Private George Way Bixby, Co. B, 56th Reg. Mass. Vols. in March 19th, 1864. Killed before Petersburg July 30, 1864.

The last named, George, enlisted under the assumed name of George Way. The reason why he did not enlist under his proper name was to conceal the fact of his enlistment from his wife.

Henry A. Newhall, 2nd Co. Mass. Sharpshooters. Mustered in October 5th, 1861.

George F. Newhall, recruit for 11th Reg. Mass. Vols. Mustered in January 8th, 1862. Probably killed 2nd battle of Bull Run.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
WILLIAM SCHOULER,
Adjutant General.

Breck Adds His Recommendation.

A notation on this letter showed it was received at the office of the Adjutant General Oct. 18, 1864. Attached to these papers, on a separate sheet, somewhat time-worn, is the original endorsement made by Colonel Breck, the Assistant Adjutant General, which reads:

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28, 1864.

Respectfully submitted to the Secretary of War, Governor Andrew of Massachusetts forwards request of Otis Newhall for the discharge of his son, James O. Newhall, Eleventh Massachusetts Volunteers, on the grounds that he enlisted without bountying, December, 1861, and was mustered out with the regiment.

States that from the time he joined for duty until he was wounded at Spottsylvania he was never absent from duty, never having spent an hour in hospital, but was a good soldier throughout, taking part in most of the battles of his regiment; that he is one of five sons who went to sustain the honor of their country in the early part of the Rebellion, two of whom remain at the front, one was killed at the Battle of Bull Run, one other is now in the hands of the rebels, having been captured after being wounded in the Battle of the Wilderness, and the other, for whose discharge application is made, has just been returned to duty from the hospital, where he has been in consequence of wounds received in battle, none of whom, excepting the latter, having been home during their entire period of service.

The Adjutant General of Massachusetts avers that the above statement, which is corroborated by the records of this office, is true. Governor Andrew urges the request as a graceful recognition of the claim of a patriotic family. The discharge of Private James O. Newhall, Company B, 11th Massachusetts Volunteers, is, therefore respectfully recommended.

In connection with the above application Adjutant General Schouler of Massachusetts mentions as a specimen of a true-hearted union woman the case of Mrs. Bixby, a widow lady, who recently showed General Schouler five letters from five Company Commanders, each letter informing her of the death of one of her sons—her last remaining one having been killed in the fight on the Weldon Railroad. Each of whom by his good conduct had been made a Sergeant.

Governor Andrew desires that a letter may be written Mrs. Bixby by the President—such as the noble mother of five dead heroes so well deserves.

SAMUEL BRECK,

Final Approval of Reports.

Immediately beneath the report of Colonel Breck, in lead-penciled handwriting of the late Colonel James Allen Hardie, then the Assistant Adjutant General, was this note to Charles A. Dana, Assistant Secretary of War:

Mr. Dana:

Please look at these remarkable cases.
J. A. H.

Beneath, in the penciled handwriting of Mr. Dana, are these symbols: "App'd. C. A. D.," meaning that Mr. Dana had approved favorable action on the recommendations made by Governor Andrew recommending a discharge for Newhall and suggesting that President Lincoln write a letter to Mrs. Bixby.

Attached to the official records is a penciled copy of the Lincoln letter to Mrs. Bixby, placed there by an officer of the army in 1901, with the statement that it had been copied from the Nicolay-Hay collection of Lincoln letters. First publication of the Lincoln letter to Mrs. Bixby appeared in The Army and Navy Journal about ten days after it was reputed to have been written.

Believing that the records disclosed today were actually handled by President Lincoln and that they are the ones to which his letter to Mrs. Bixby refers, War Department officers place high value on them and have preserved them with great care.

BOY IS KILLED ON TRACKS.

Playing on the Susquehanna & Western Railroad tracks above the Homestead crossing in North Bergen yesterday, with his younger brother and other boys, Peter Dinkyian, 13 years old, of 460 West Street, Jersey City, was fatally injured. He died on his way to the North Hudson Hospital.

His brother George, 8 years old, and his companions fled after the accident. When George returned home last night he said that Peter had stumbled and hit his head on a rail. The police declared, however, that the boy had been killed by a railroad engine hauling a caboose to the yards. According to the police, J. W. Dally, the engineer, told them that Peter had stepped from the group in front of his engine and had been hurled forty feet.

PLAN TAX REVISION THAT WILL ENDURE

Green to Speed Hearings Beginning Oct. 19—Democratic Conference Is Expected Shortly.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Sentiment that the tax revision to be made at the coming session of Congress should be so thorough that the revenue law need not be tinkered with again for several years is growing among Administration representatives in Congress and has been brought to the attention of President Coolidge, with the advice that continued changes in the tax laws would not only keep business in a disturbed condition but would seriously imperil the Republican Party's chances in 1926 and 1928.

The President is said to have realized the force of such a conclusion even before it was mentioned to him, and there seems a chance, according to Republican leaders here, that he will advocate such a policy in his opening message to Congress in December. Business interests, it is pointed out, would readily respond to such a program, as it would mean to them freedom from periodical periods of uncertainty and annoyance over prospective tax changes. And the fact that business was in a calm and satisfied frame of mind would be by no means displeasing to the Coolidge Administration, which has not only the House and Senate elections ahead of it next year but the more important election in 1928.

Green's Arrival Is Awaited.

With the exception of the statement of Under-Secretary Winston urging a surtax maximum of 20 per cent. and a normal maximum of 5 per cent., making a combined total of 25 per cent., and the rallying of a few influential Republican Senators around this plan, tax news here is in a lull for the time being. By Labor Day, however, the rumor pot will probably begin to boil, as Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee intends to come to Washington then, in anticipation of his committee meeting Oct. 19 to begin the framing of the new revenue bill.

Mr. Green is spending a part of his time in Iowa, making a rough draft of the ideas he will submit to the committee following the consultations he had with President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon in June. Before he left Washington it appeared that the Chairman was amenable to a surtax maximum of 25 per cent., or even a little lower, but that he would not consent to the Treasury's expostulation that the inheritance taxes should be abolished. Mr. Green did, though, indicate that he would stand for a heavy cut in the maximum of these inheritance taxes, say from the present 40 per cent. to 25 per cent.

Democrats' Plans in Abeyance.

What the Democratic plan will be no one here seems to have a clear conception. With the exception of Chairman Oldfield of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, who is also a member of the Ways and Means Committee, and Cordell Hull of Tennessee, another committee member, there are few Democrats here who will be concerned with the actual program their party will put out.

Probabilities are that conferences will be held by groups of Democrats within the next few weeks in order to sound out the general feeling and agree on something concrete. But for a time at least the Democrats will be deprived of the advice of one of their best tax experts—a man not now in Congress, but who nevertheless is alive to the political situation and the effect tax alterations will have upon it. This is Daniel C. Roper, former Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident in Chicago a short time ago.

Only ten days will be allowed by the Ways and Means Committee for hearings on the tax revisions, according to the present plan. Between Oct. 19 and Nov. 1 business interests will be allowed to appear and present their suggestions, but the intention is to compel the advocates of the various schemes to make succinct statements and give supporting facts without wandering far afield in loosely thought-out harangues.

In other days, especially under the chairmanship of Joseph W. Fordney, the Ways and Means Committee's hearings were peculiar affairs, filled with lectures, quarrels and jokes, but Chairman Green says he intends to hew straight to the line and that those who appear may as well be prepared with ammunition ready to fire before they are forced under the time limit to withdraw their batteries.

Simplified Measure Unlikely.

Expectations that the tax laws will be simplified into something which John Jones can understand seem doomed to disappointment, tax experts here saying that the economic structure of the country is too complicated to permit a simpler law to afford equal justice in all cases, and that it must always be that inequalities will have to be worked out through administrative procedure.

Democrats and Western Republicans will make a drive for simplification on the theory that this argument will appeal to the small taxpayer just as will a demand that his taxes must be heavily cut; but, say those who have been handling tax bills for years, it is virtually impossible to draw tax laws concerning corporations in language the man in the street may comprehend.

Some Democratic leaders are urging that considerable simplification may be effected by lowering rates all along the line; changing corporation rates; eliminating all or most of the nuisance taxes; writing much simpler income tax blanks, and by making the law provide that tax cases brought before the Treasury shall be closed early and not reopened except where fraud is detected. This last suggestion, they say, would allow business men to know their liability to the Government promptly and finally.

Corporation Tax Fight Expected.

The stand of Under Secretary Winston against graduated corporation taxes no doubt expresses the Treasury attitude that larger corporations should be penalized no more than smaller ones, but of course, there will be a strong drive by Democrats and Western radicals to force this scheme through Congress.

Within the past few days Representative John J. McSwain of South Carolina has started a movement to permit deductions from personal income for sickness, funerals and education of the head of the house, wife or dependent children, the deduction in no case to exceed $500. If the present law provides for deductions for bad debts, broken machinery, loss by fire and other items, the deductions he advises are more reasonable, Mr. McSwain says, adding that at present a man is penalized for the proposed deductions.

"Suppose a man has an income of $3,000 per year," he says; "if he is married, but has no children, he is allowed a deduction of $2,500. But if he has had to pay $500 because of the illness of his wife, he is actually taxed for that, because under the present law he is not allowed to make deductions for such expenses. He should, I believe, be entitled to make that deduction in returning his income."

TAX GRAFT CHARGED TO ASSESSOR'S AIDS

CHRYSLER LEVY INVOLVED

MINEOLA, L. I., Aug. 6.—John Brown, chief clerk in the North Hempstead assessor's office, and John J. Hughes of 115 East Eighty-second Street, New York, a former clerk there, were indicted today by the Nassau County Grand Jury for forgery in connection with the reduction for two years of the real estate assessment on the home of Walter P. Chrysler, President of the Chrysler Automobile Company.

The alleged forgery, committed, it is said, without the knowledge of Mr. Chrysler, was effected, according to the indictment, by means of erasures and substitution of figures in the assessor's field book and in the township tax book. District Attorney Weeks said the alleged forgeries began on June 11, 1923, when, he also said, Hughes went to D. R. McLain, private secretary to Mr. Chrysler, with an offer to reduce the assessment. He asserted Hughes got a "rake-off" from $10,000 saved Mr. Chrysler in taxes and that he shared the money with Brown, who is a son-in-law of the present assessor, Moses Schenk.

No charges have been made against McLain. The investigation of the case will be continued, it was said, to learn whether the assessments on other large estates in North Hempstead have been illegally made.

Mr. Chrysler's estate was assessed in 1923 at $272,000. The figures were changed to $200,000 in both the field book and the tax book until the tax was paid, said Mr. Weeks, and then changed again to $272,000. In 1924, the District Attorney continued, the figures were changed from $272,000 to $172,000. In each instance, he said, taxes were paid on the lower figure.

The 1925 assessment, Mr. Weeks said, was to have been changed to $122,000, but Clarence Keifer, another clerk in the assessor's office, became suspicious. He notified Seward Poor, the township attorney, who started an investigation.

Hughes was said to have received three checks from McLain, one in 1923 for $3,403.74, a second in 1924 for $1,638 and a third this year for $1,332. The District Attorney said Hughes notified McLain when the investigation was started that the reduction could not be made this year and that he would return the check.

The principal evidence against Brown, Mr. Weeks continued, was a letter said to have been written by him to Mr. Chrysler on May 23 last, telling him that his assessment for 1925 would be $122,000, although the assessment as shown in the field book of the assessor's office was increased from $272,000 to $279,000.

Mrs. Coolidge Denies Swim Lessons

COLER INVESTIGATES BROWNING ADOPTION

izing to the community from any angle that we look at it," he concluded.

Francis C. Dale, Mr. Browning's attorney, issued a statement last evening on instructions from his client, in which he said he was unable to understand why the case had been magnified to such proportions, unless a disappointed parent, whose daughter was rejected for adoption, had taken it upon herself to place a malicious construction upon an entirely praiseworthy and philanthropic act.

"So far as the Commissioner of Public Welfare is concerned," said Mr. Dale, "I have no doubt that he will discharge any duty that his conscience may dictate to him, and I am equally certain that Mr. Browning's long career in this city and his high standing in the community will bear the closest scrutiny and result in a report that will be entirely satisfactory to the Commissioner, who has, of course, the facilities for observing from time to time the development of Mary under her new surroundings and influences."

Mr. Dale said further that the real blame, if there be any, should descend upon little Dorothy Sunshine Browning, the other adopted daughter of Mr. Browning, for having dared to aspire to sisterhood. He himself should be censured in the matter, he said, for having suggested to Mr. Browning, in the presence of Dorothy, that it seemed too bad to him, as the father of a large family, that little Dorothy should grow up alone and without the close companionship of a sister of a suitable size to be a real playmate.

Says Dorothy Was Enthusiastic.

The very suggestion, he continued, was enough for Dorothy, who thenceforth was enthusiastic and eager and constantly demanding that such a sister be found.

"I urged that Dorothy's request be complied with, until finally Mr. Browning consented, and the search for a suitable subject of adoption began. There were a vast number of candidates, and Mr. Browning, with the assistance of experienced physicians and educators, took great pains to select a sound, strong, healthy girl, of a mentality and body suitable to her future prospects in life and of a size that would keep pace with Dorothy, who for her years is a large girl physically, and even now gives promise of outgrowing Mary."

In regard to Commissioner Coler's inquiry as to whether any money was paid as a consideration for Mary Spas's adoption, Mr. Dale said:

"I do not believe there was, and particularly because, after the adoption was arranged, Mr. Browning asked me if I thought that there would be any objection to his making a little present to the parents of the child by way of expressing his good-will toward them, and what I thought would be suitable. I told him that in their circumstances in life the parents would probably appreciate a sum of money more than anything else, and that a check for $500 to each of them would probably mean a great deal.

"I believe that after the adoption he did make such presents to the parents, and I also believe that they did not know before the adoption that they were going to receive these presents."

Speaking of Mary, Mr. Dale said her most marked characteristic was her evident determination to rise above her antecedents and the environment into which she was born, and her efforts up to the present, although she has not yet progressed far, suggested that she was deserving of the opportunities offered her. Her manner of approach to Mr. Browning and her ascendency over "all comers," he says, is in keeping with her natural cleverness. Had she failed, he said, she would have felt her disappointment more keenly than most girls.

Declares Age Is of No Moment.

As to Mary's age, Mr. Dale says that it is apparently the inherent right of every woman, in these enlightened days, "to hold herself out to the world at whatever age she pleases," and that people are disposed to look with leniency upon the discovery that the age stated was slightly advanced or retarded according as the circumstances indicate. "While we deprecate that it is done, it is nevertheless a fact," he said.

"After all," Mr. Dale concluded, "the question of age does not apparently enter into the consideration of the Legislature on its enactment of the statutes relating to adoption. The statute even goes so far as to make special provision for the adoption of those over 21 years. It is a matter of common knowledge that many adults are legally adopted by elderly people for the mere purpose of obtaining somebody upon whom to devolve their property upon their death."

Mr. Browning supplemented his lawyer's statement by saying that he had received hundreds of letters of congratulation on his course. One was from the Mother Superior of a Catholic institution, who said she wished he could have adopted all the children in her care.

A disappointed mother, whose daughter was rejected, Mrs. Marie Ingram of Elizabeth, N. J., came with her thirteen-year-old daughter, Arline, to congratulate Mr. Browning and Mary. Then there was golden-haired Sylvia Mullins, aged 12½, another rejected one, who played around the office while the photographic flashlights were popping, just as happily as if she had been adopted. A florist around the corner sent a huge floral piece bearing a card of congratulations, signed "Constantine G. Milsinos, Metropolitan Amateur Champion Wrestler."

And to substantiate Mary's claim that she is only 16 was pretty dark-eyed Estelle Smith, 15, who lives in St. Nicholas Avenue, and who was her chum at the Julia Richman High School last year.

"Why, Mary was just 15 a year ago," said her chum, "and I know because I'm her pal. She's a lovely girl, with a sweet disposition, and up in all sports."

Mary Denies Many Rumors.

Mary was kept busy all afternoon denying that she had ever been engaged, or wanted to elope, with any of the young men in Astoria.

"It would appear from the reports," she said, "that I was pretty busy with the boys in Astoria, but that was not the case. I know they would like to be engaged to me now on account of my good fortune. I only knew the neighborhood boys casually, and they were sons of my mother's friends. I never went to the movies alone with a boy.

"I can't understand why the neighbors say such things about me unless they begrudge me my good luck. It looks like petty jealousy to me. Why, when I returned after Mr. Browning had decided to adopt me, in the pretty new dress he gave me, one of the neighbor women said I was dressed 'just like them crazy millionaires.'

"Why don't they say something nice about me? How I used to feed all the poor half-starved cats in the morning, and how I looked after 'Tootsie' Eiser. I've often taken the poor children to the beach or country. And they say I rouge. Not I."

Then Mary told why she was not of the flapper type. She said mother was always very strict and never permitted her to follow the example of the flappers.

"It all depends upon a girl's upbringing," she continued. "I felt that bobbed hair was only a fashion, and mother felt that long hair was the crowning glory of a woman.

"I do not use rouge myself for I do not need it, but I do not object to it if it is used moderately by those who use it. If girls would pay more attention to physical exercises and their health they would have all the color they could wish for."

When Mary saw a statement by Emil Vesalek, a plumber's helper, of 412 Hopkins Avenue, Astoria, who will be 20 in October, that she was so anxious to marry him early this year that she proposed an elopement with him, she denied it with a hot flush in her cheeks. "It isn't true," she said, "and he never gave me a ring."

According to young Vesalek, they stopped going together after he had agreed that they would be married in June of this year. One serious cause of disagreement, he said, was that he and his mother believed Mary to be older than the young man, and a dispute over this point resulted in a quarrel in the Vesalek home between Mildred Spas, Mary's older sister, now in Colorado, and Mary.

Asserts He Met Her at Theatre.

Emil is a tall, blond, good-looking youth of the Bohemian type. "I met Mary about five months ago," he said. "I became acquainted with her at the Astoria Theatre. Then I called on her at her home in Wilson Avenue. The third time I called we discussed marriage. She said she wanted to get married, but I told her we were too young.

"I suggested that we wait several years until I was better established in my trade. She was insistent, however, and suggested that we elope. I refused to do that, and she asked me for an engagement ring. I gave her a ring, telling her it was a friendship ring.

"We had a partial agreement that we would get married the first week in June. I stopped going with her when she went to my home and talked with my mother about our getting married. I had not seen her for some time and I was surprised when I read about her adoption by Browning. I felt sure that all was over between us. I have not worried about the affair because I have other girl friends in Astoria."

Mrs. Mary Vesalek, Emil's mother, also said that her son had "kept company with Mary."

"My son came home and told me that Mary wanted him to elope," she said. "My boy is a home-boy and serious about such things. He said he was going to write her a letter, and tell her that he was going to the country. I told him not to do that but to go to her and tell her face to face. He did so.

"My boy did not like her very well because he believed that he found she was not telling the truth on several occasions. One of these occasions was when Mary and her older sister, Mildred, were visiting at our home. My son, Mildred and myself were talking in one room and Mary was in another room.

"A question arose as to Mary's age. Mildred told me and my son that Mary was 19 years old. Mary overheard that in the next room and came in and said to mildred, 'You know that is not so. I am only 18.' The two sisters then had a slight quarrel over this matter. My son believed that Mary did this because she had told him that she was younger than he was. This was six months ago and my boy was 19 years old."

Bought Apartment Two Years Ago.

The records in the County Clerk's office in Jamaica, L. I., show that the property at 29 Wilson Avenue, Astoria, was purchased in the names of John and Marie Spas, Mary's parents, on Sept. 22, 1922, and that the deed was recorded Sept. 26, 1922. The purchase price was $36,500, of which $6,000 was paid in cash. There is a first mortgage of $21,000 and a second mortgage for $9,500. The second was to be paid in quarterly instalments of $475 each. The County Clerk's records do not show payments on either mortgage.

"Well, there's one consolation, we can visit Mary every week," said Mary's mother yesterday as she swept an upper hall in the apartment building in which she and her husband have a part interest. The mother can't speak a word of English, as a Bohemian street car conductor acted as interpreter.

Mrs. Spas said further that she intended to visit Mary in New York today or Sunday, and then went upstairs to her own apartment.

The neighbors had much to say. The principal object of their conversations, aside from Mary, is another alleged suitor of the girl, a certain "Billy," whom everybody in the neighborhood seemed to know, although nobody could tell his last name.

"Billy" lived in New York, according to some people, and when Mary went to the girls' school on Riverside Drive several weeks ago and forgot Billy, the neighbors say he gave up his job in Astoria and left. According to the neighbors, the wedding of Mary and Billy was set for June 16. But Mary said yesterday the neighbors knew everything—more than she did herself.

HER SISTER 23 YEARS OLD.

Mildred Gave That Age on Entering a Sanitarium in Colorado.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 6 (AP).—Mildred Spas, sister of Mary Spas Browning, adopted daughter of Edward W. Browning, entered Agnes Memorial Sanitarium here one May 19 for treatment for tuberculosis. She gave her address as 2,929 Wilson Avenue, Astoria, L. I., and her age as 23 years.

Reports from the sanitarium to the Sate Board of Health disclosed these facts today. The report added that she was a furrier by trade. The names of her parents were not given.

The records also show that she was born in Czechoslovakia. Her financial status was listed as "fair." She came to Denver May 16.

Authorities at the sanitarium reiterated today their refusal to permit newspaper men to question Miss Spas. This refusal and an investigation of her means to pay for staying at the hospital were made upon the order of Dr. W. G. Holden, Superintendent of the institution, hospital officials said.

"LOST" GIRL RETURNS.

Sylvia Mullen, 12 years old, of 2,140 Honeywell Avenue, the Bronx, with blonde bobbed hair and blue eyes, whom Edward W. Browning said he "was considering adopting" when he finally chose Mary Louise Spas, went yesterday to Mr. Browning's office to congratulate Mary Louise on her fortune. Last night, when she failed to return home for dinner, Sylvia's mother, Frances, a cook, went to look for her, failed to find her and had the police broadcast a general alarm for her.

The search for Sylvia was conducted until after midnight. Then, tired and warried, Mrs. Mullen came home and found Sylvia in bed, asleep.

"I've been with Mr. Browning and Mary Louise and some other girls," she explained. "They took me to the country and gave me a wonderful dinner and then drove me back home. I came in while you were out."

MARTINEZ, Cal., Aug. 6.—Police officials of the United States, Canada and Mexico as well as Europe were notified today to be on the lookout for Charles Henry Schwartz, charged with being the author of "the too perfect crime," discovered when a fire and explosion in his laboratory at Walnut Creek, a village ten miles south of here, left a charred human body in the wreckage on the night of July 30.

Sheriff R. R. Veale announced today a personal reward of $100 for the arrest of Schwartz, which he said he would ask Governor Richardson to raise to $1,000.

Police identification experts unanimously agree that the body found in the ruins is not that of Schwartz, who has been missing since the explosion. Professor E. O. Heinrichs, noted Berkeley criminologist, today reconstructed the crime as one of murder and mutilation of an unknown man by Schwartz in an effort to collect more than $200,000 life insurance payable to his wife and to the Pacific Cellulose Company of which his wife owns more than 90 per cent. of the stock.

Counsel for Mrs. Schwartz said today that she will start action against the insurance companies to compel payment of the policies.

File of Job Seekers Taken From Shop.

Every automobile road out of California is being watched. The police are also looking for every person known to have answered advertisements inserted in the San Francisco papers for help. A file at the plant in which was kept the names and addresses of persons who applied personally at the factory was disclosed today to have been taken from its place. It cannot be found.

The police are working on the theory that Schwartz lured a man to the plant on the pretext of hiring him, killed him, mutilated the face and finger tips with acid to make identification difficult, hid the body in the closet, set the fire and made his escape.

Careful scientific examination of the body of the still unknown victim of the blast, which is being preserved in the San Francisco morgue, shows that it is unmistakably some one other than Schwartz, according to criminologists, who say the details of the skull and teeth establish this beyond a doubt.

Mrs. Schwartz, who made positive identification the day after the explosion on the basis of a piece of shirt and a stud, still persists that the body is that of her husband. She is confined to bed in Berkeley with a nervous breakdown and her every movement is being closely watched by detectives.

Missing Teeth and Dream of Thug.

Schwartz went to Walnut Creek about two years ago, claiming to have valuable formula for the making of artificial silk from wood fibre. He bought an abandoned plant and organized the Pacific Cellulose Company. Efforts to interest local capital failed and the company was recently in grave financial difficulties.

Application to the California Corporation commission for permission to sell stock was pending at the time of the blast. Many suits had been filed against the company for unpaid bills and against Schwartz personally.

For some times prior to the explosion, Schwartz had shown ostentatiously a removable bridge with two teeth and a few days prior to the blast he showed his mouth to several citizens with the teeth missing, saying that he had lost them. The body found had these teeth out but close analysis showed that one of them had been recently knocked out with a blow that had fractured the jaw.

On the night of the explosion, Schwartz told the foreman of the plant, with whom he dined, that he had dreamed that a large man had come into his laboratory at night, circled around him and struck him three times on the head, when he awoke. The body found in the wreckage had been hit three times on the head with a blunt instrument that fractured the skull in three places.

Some days before the explosion Schwartz directed the night watchman, Walter Gonzales, to remove his couch from the main plant to an outbuilding, saying that he wanted to experiment with ether and that this would be bad for the watchman. He also told him not to come into the plant to punch a clock station near the laboratory.

The missing chemist made it a practice to work in the laboratory at night by the light of a kerosene lamp set in a box in the hall and shining through an open door. The plant, which had never turned a wheel, was not wired for electricity.

Signs of Escape From Wrecked Plant.

On the night of the explosion Schwartz sent the night watchman away from the plant on two trivial errands, once for a package of chewing gum and again for a clock, and seemed nettled when Gonzales returned quickly.

Eleven minutes before the explosion Gonzales took a bowl of soup to the chemist and was told to go to his bed and sleep for a couple of hours.

When Gonzales heard the explosion he ran to the plant. A door which he had closed was found propped open with a chair as though some one had wanted to make sure of quick escape. Gonzales sprayed fire extinguishers over the charred body lying in the laboratory and called the Fire Department, thus saving the plant and preserving evidence of the crime. He was discharged from the employ of the company today.

Examination of the plant showed that the fire had been set in another room and long fuses for firing powder were found in this room. A closet of the laboratory to which only Schwartz had a key and which was locked when the watchman took in the bowl of soup, was standing open.

The body was undressed and lying on kerosene-soaked rags. The legs and arms were flexed as though it had been confined in a small space.

Gonzales remembered that when he had come back to the plant with the chewing gum, his dog had sniffed at this closed closet door and had been angrily kicked away by Schwartz. On the floor of the closet was a pool of blood, which experts say had drained there from a body at least five or six hours before the explosion.

Advised Wife to Go to England.

MARTINEZ, Cal., Aug. 6 (AP).—District Attorney Tinning said today that proof had been disclosed that a letter left by Charles H. Schwartz, chemist of the Pacific Cellulose Company, with his wife to be opened in event of his death requested her to take their children to England for education.

This information, the prosecutor said, tends to show that Schwartz, if he did participate in a murder plot to obtain insurance, may have contemplated fleeing from this country by ship and going to England, there to unite later with his family.

Chief of Police James T. Drew of Oakland received word today that Schwartz may be in a freighter headed for Sweden. This boat is due to touch Portland, Ore., but the report was not given much credence.

Koleman Kluck, a director of the Cellulose Company, has posted a reward of $500, in addition to the $100 offered by Sheriff R. R. Veale, for the apprehension of Schwartz.

CHILD IS FOUND ALIVE IN DEEP CATCH BASIN

Girl of 3 in Chicago, Kidnapped Overnight, Was Put There by Captor in the Morning.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Bessie Dorn, 3, daughter of Samuel Dorn, a cigar manufacturer of 2,151 West Madison Street, who disappeared from her home yesterday afternoon, was found and rescued today in the bottom of a covered catch basin in the rear of her home. An investigation as to how the child got into the underground sewer recess, which was partly filled with mud and refuse, is being made by the police, and a search has been started for a man who, the girl says, put her there.

The suspect was seen in Dorn's cigar store by an elder daughter and others saw him in the alley where Bessie was playing. He used crutches some of the time and on other occasions was seen to walk without them.

The little girl was in an exhausted condition when she was found by a brother and a neighbor at 7:40 A. M. She was standing in mud and sewage up to her waist. The girl told her father that the kidnaper had kept her in the basement at 2,153 West Madison Street, next door to where she was rescued, until early this morning. Then he placed her in the catch basin and closed the lid, she said.

The child's face was bruised and swollen and her gingham dress torn. There were bruises about her neck, indicating choking.

Bessie said "the man had sticks that he put under his arms to walk on."

Nathan, her 14-year-old brother, was the first to hear her cries following a search which had lasted through the night. With the help of Ernest Ming, a neighbor, he took the cover off the catch basin. The child was there, five feet below them. Ming reached down and lifted her out of the hole.

Before her disappearance Bessie was seen in the rear of her home playing with another girl. Shortly before 3 o'clock Samuel Dorn sold three cigars to a man who came in on crutches. He remembers that he thought it was strange that when the man paid for the cigars he laid his crutches down on the counter and walked across to the cash register without them.

Autos Pay Bay State $9,500,000.

BOSTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—An estimated revenue of $9,500,000 for this year in fees paid for the registration of motor vehicles and fines for infractions of the motor vehicle regulations was made public today by the Division of Highways of the State Department of Public Works. The revenue is used for the building and maintenance of highways. So far this year 551,563 passenger automobiles have been registered in the State.

JURY TO CONTINUE ITS P. D. SIGN INQUIRY

THE MAYOR TURNS HIS IN

Alexander Konta, foreman of the Grand Jury, said yesterday that the recall by the police of the "P. D." signs would not interfere with the Grand Jury's investigation of reports that the sudden increase in motor accidents in recent months had been due in part to recklessness by persons on whom Police Commissioner Enright had conferred these traffic talismans. In its presentment the Grand Jury reported that it desired to question Commissioner Enright about the "P. D." signs and other forms of alleged favoritism to certain motorists.

"We don't know anything officially about the recall of the 'P. D.' signs," said Mr. Konta. "Judge McIntyre has continued the Grand Jury in power and we will meet in September to continue our traffic investigation."

Asked if the Grand Jury intended to investigate the charge that night after night all traffic was halted in Times Square under police orders to permit Ethel Shutta to move swiftly from one theatre in which she performed to another and back again, Mr. Konta said:

"There is nothing about that case before the Grand Jury. I am in rather a peculiar position in this matter. All that I can say is that the Grand Jury will, of course, go ahead with its investigation along the lines which the Court has approved."

Mayor Hylan showed a lively interest in the "P. D." sign situation yesterday by turning in his emblem to the Police Department. Others to whom these insignia had been issued sent them back in obedience to the hurried appeal for their return soon after the Grand Jury had announced that it was investigating the situation.

Commissioner Enright, who returned from his trip to Canada yesterday, said that only a few persons held the "P. D." signs and denied that the possessors used them as warrants to commit infractions of the traffic regulations.

"If any one with a 'P. D.' sign gets special privileges or violates traffic rules, let him be named," he exclaimed. "I have never heard a name cited. It's all 'They say, they say.' I'm fed up with these blanket accusations."

Commissioner Enright also showed indignation over a report that Special Deputy Police Commissioners and other wealthy men, who financed the International Police Conference, had paid the expenses of his South American trip. He said that he paid all expenses himself with the exception of a $1,400 bill for the services of an interpreter. Regarding the agitation for more policemen in the Bronx, the Commissioner said:

"Of course, the Bronx is under-policed. The whole city is under-policed. London has twice as many men for about the same population. New York needs 10 per cent more men. I'm going to ask for them."

STRAIN OF INQUIRY MAKES DR. COTTON ILL

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 6.—Dr. John H. Morrisey of New York and a specialist from Philadelphia have been called to the bedside of Dr. Henry A. Cotton, Medical Director of the Trenton State Hospital for the Insane. Dr. Cotton is said to be suffering from a nervous disorder as a result of the strain caused by the Bright Committee investigation into conditions at the asylum.

Dr. Cotton, it became known today, was advised to remain in bed by Dr. William A. Clark of the hospital staff after he returned yesterday from the sessions of the Bright Committee. He had a restful night, it was said, but as his health has been poor it was thought best to call the out-of-town doctors.

Although Senator William H. Bright, Chairman of the investigating committee, expressed the belief yesterday that the inquiry being conducted by Prosecutor Geraghty of Mercer County into the death of two women patients at the hospital ought to be held in abeyance until the committee's investigation is completed, the Prosecutor said today he had not been formally requested to halt his activity. He will continue the investigation, he said, but, in courtesy to the committee, will not make public his findings at this time. He has examined about twenty witnesses, most of them employes of the asylum, and plans next week to call relatives of the women. The Bright Committee will resume its inquiry next Wednesday and will summon the same persons.

Herrin Mines to Sell Coal in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (AP).—Through a local agency of the old Farmer-Labor Exchange, the Illinois branch of the United Mine Workers has announced plans to sell coal to Chicago trade unionists direct from the union-owned mines at Herrin, Ill. These are the mines where riots which resulted in the death of a score of miners occurred during a strike in 1922, after which they were taken over by the union organization. Union officials said the plan is expected to provide employment for union miners when they would otherwise be idle.

2 DUELL BROTHERS SUE EACH OTHER

W. S. DUELL SEEKS DAMAGES

Contends While He Was in Europe Relative Made Himself President, Using Power of Attorney.

A dispute between two brothers over the control of a company in which they both have been interested for years got into the West Side Court yesterday when Holland S. Duell, a patent attorney, of 19 West Forty-fourth Street, was summoned there by his brother, William Sackett Duell, who sought the return of papers connected with the company which he said his brother had wrongfully obtained. Magistrate Well said it was a matter for civil suit.

As Holland Duell left the court he was served with a summons in a suit for $400,000 damages brought by his brother. The dispute was over the stock control and presidency of the Klauder-Weldon Company, a dyeing machinery corporation of Philadelphia. Russell Kittel, attorney for William Sackett Duell, said that his client had formerly been president of the company, but that through power of attorney Holland Duell had gained control of the stock and had made himself president.

When an application was made in August, 1924, for a receiver for the property of William Sackett Duell he testified that the stock of the Klauder-Weldon Company was pledged with his brother and Mrs. W. S. Duell and several banks for loans of $150,000. W. S. Duell was at one time in partnership with Rhinelander Waldo, former Police Commissioner, and A. B. Dick, and he was president of an investment banking house which took over the affairs of this partnership.

Mr. Kittel said that the Klauder-Weldon business had paid W. S. Duell a salary of more than $20,000 a year until he had given power of attorney to his brother and had sailed for Europe. When he returned, said Mr. Kittel, he found that his brother had obtained control of the stock from Mrs. W. S. Duell and had made himself president.

Eagles Cleared of Ohio Killings.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 6 (AP).—A pair of American eagles at Vermilion, Ohio, charged by farmers with killing chickens and turkeys, were exonerated today in the report of J. H. Lindsey, United States Game Warden. Several farmers had demanded that the birds be killed. Most of the farmers questioned said that the depredations of foxes had been blamed upon the eagles.

Why is it that in so many families the husband buys his own shirts, while the wife chooses his neckties?

Perhaps it all dates back to the primitive decree that the married male should always dangle a garland of palm leaves about his neck. Probably his spouse selected the palm leaves which would best match hubby's complexion. Shirts, of course, were au naturel.

All our fancy neckwear and all our fancy shirts are now on sale at very much reduced prices.

Shirts which formerly added fame to our $3 range are now $1.95. Shirts which have been much sought after at $3.50, $4 and $4.50 now change hands for $2.95. Shirts which sold at $5, $6 and $8.50 are now $3.95.

COTILLO APPLAUDED BY SONS OF ITALY

SECESSION VOTE PUT OFF

The Grand Lodge of the State of New York of the Sons of Italy opened its four-day convention yesterday at the Star Casino, Park Avenue and 107th Street, when 267 delegates, representing nearly 30,000 members of the organization in New York State, gathered there to discuss the secession of the Grand Lodge from the national organization.

Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo, Grand Master of the lodge, presided. Speaking for more than an hour, he reviewed the correspondence which has passed between the local and national organizations, stressing the alleged fact that the national organization was attempting to inject Fascist sympathies into the body. Several times when he declared that the Grand Lodge was "an American organization for men of Italian parentage" and that it "should not be concerned with the interests of any country except America" his statements met with prolonged applause.

Justice Cotillo received several bouquets from women delegates in appreciation of his announced attempts to make the Grand Lodge an American organization. Yesterday was the celebration of the birthday of St. Salvatore in the Church calendar, and as Justice Cotillo's first name is Salvatore the delegates said they wished to honor him as the "savior of the Grand Lodge against the aggressions of the Supreme Council of the national organization."

During his speech a man and a boy entered the Casino carrying copies of the Italian paper Bollettino della Sera, which they proceeded to distribute. The leading article attacked Robert V. Sant'Angelo, Assistant District Attorney of New York County, who is attending the convention as Grand Orator, saying that he had made public a false account of the dissension between the rival organizations.

Delegates began to read the paper and discovered the attack. Several jumped to their feet and demanded that the two distributing the newspapers be ejected. In a few moments, the entire convention was on its feet, ignoring Justice Cotillo's attempts to restore order. The disturbance did not cease until the interlopers were put out of the hall.

When Justice Cotillo had finished, there was discussion on a motion to amend the law of the State organization which provides that a candidate for office in it must have served as a delegate to at least one convention before he is eligible to run. The rules of the national body provide that any delegate may run for office and delegates to this convention were trying to change the State law to conform with the national. If they succeed, Major Fiorello H. La Guardia, who was present yesterday for the first time, will be eligible to run for the office of Grand Master, to succeed Justice Cotillo. Justice Francis X. Mancuso of the Court of General Sessions was also present as a delegate.

Although the proposal to sever connections with the national organization was not voted on yesterday, it was the most important step before the convention. Justice Levy, in a decision handed down Wednesday, ruled that the Grand Lodge of the State of New York was a distinct corporation, having the right either to ally itself with other organizations or to operate alone. The question will be presented in the form of a resolution, and will be decided by the vote of the delegates.

Twelve policemen from the East 104th Street Station, under Captain Joseph Loonan, and four detectives from the same station, under Captain Daniel A. Kerr, were stationed in and around the Casino.

MRS. RODERICK TOWER GETS DIVORCE IN PARIS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Roderick Tower, formerly Miss Flora Whitney, obtained a divorce today in a Paris court, which gave a decision against her husband on the ground of desertion.

The couple were married in New York, April 19, 1920. They have no children. Mrs. Tower has been living in Paris at 34 Rue Jouvenet, her husband's address being given as the Hotel Métropole.

Flora Payne Whitney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. Roderick Tower is a son of Charlemagne Tower, formerly Ambassador to Russia and Germany, and Mrs. Tower of Philadelphia. Their wedding at St. Bartholomew's Church in New York in 1920 was one of the social events of that season.

Mrs. Tower followed in the footsteps of her mother and became a sculptor, her first showing being at the Spring exhibition of the Society of Independent Artists at the Waldorf-Astoria this year. She exhibited two small bronze statuettes, one of which, a nude female figure called "South Wind," was sold for $200.

At the beginning of the war Mrs. Tower went into local war relief work, and learned typewriting so that she might do overseas work with the Red Cross or the Y. M. C. A. Instead, she became Mrs. Medill McCormick's assistant at the Washington headquarters of the Republican Women's National Executive Committee.

She is a descendant of Commodore Vanderbilt and the late Senator Payne of Ohio, and a niece of General Cornelius Vanderbilt and of Reginald Vanderbilt, Payne Whitney and the Countess Szchenyi.

Roderick Tower enlisted in the air force when this country entered the war, was commissioned a Captain and became an instructor. He is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and of the Harvard, Knickerbocker and Racquet Clubs.

FORD COMPANY BUYS AIRPLANE CONCERN

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 6.—Purchase of the Stout Metal Airplane Company by the Ford Motor Company was officially announced tonight. The financial consideration was not made known but it is estimated that the amount involved will reach $1,000,000.

"This interest in aviation is largely Edsel Ford's idea and he deserves the credit," said Henry Ford tonight. "Airplanes belong to another generation. I shall do everything possible in their development, but there is too much to be done to permit of premature enthusiasm.

"We are interested in airplane development and the best place for us to carry on experimental work is our own plant. There we can study and learn, and there is much that we must study and a great deal for us to learn."

"Of course the first thing that must be done with aerial navigation is to make it foolproof," he went on. "Just now it is 90 per cent. man and 10 per cent plane. That percentage must be turned around. We have also to carry out research to the point that when a plane starts out we shall know withhout the shade of a doubt that it is going to go. The first desideratum of an airplane is that it does its work.

"Our planes now are running to Cleveland and Chicago and they will go further before long. The record of our airplane work is open to the public, the successes and the troubles, fuel consumed and everything.

"We are not going into the racing business. Speed is incidental. Safety and service are paramount. What the Ford Motor Company means to do is to prove whether commercial flying can be done safely and profitably."

A formal statement announcing the acquisition of the Stout metal plant, which is located on the Ford airport on Oakwood Boulevard and appearing in the Ford News says:

"The Ford Motor Company became a manufacturer of airplanes July 3 by purchasing all stock and assets of the Stout Metal Airplan eCompany.

"The building of Stout all-metal planes will henceforth be carried on by the Stout Metal Airplane Division of the Ford Motor Company.

"Operations will be continued in the factory building at the Ford Airport, Dearborn, where four planes have already been built and others are under construction.

"Mr. Stout, who developed the present model after fifteen years of experimentation and was a pioneer in building an all-metal monoplane of the thick-wing type, remains in charge of plane manufacture, while the personnel of expert engineers and mechanics also has been retained.

"The Stout plane and manufacturing equipment were purchased by the Ford Company for the purpose of accelerating airplane development by backing the work with the diversified resources and experience of the Ford organization."

HELD ON MURDER CHARGE.

Man Wanted for Jersey Killing Arrested in Restaurant Here.

Giacomo Casale, 35 years old, of Campbell and Fair Streets, Hackensack, N. J., charged with the murder of Baldasseri Palara of Lodi, N. J., on April 13, was arrested yesterday afternoon in the restaurant of a relative at 141 Third Avenue, Manhattan, by Detectives Jackson and Hayes of the Homicide Squad. A search of the home of the restaurant keeper, Giuseppi Viczini, at 224 East Thirteenth Street, revealed two pistols, which the police say Viczini admitted owning. He was arrested on a charge of violating the Sullivan law.

According to the police, Casale shot and killed Palara while the latter was driving in Fair Street, Hackensack. There had been bad feeling between the two which came to a climax when, two days previous to the shooting, Palara is said to have entered Casale's wine cellar in Hackensack and emptied the contents of the bottles on the floor.

Yanks Beat Tigers, but Giants Lose to Reds and Robins to Pirates

HOYT FALTERS AT START

Yields 4 Runs in First Two Innings, Then Tightens Up—15,000 Youngsters See Game.

By HARRY CROSS.

The Yankees are living down their past. They walloped the Detroit Tigers up at the stadium yesterday, 10 to 4, assembling fifteen hits to do the job up right. That gives them seven victories out of the last eight games. Their latest skein of victories has been knitted into three straight.

This destructive bunch of fence-busters under the banner of Cobb worried Waite Hoyt only in the first two innings. Tyrus himself didn't play, but got into the game as a pinch hitter in the ninth. Manush, who subbed for the Peach in centre, got a triple, single and double. Ty himself could hardly have done any better.

The Yanks batted as they used to when they were the terrors of the league. Lou Gehrig, the Columbia scholar, unloaded a three-bagger to right centre in the fourth with the bases full and swept over three runs. Lou also got a double and a single. Ernie Johnson entertained with a home run in the fifth, Benny Bengough got a triple and two singles and Hoyt got three hits, one a double. Neighbors, that's hitting.

A solid acre of boys closely jammed into the left centre field bleachers made one continuous roar for Babe Ruth to carve home runs. These 15,000 healthy youths shook the Bronx with their noise but even their encouragement couldn't shake the Bam into making a hit. Ruth and Pee Wee Wanninger were the only Yanks who didn't hit.

Wells Absorbs Punishment.

The target of all this catch-as-catch-can slugging was southpaw Edwin Wells. His pitching begged for relief several times, but Manager Cobb sent for no messenger of mercy. It looked as if Wells just stuck it through on a bet. While Wells didn't do much pitching, he did considerable batting. He got four hits, one a triple. To expect a left-handed pitcher to do all the pitching and all the batting, too, is too much.

The jamboree started out as if the Bengals were going to toss Hoyt for a row of pagodas. With two Tigers submerged in the first, Manush doubled to left centre and Wingo walked. Heilmann's single to right scored Manush, and when Ruth's throw home was deflected by Gehrig's glove, the ball rolled wild past Bengough and Wingo also scored.

There was one down in the second when Bassler singled to right and so did Wells. Tavenor's sacrifice nudged them both along a notch and Burke's single to left rolled Bassler home. When Meusel let the ball flirt through his hands, Wells also rushed through.

Those four runs in about as many minutes for a moment took away the breaths of players and fans. For three innings the Yanks did not get a hit off Wells and it looked as if the Huggins ensemble were about to go through another afternoon of suffering.

Just glue your attention on the fourth. It was all joy and no sorrows. After Combs's rocket was grabbed over near the left field bleachers by Wingo, Ernie Johnson was hit by a pitched ball and Ruth walked. Meusel got a Texas Leaguer back of first and the bases were loaded to the muzzle.

Gehrig Empties the Bases.

Lou Gehrig's triple, which struck the right centre field screen on the fly, pushed the three pillow occupants home. Shank's single scored Lou. Bengough's single sent Shanks to third and Pee Wee fanned. Hoyt then sent Shanks home with a single. Combs, up for the second time in the same stanza, forced Hoyt to end the conflagration. That cluster of five runs made Detroit's quartette of units look pale.

Ernie Johnson opened the fifth with a home run into the right field bleachers. Ruth and Meusel were easy outs at first, but Gehrig singled and Shanks walked. Bengough's triple to left centre sent Gehrig and Shanks scampering over the platter.

In the seventh with one out Gehrig doubled and went to third on a single by Shanks. He scored on Bengough's single to right. Manush copped Wanninger's fly and Hoyt ecouraged Shanks home with a single.

BLANKENSHIP AGAIN WINS.

BOSTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—Blankenship held the Boston Red Sox to five safeties while the Chicago White Sox romped away with a 10 to 0 decision today. It was his sixth straight victory. The hitting of Schalk and Sheely's home run over the left field fence, together with the fielding of Todt, were features.

Dick Kerr, former suspended pitcher of the White Sox, and recently reinstated to major league ball, was in uniform and Manager Collins announced that he probably would be used in one of the two games Saturday.

ATHLETICS DIVIDE TWO WITH INDIANS

Lose First Game, 9-6, When Harriss Falls, but Walberg Takes Second, 6-1.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6 (AP).—The Athletics split today's twin bill with Cleveland, winning the second game 6 to 1, after dropping the first, 9 to 6. The Indians clubbed Harriss off the hill in the third inning of the first game, when they scored five runs.

Rube Walberg was complete master in the afterpiece, and though Miller started strong for the Indians he wilted in the sixth.

LUQUE WEAVES WEB THAT TRAPS GIANTS

Restricts Them to Six Hits and Reds Entangle the McGrawmen in a 9-1 Defeat.

BENTLEY IS ROUTED EARLY

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 6.—The Reds beat the Giants by 9 to 1 in the first game of the crucial series today. As beatings go nowadays, it was heap big. Any more would have been slaughter, not to say wrack and ruin.

Besides scoring nine runs the Reds made fourteen hits. They socked one home run, three triples and not a few singles, in addition to receiving numerous bases on balls. Señor Adolfo Luque outpitched two brother hurlers by only eight runs, eight hits and twenty city blocks.

On the subject of baseball the fair City of Cincinnati, nestling in the valley of the Ohio, is slightly balmy in the upper or top story. The natives aren't any more crazy about baseball now than they were in 1919, when the Reds clutched their last pennant. Ten thousand of them turned out today to see the locals win their eighth game in the last ten starts.

The Reds are now galloping along like Nurmi when he lets out an extra reef. They are only three and a half games behind the Giants, who in turn are almost three games behind Pittsburgh.

The old adage about the devil and the deep blue sea was phrased by a baseball manager. The Pirates are sailing away on the blue sea and the Reds are coming up behind the Giants like the devil. The McGraw men are saying, "Get thee behind me, Satan," but it doesn't do any good.

Reds Plunge Into Attack.

Today they played the kind of ball that sears men's souls. Jack Bentley yielded one run in the first inning and six in the second before Jack Wisner was paged to the rescue. Wisner pitched great ball, but there is no profit in locking the garage door after the flivver has been stolen.

The Reds' early rush seemed to sweep the Giants off their feet. Here was one time when the Giants were outfought. The Reds weren't kidding either. Slambang they went at Bentley in the first inning. Wham and zowie describes the second round. If you saw Jack Dempsey rush at Jess Willard you know all about today's doings.

And all the time Señor Luque was out there on the mound toying, just toying, with the Big Town boys. A grim smile adorned his Castilian features. Curves and fast balls and tantalizing slow ones leaped from his grimy fist. Every time he wound up, the Giants braced themselves for the shock. They made only six hits and three of these didn't get past the infield. The only New York run was made without the ball going beyond the inner cordon.

The señor enjoyed himself hugely. In addition to deceiving the Giant batters, he cracked out two hits. One was a triple to the flagpole in the second inning, when eleven local hitters traipsed to the plate and swung cruelly from the hip.

With one out in the first, Babe Pinelli smacked a home run to deep right. This was just a breeze, as Hank Gowdy would say. Look at the second inning, if you want to see something. Critz singled and Caveney bunted him onward. Hargrave tripled to deep centre, scoring Critz. Señor Adolfo slapped one for the same distance, admitting Hargrave.

Pinelli's Single Scores Luque.

Frisch tossed out Seitzman, but Pinelli was equal to a single, which scored Luque. Then came hits by Roush and Schultz, and Mr. Bentley wended his sorrowful way o'er the lea to the clubhouse. Mr. Wisner took up the burden, and while Holke was at bat the Reds worked a cute double steal. Roush dashed for the plate and there stood Sergeant Gowdy with the ball. Eddie did some queer convolutions with his legs and slid around the Sergeant as nicely as you please.

Gowdy sat down on the ground to ponder over the ways of life and Schultz went on to third and scored when Holke singled to right. Despite a fumble by Frisch, the run scoring stopped there, while the happy burghers of Cincinnati gave the Giants a loud and long Bronx cheer.

Roush's single and Walker's triple made it 8-0 in the fourth. The Giants scored in the sixth on Frisch's cleverly placed bunt, his steal, Meusel's out and Kelly's single, which bounced off Luque's digits.

A couple of walks, a passed ball and the squeeze play put on by Critz admitted the last Redleg run in the sixth.

Virgil Barnes looks like McGraw's best bet for tomorrow. He will be opposed by Eppa Jeptha Rixey, who is some little opposer.

In refreshing contrast to the St. Louis series, the umpiring of Messrs. Klem, Wilson and Rigler today was workmanlike, smooth and competent.

The Giants made two of their hits in the ninth. Only eight to tie and nine to win was the ringing slogan of our boys.

Pickups and Putouts

The two pitchers yesterday, Hoyt and Wells, made seven hits between them. That's a season's output for most flingers.

Bob Meusel felt just like a bullseye in the eighth. All three flies were shot at him and he snared them all.

President Ban Johnson of the American League, who was in town to encourage the kids to play ball, waited to see the Yanks win. The umpires must have seen Ban in the stand, for they were pretty good.

Joe Dugan and Wallie Pipp were out warming up before the game. They hope to have a chance to play some time before the season is over.

Howard Shanks made a difficult but effective catch of Wingo's fly back of third in the fifth. It saved a run for Manush, who was on third, ready to leap.

Hoyt did his best pitching in the seventh. Three singles crowded the bases with one out. He fanned Wingo and the hard hitting Heilmann obliged by rolling out, Johnson to Gehrig.

Making one of the greatest pull-ups ever seen in a billiard match in this city, Erich Hagenlacher, German 18.2 balkline champion, ran 964 points in nine innings in the final two blocks of his 2,400-point match with Willie Hoppe at the Fourteenth Street Academy yesterday and won the match at 2,400 to 1,999. Starting in the seventh block with the score 1,800 to 1,436 in the former world champion's favor, Hagenlacher scored 664 caroms in the afternoon to Hoppe's 199. In the evening he continued where he left off with an unfinished run of 58 in the ninth inning and scored 300 points, giving him a run of 358. Hoppe did not have a chance to go to the table. The exhibition of the German champion left the large gallery dazed.

From his first inning of the afternoon block, which was the thirtieth of the match, until his closing run of 300, Hagenlacher played marvelous billiards. He collected 172 caroms on his first turn at the table in the afternoon, after Hoppe had made a run of 4. In addition to this run of 172 he made three other high runs of 128, 126 and 102, and finished with his run of 358 for the thirty-eighth inning.

Hoppe paid full tribute to the remarkable playing of his opponent. He had played splendid billiards himself, but Hagenlacher's performance was almost superhuman.

Hagenlacher averaged 107 1-9 for the last two blocks and had a grand average for the match of 63 6-38. Hoppe's grand average was 52 23-38. Hoppe immediately challenged for a return match of either 2,400 or 3,000 points. It was announced that Hagenlacher was willing to accept and that the match probably will start a week from Monday.

The nearest approach to the performance of Hagenlacher was Young Jake Schaefer's great rally here in 1921 against Edouard Horemans of Belgium. Going into the last two blocks of that match Schaefer was trailing by approximately 400 points. A run of 436 helped Schaefer to win the match.

SKEETERS WIN 5-3, THEN LOSE, 4 TO 1

By Associated Press.

Jersey City and Rochester divided yesterday's twin bill in Jersey City. The Skeeters winning the opener, 6 to 3, while the Hustlers annexed the final, 4 to 1.

With the first game tied up in Jersey City's half of the eighth inning, the Skeeters produced two singles and two triples accounting for three runs and victaory. Liberal hitting in the opening round against Rube Zellars gave the Hustlers an early lead in the second game and they were never headed, Yowell's effective pitching restricting the Skeeters to six hits.

NEW ROCHELLE NINE BEATS N. Y. POLICE

Suburban Bluecoats Avenge Last Year's Defeat, 6 to 3—Rally in Eighth and Ninth.

New Rochelle's police nine avenged last year's defeat by the New York policemen yesterday when they conquered the home team, 6 to 3, at the Polo Grounds. New Rochelle has only 110 men on its force to pick from, but nine of them bestirred themselves in the eighth and ninth innings and battered the team chosen from New York's 12,000 with two runs in each of these frames that gave the suburban bluecoats the verdict over their big city rivals.

Several thousand spectators, most of them youngsters, saw the game. Mayor Frank Scott headed the official delegation from New Rochelle, which included the Commissioners and Town Council. Inspector McKinney represented Mayor Hylan and Commissioner Enright.

With the score 2 to 1 against them in the eighth the New Rochelle arms of the law began to feel their batting strength and started a rally.

Fuller was walked and advanced to third on a Texas leaguer from Halley's bat. He crossed the plate with the tying run on Schlotter's sacrifice. Haggerty got a scratch hit which held Halley at third. In an attempt to catch Haggerty as he stole second Catcher Meuchner threw wild and Halley crossed the plate, giving New Rochelle the lead.

New York tried to retaliate in its half and managed to get two men on bases. However, Dougherty tightened up, and with valorous support checked the Gotham menace.

Dougherty started the trouble for New York in the ninth by hitting a smash at Pitcher Dunn which so severely injured the latter's ankle that he was forced to retire with none out. Fennell took up the burden, but walked Augustin and allowed Newman to get to first on a bunt. With three on and none out Voelpel went to the box. He forced Fuller to pop up. The New Rochelle base runners started a triple steal which so confused Weiler that he threw wild, permitting Dougherty to score. Newman was caught at second. Minnaugh then sacrificed to score Augustin. Halley fanned to retire the side.

New York made its first run in the second. McLaughlin came home on a double steal. In the fourth they put two more runs over when Rothengist's double scored Meuchner and Benesch's single scored Rothengist.

WILD PITCHES AID VICTORS

Two by Brooklyn Hurler Let in Pair of Runs—Fournier's Errors, Wright's Triple Help Pittsburgh.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 6.—Dazzy Vance, who had been kept out of the Robins' recent series with the Cubs so that he would be able to pitch the opening game of the series here, met the Pirates this afternoon and was defeated. Dazzy was outpitched by Ray Kremer and the Pirates won the game by a score of 5 to 1. While the Pirates were winning from the Robins the Reds trimmed the Giants and tonight Bill McKechnie's men are leading the pennant chase by two games and a half.

Vance and Kremer each yielded nine hits, but the strike-out king was hit more vigorously than the box score indicates, for in the sixth inning catches by Eddie Brown and Dick Cox robbed two Pirate batters of extra base hits. In that frame Wright got a three-base hit that scored Cuyler, who had singled. Vance fanned only six men and three of his strike-outs were crowded into the third inning when Smith, Carey and Grantham were set down. A single by Kremer was sandwiched between the first two. Dazzy walked two men and uncorked two wild pitches. Each one of his wild deliveries resulted in a Pirate crossing the plate.

Kremer Is Effective.

Kremer pitched effectively against Wheat, Stock and Fournier, but had trouble with Cox, who made a triple, a double and a single. However, as Dick did not get much help from his mates his double was the only wallop that figured in a run. Stock and Wheat went hitless and Fournier made only one single which went to waste.

There was no scoring until the fifth when the Pirates started to swing against Vance's shoots with good results. Moore opened the frame with a double to left. Smith struck at the first ball pitched and a single past Fournier resulted. Moore scored on the blow. Kremer sacrificed and when Vance made his first wild pitch Smith scored from second.

The Robins got their run in the sixth only to have the Pirates come back and match it with another. With one out Fournier was hit by a pitched ball. Cox doubled to left and Fournier stopped at third. Brown's sacrifice fly to Barnhart enabled Jack to score with what proved to be the lone Robin tally.

Cuyler opened the Pirates' half of the same session with a single. He held first as Brown made a good catch of Barnhart's long fly. Traynor followed with another drive. Cox backed up against the right field grandstand and caught the ball in his gloved hand. The play robbed Traynor of a two-bagger at least. Wright hit between Wheat and Brown for a triple and Cuyler scored.

Pirates Get Last Two.

With one out in the eighth the Pirates got their last two markers. Barnhart singled and Bigbee ran for him. Traynor singled to right and Bigbee stopped at third. Wright lifted a sacrifice fly to Cox and Bigbee dented the plate. Fournier intercepted Cox's throw and made a wild peg past second that put Traynor on third. Vance then got rid of another wild pitch and Traynor scored.

With one out in the fourth Cox made his triple. It was a wallop to left field, but Dick was left on third when Brown popped to Moore and Johnston struck out. In the ninth the Robins tried to rally, but Kremer was too good for them. Brown led off with a single only to be forced by Johnston. DeBerry singled, but Taylor batted for Vance and popped to Smith. Mitchell made the last out with a foul which Smith caught.

About 10,000 fans paid to see today's game and Vance was responsible for the good weekday crowd. Vance is the best drawing card the Robins have had in many a season.

QUEENSBORO NINE BEATS HUDSON PARK

Future baseball stars, possibly a Yankee or two and a couple of players who may sport the spangles of the Detroit Tigers in days to come, cavorted over the greensward at the Yankee Stadium yesterday and gave a fine exhibition of baseball. When it was all over—five innings of hectic diamond warfare—the Queensboro Oval team had defeated the Hudson Park nine, 6—0. Probably the proudest of the players among the twenty-one who took part in the game was Dante Becocchi, who hurled for the Queensboro Oval boys and held his opponents runless and to only one hit. About 15,000 boys saw the game.

Of course there had to be a hero and Dante Becocchi stood out as the most logical candidate for that honor, but he was close pressed by little Johnny Dell of the Hudson Park nine. Johnny was inserted into the game as a pinch hitter in the fourth an he got the only hit registered by his team.

The Queensboro Oval boys staged a big rally. They squeezed three runs across the plate and seemed likely to get more though there were two down at the time. Eddie Martin, the clever little catcher of the Queensboro team came to bat. He lashed wicked, low-riding liner into right. It looked for all the world like a three-bagger or maybe a homer. But just when Eddie was figuring how lucky he was, little Johnny Dell made a deer-like dash across the field, extended his arms and snared the fast flying ball.

The batting order:

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 6.—The Glen Riddle Farm, owner of the great filly Friar's Carse, which is considered as about the best three-year-old of the year, showed another filly this afternoon that may become the strongest rival of her stable companion. This was Taps, a two-year-old by Man o' War—Shady, which easily accounted for the Schuylerville Stakes at five and a half furlongs in a field of ten under 113½ pounds and with Johnson up. Taps came home alone in 1:07. The victory brought $3,925 to Mr. Riddle.

Taps is a chestnut, has a lot of quality and is about as big as a three-year-old. Her dam Shady was out of Sylvan by Disguise and she in turn was out of Sylvan Belle by Bend 'Or. Sylvan Belle was the second dam of Broomstick, so that Taps is a double Broomstick and has a double strain of Bend 'Or. She attracted a great deal of attention in the paddock when Gwynne Tompkins was saddling her.

The Schuylerville was the feature of the afternoon card, although there was a lot of interest in the Luzerne Handicap in which the Log Cabin Stud's Ladkin, winner of the second international race, was the favorite. It was won by Frank Marlow's Anna Marrone II, at 7 to 2, the Fair Play four-year-old finishing fourth. The filly ran the six furlongs in 1:13 and earned $1,055.

Showers Slow Up Track.

While the track was good, it was by no means fast and the weather again was extremely humid, so that fast times were out of the question. There was a light shower between the running of the fifth and sixth races, after which the sun came out for the first time during the day. There were intermittent showers in the early evening and the track will not be fast again without a full day of bright sunshine and clear atmosphere.

Taps won her second consecutive race in the five starts of her racing career. Ten faced the barrier and they were sent away to a fine start. Taps broke with the leaders, although the Lilane Stable's Hayal showed the way down around the turn, later quitting and finishing last. J. E. Widener's Ruthenia, a home-bred like the winner, came up with a challenge on the turn for home and was carried very wide by Taps. After that Taps drew away and won easily by four lengths.

Anna Marrone II came back to her best form to win the Luzerne Handicap. The four-year-old daughter of Glencairn and Tiara was the first to find a stride and opened up a good lead on the rest of her field, never being in danger from start to finish. Ladkin gave a lot of trouble at the post, refusing to face the barrier and continually wheeling and drawing back. As a consequence it took Starter Cassidy eight minutes to get them away. The Roll Call was left.

Ladkin Is Fourth.

When they finally got started the filly broke on top. Ladkin broke well but was outrun down the backstretch and was squeezed back on the rail. The favorite finished fourth. N. Loscalzo's filly Avisack chased the leader for most of the trip. She was on the outside all the way and was four lengths back of the winner at the finish. T. W. O'Brien's Forecaster, last to get going, made up a world of ground to take third money, length and a half in front of Ladkin.

Sixteen maiden two-year-olds paraded for the opening number and it was a mad scramble away from the barrier, in which there was a lot of crowding. The winner was Salubria Stable's Gnome colt Comet, which ran a good race under the conditions.

33 YEARLINGS BRING $40,250 AT SPA SALE

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 6.—The annual sales of thoroughbred yearlings opened tonight in the sales paddocks of the Fasig-Tipton Company. There was a large and fashionable attendance despite the threatening weather and occasional showers.

The sale of horses in training was a disappointment, as the consignment of Colonel H. M. Howard was withdrawn. The best sale was that of imported Maddenstown, a three-year-old chestnut colt by Marten Farup, offered by F. J. Buchanan, which was knocked down to S. Gooch for $1,900.

Thirty-three head of yearlings from various consignees were sold for a total of $40,250, the average being $1,310.

Top price was brought by an imported bay colt by Bay d'Or—Lady Sylvia, a half-brother to Blackwood and Bold Lass. This colt was bought by the Hamilton Farm for $4,000.

J. C. Milam paid $3,500 for a chestnut colt by Gnome—Queen Menilik. The next best price was $3,300, which was paid by Desha Breckenridge for a chestnut colt by imp. Brumado—Miss Springfield. The Hamilton Farm paid $3,200 for a chestnut filly by the same sire out of imp. Lady Edwina.

BREAKS OWN RACE MARK

AURORA, Ill., Aug. 6 (AP).—Trumpet, a bay gelding by Etawah—Mary Tipton, owned and driven by Tommy Murphy of Syracuse, N. Y., won the $25,000 American Trotting Derby here this afternoon, taking two out of the three heats, the first in 2:03 3-5 and the third in 2:03 2-5, breaking his former race record of 2:04¼.

Hollyrood Jessie, a bay mare by Belwin—Hollyrood, driven by Walter Cox of Goshen, N. Y., took second money. After finishing seventh in the first heat, Cox came back and won the second from Murphy, his foremost rival in the harness horse world, in 2:04. Murphy was not to be stopped, however, and sent Trumpet out in the third and deciding heat, beating Hollyrood Jessie under the wire by a length in the fastest time of the race.

Murphy won $15,000 with Trumpet, and Cox, in addition to getting $4,000 for second place, won the third money of $2,000 with Thompson Dillon, driven by Fred Egan. There were seven moneys in the race, the lowest $500.

The Derby was raced under the old scoring system, three heats to a race. It was one of the hardest fought trots in history, Grand Circuit officials said, every horse being under the whip in the stretch in each heat.

Today's races marked the close of the Grand Circuit meeting here. Secretary Clifford R. Trimble announced that the events on tomorrow's card had failed to fill.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—Granville Gude and Robert Duncan, scullers, of the Potomac Boat Club of Washington, D. C., in company with two club members, had a narrow escape today on their way to the national rowing regatta here when their automobile turned turtle at Media, Pa. All were thrown out and slightly bruised and shaken up. The auto was wrecked.

GILMORE QUALIFIES FOR SCULLING TITLE

Hoover Also Wins Heat in Quarter-Mile Dash as National Regatta Opens on Schuylkill.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—Out of a field of twelve scullers in the heats of the senior quarter-mile dash, which officially opened the annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen on the Schuylkill River here this evening, three Philadelphians reached the final, to be rowed on Saturday.

W. E. Garrett Gilmore of the Bachelors Barge Club, national and Canadian sculling champion, won the first heat. He beat Alfred B. Vogt of the Vesper Boat Club by half a length in 1:14 1-5, with Chester Turner of the Argonauts of Toronto, Canadian sculling champion, less than a length back of Vogt, and Charles R. Miner, Lincoln Park Boat Club of Chicago, last.

Walter M. Hoover, Undine Barge Club, who recently returned from abroad, where he was beaten by Jack Beresford, easily won the second heat, beating Charles McIlvaine, Penn A. C., by two lengths. R. B. Knight, Bachelors Barge Club, finished third and Fred Richers, Lincoln Park Boat Club, Chicago, last. Hoover eased up in the last dozen strokes and covered the quarter mile in 1:15.

In the third and last heat, Algernon Fitzpatrick, Malta Boat Club, holder of the national dash title last year, surprised the crowd at the finish line by eliminating Paul Costello, Penn A. C. Fitzpatrick beat Costello by a length, William Hapgood, Bachelors Barge Club, and Johnny Blessing, Undine Barge Club, finishing third and fourth. Fitzpatrick's time of 1:13 3-5 was the fastest of the day. Gilmore, Hoover and Fitzpatrick will fight it out Saturday afternoon in the final.

The New York A. C. senior eight, national champions of 1924, contains several former University of Washington, Navy and Yale oarsmen, including Dow Walling, formerly of the Seattle Huskies, who will stroke. Don Morey and Carl Hasbrouck, who will represent the N. Y. A. C. in senior doubles, took a workout late today, as well as the senior quadruple sculls, made up of J. J. O'Sullivan, Hasbrouck, D. H. Morey and F. D. Morey.

The University of Toronto junior eight arrived this morning, as well as several Canadian scullers, and the Detroit Boat Club intermediate eight.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (AP).—Miss Virginia Van Wie of the Beverly Country Club, Chicago, today became the new Western junior golf champion when she defeated Miss Helen MacMorran of Indian Hill, Chicago, 5 and 3, at the Beverly Club.

This was the first time Miss Van Wie had participated in the junior event and it will be her last, for she expects to compete in the Western championship at St. Paul, which automatically bars her from further junior competition. The new champion is 16 years old.

Post and Paddock

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 6.—William H. Karrick, trainer for the Shoshone Stable of W. R. Coe, had a narrow escape from a fatal accident in the paddock of the Saratoga Racing Association this afternoon. He was saddling the stable's two-year-old filly Pincushion for the first race when she reared on top of him. One of her hoofs struck him a glancing blow on the head, but fortunately he was falling with the filly and when she came down managed to roll clear.

When reminded that today was the first anniversary of the serious accident which nearly ended his riding career Earl Sande said: "Yes, I realize it. People have been very nice to me—some time I wonder if I deserve it all. But then I just keep on trying to do my best." This is typical of America's most popular jockey.

It was learned today that the two-year-old Bombshell bowed a tendon in the running of the first race yesterday.

It seemed as if every horse at the Saratoga course was out for a training gallop in the early hours this morning. Both the main course and the training tracks were alive with horses.

Roman Bachelor, which is named to go in the third race tomorrow, was a good handicap horse in England a few seasons ago. He won some of the best early Spring handicaps and was placed in others. Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark bought him to make a jumper of him, but apparently he was too old for the game.

DEMPSEY SIGNED, SAYS FITZSIMMONS

HAS TALKED WITH MULLINS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6 (AP).—Announcement that Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, had affixed his signature to articles calling for a title bout with Harry Wills, negro challenger, at Michigan City, Ind., on a date yet to be selected, "in the season of 1926," was made here tonight by Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City promoter.

Fitzsimmons also announced the receipt of a telegram from Paddy Mullins, manager for Wills, suggesting that Fitzsimmons meet him in New York to arrange details of the match.

"Mullins said that he would sign if I brought with me a contract bearing the signature of Jack Dempsey," Fitzsimmons added. "The champion signed today, and I am leaving for New York tomorrow with the contract."

The Indiana promoter said he would reveal the financial features of the fight agreement after he had obtained Mullins's O. K. Meanwhile he expressed gratification over the "success of my trip to the Coast."

Rickard Wants Tunney Bout.

Tex Rickard, failing to receive any word from Jack Dempsey, centred his attention yesterday on a Harry Wills-Gene Tunney fight which he hopes to stage in the Yankee Stadium next month. Following a brief conference with Paddy Mullins, Rickard left late in the afternoon for Saratoga Springs to confer with Tunney.

The Polo Grounds A. C. officials also entered the field in the bidding for a Wills-Tunney bout yesterday and held a conference with Mullins. Wills's manager stated he was satisfied with the terms offered, but added he first wanted to communicate by cable with Wills. He said the question of a Tunney fight either for Rickard or the Polo Grounds A. C. would be left entirely up to Wills, who is now in Germany.

The Braves bunched hits in the fourth and fifah innings and were aided by bases on balls given by Rhem. Felix was put out of the game for protesting a called strike by Umpire McCormick.

WINTER CAPTURES AMATEUR BIKE TITLE

FINISHES WITH 22 POINTS

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 6.—Charlie Winter, crack rider of the Century Road Club of America, clinched the amateur cycling championship of America by winning the last of the six races, the five-mile event, at the Newark Velodrome tonight, defeating Paul Croley of the New Crescent Wheelmen, Walter Kraus also of the New Crescent Wheelmen, and Arthur Lane of the Acme Wheelmen.

With two laps to go, Croley, whose only possible chance of retaining the title he won last year lay in a victory and shoutout for Winter without a point, jumped to second place with Winter at his wheel. On the final turn, however, Winter came from last place and, with a terrific sprint worthy of a champion, rode around the trio to win, beat Croley by two lengths. The time for the last eighth was 12 3-5 seconds.

The final point standing is: Winter, 22; Croley, 16; Heinsberg, 9; Bernhardt, 5; Raffo, 4; Kraus, 3; Skarbeck, 2; Costello, 2; Ellman, 1; Lane, 1; Keller, 1.

Winter received a floral horseshoe, a bouquet and traveling bag. He will compete in the national road racing championships next month at St. Louis. Frank L. Kramer, famous cyclist, was introduced as the amateur titleholder of 1898, and for the first time since his retirement three years ago mounted a wheel and rode around the track amid deafening applause.

Taking a flier with four laps to go, Willie Coburn won the one-mile handicap event, beating Cecil Walker, Fred Spencer, Reggie McNamara, Alf Goullet, Tony Beckman and Harry Horan. The time was 1:55. Coburn had a handicap of 60 yards. Walker rode around Fred Spencer and nipped him at the tape to get second place.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (AP).—Percy Lee Jones, after allowing only one hit for eight innings, weakened in the ninth and the Phillies beat the Cubs here today, 3 to 1. The Phillies went on a batting rampage and touched Jones for four hits, one of which was a double by Fonseca, and with the aid of two bases on balls scored enough runs to win.

Decatur, who started for the Phils, also pitched shut-out ball, allowing only three hits during his seven innings on the hill. He gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Betts finished the game, allowing one hit in two innings.

By WILLAM D. RICHARDSON.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., Aug. 6.—There were crashes galore in the opening day's play for the National Public Links championship at the Salisbury golf links today. Most of the damage was done in the first round and not a little of it happened to the New York representatives. Of the four players who captured the Harding Cup yesterday and the additional one that survived the qualifying round, only two remained on the field of action at the finish of the second round.

One was Richard A. Walsh of the Scottish-American Club, holder of the public links championship two years ago, and the other was William F. Serrick.

Joe Ford, J. P. Sahre and Albert B. Brodbeck, the other three Gotham representatives who passed muster yesterday, passed out today. None of them succeeded in surviving even the initial round, although two of them, Sahre and Ford, put up thrilling fights and forced their opponents to go extra holes.

The treatment administered to the home talent, however, was no worse than what was meted out to Cleveland, for an equal number of that city's candidates met disaster in the opening round and one of them was the player who captured the medal in the qualifying round, Nelson Davies.

Wall Plays Close to Par.

He had the misfortune to run up against John J. Wall, one of two brothers, who came all the way from Spokane, Wash. The Westerner led all the way and smothered his mid-West rival, 5 and 4, his golf being close to par.

In spite of the inroads made by the invading linksmen the metropolitan district still has a two-to-one chance over any other city to win the Standish Cup. It still has Walsh and Serrick, and not another city has more than one player.

Spokane has Wall, who went on to defeat William Barth of Newark, N. J., 3 and 2, in the second round. Washington has A. L. Houghton. These four are in the upper half of the championship brackets.

Down in the lower half the cities still left are Buffalo, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Detroit. The Bison City representative is Raymond J. McAuliffe; Chicago has E. B. Lloyd, who after conquering Pat McDonough of Pittsburgh in the opening round dispatched Bud Geoghegan, Hartford's sole survivor, in the second round.

The hopes of Pittsburgh are now pinned on Carl Kauffman, whose chief victory today was the one that he gained over James Wall of Spokane this afternoon, thus preventing any prospect of a brother versus brother final. The Detroit candidate is William Courtney.

One New Yorker Sure to Go.

One of the two remaining New Yorkers is certain to lose out tomorrow, for in case they survive their third round engagements Walsh and Serrick will clash in the semi-final round.

There were several outstanding engagements today but the most striking were the two that carried away the aspirations of Sahre and Ford. The former, playing against Carmen Bill of Cleveland, had his opponent 3 down with only six holes left, but permitted his rival to come from behind, square the match, then win on the first extra hole. The Clevelander put on a tremendous burst of speed over the last four holes, which he played in two pars, one birdie and one eagle.

Sahre was still one hole to the good as he and Bill stood on the seventeenth tee, but he committed a sinful error by hooking his iron shot into the rough. It gave Bill the hole and squared the match. Neither was able to get a decision on the home green and playing the first hole over again both failed to reach the green with their second shots. Bill, however, put his third shot ten feet from the hole and dropped the putt, while Sahre, after running four feet beyond the hole, missed the putt that would have given him a chance to carry the match on.

Ford 5 Up But Loses.

No one could wish for any better lead than the one that Ford had over Jans. At the end of the first six holes the metropolitan player was 5 up on the Chicagoan, having won the first four that they played. He was still 5 up at the turn, but that was the last hole that Jans gave him and by steady plugging he finally got to a point where the winning of the eighteenth hole would halve the match. Not only did he do that but he also won the extra hole with a birdie 3.

The cards:

Out—
Jans	5	5	5	5	5	6	5	3	3	44
Ford	4	4	4	4	5	5	6	4	3	39
In—
Jans	5	5	4	5	4	4	5	4	3	39—73
Ford	6	5	6	4	6	4	5	4	4	44—73

In defeating Davies, Wall was 2 up at the turn, but the medalist finally got to within a hole of being square and looked almost certain to become level, when at one hole, Wall was badly bunkered while the Clevelander was on the green. Wall, however, pitched out dead and won the hole, to become 2 up with eight holes to play. He won three straight holes beginning with the twelfth.

The cards:

Out—
Wall	4	4	3	4	5	5	5	5	4	39
Davies	4	5	4	4	4	6	6	4	3	40
In—
Wall	5	4	4	4	5
Davies	6	3	5	5	6

Barth, the Newark golfer, stuck close to Wall in the afternoon, for the latter was only one up at the turn. From then on, however, Wall asserted himself to win by 3 and 2.

Walsh, after being 1 down at the turn against his second round opponent, Walter Murray of St. Louis, sent up a barrage of birdies on the last nine, winning three holes and losing none.

The cards:

Out—
Walsh	5	5	3	4	6	5	5	4	3	40
Murray	4	4	3	5	5	4	6	5	3	39
In—
Walsh	4	4	4	3	4	4	4	5
Murray	5	4	5	3	5	4	4	5

McAuliffe's driving proved too much for Jans, although the Chicagoan was never down until the sixteenth hole. Starting off with a 5 at the first hole, where McAuliffe registered a 4, Jans won the third and fourth with 3s. McAuliffe won the fifth, but lost the sixth and seventh and was 2 down at the turn. There he took a new lease on life, winning the tenth and eleventh to square the match. It remained in that status as they left the fifteenth tee. Here both reached the green, but McAuliffe got a birdie 3, and he followed it up with another birdie 3 at the sixteenth. He also won the seventeenth hole, 4 to 5.

The cards:

Out—
McAuliffe	4	4	4	4	4	5	5	4	3	37
Jans	5	4	3	3	5	5	4	4	3	36

Jans	6	4	4	3	6	4	4	5

Those in the consolation flight went over to the Garden City Golf Club for a medal round, which was won by H. O'Tell, one of the Chicagoans, who had a 74.

Fan, Struck by a 'Situation' Called Home Run, Sues Cards

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 6 (AP).—First Baseman Jim Bottomley in a game June 2, between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds, "deliberately and, with the intention to create a situation commonly known as a home run," batted a baseball into the bleachers at Sportsmen's Park, complains Irwin Hayes in a suit for $7,500 damages against the owners of the St. Louis Cardinals. Hayes was in the bleachers and the ball hit him in the face, causing nervous shock and disfigurement, he asserts.

SNODGRASS TAKES CLAY COURT MATCH

Lucien Williams, Wesbrook and Reid Also Reach Western Semi-Finals.

DETROIT, Aug. 6 (AP).—Four tennis players stood tonight with championship aspirations undimmed as a result of victories in the fourth day of play in the Western clay court tennis championship tournament. With the same regularity that has characterized the tournament, favorites came through the fifth round play.

Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles and his doubles partner, Walter Wesbrook, and Lucien Williams of Chicago are the hopes of the West. Kirk Reid of Cleveland, thirteenth ranking player of the United States, is the lone Eastern star.

Lucien Williams won the right to contest with Snodgrass for the finals by disposing of Walter T. Hayes, veteran Chicagoan, 6—4, 6—3. Wesbrook and Reid play in the other semi-final match. Snodgrass was an easy victor over J. D. Cumming, Windsor, Ontario, taking the match in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4. Wesbrook and Reid eliminated the two surviving California juniors. Wesbrook won from Arthur McDougall, San Francisco, 6—2, 7—5, pulling the second set out after being on the short end, 4—1. Reid disposed of Scott Stewart, also of San Francisco, 6—2, 6—4.

One upset took place in the doubles, which were completed to the semi-finals tonight. The Reindel brothers, George and Ira, of Detroit, playing a remarkably steady game, eliminated Reid and Harry McKee, San Francisco junior, in a four-set match. The scores were 4—6, 6—4, 6—2, 6—4. Henry Wick of Cleveland and 20-year-old Clifford Marsh of Buffalo beat Scott and McDougall in four sets, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4, 6—3.

Walter T. Hayes and Williams defeated George O'Connell and Tim O'Brien of Chicago in straight sets, and Snodgrass and Wesbrook, national clay court doubles champions, disposed of Francis Tait and Dr. J. C. Montgomery, Detroit, and Robert Bradley and H. Magoon of Toledo. Miss Marion Leighton, Chicago, defending champion, will meet Mrs. J. C. Johnson of Detroit in the finals of the women's singles.

BRITISH NETMEN LOSE, 1-5.

West Side Tennis Club Crushes Oxford-Cambridge Players.

The West Side Tennis Club defeated the Oxford-Cambridge players yesterday in a dual match on the West Side courts at Forest Hills, 5 to 1. The home team won all four matches in singles and the two doubles matches were divided. H. K. Lester and E. M. Jonklaas won the only match for the collegians, defeating Franklin P. Ferguson and Zenzo Shimizu at 6—1, 6—4.

The summaries:

TILDEN-JOHNSTON WIN IN DOUBLES

Beat Williams and Richards and Loom as Davis Cup Prospects.

KINSEY SINGLES VICTOR

By ALLISON DANZIG.

William Tilden and William Johnston gained a position as the leading Davis Cup doubles prospects yesterday when they defeated R. Norris Williams 2d and Vincent Richards in the third and deciding match of the trials at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills. It was not, however, before they had been beaten in the first set by the devastating fire of their opponents, who took the first set from them at love in nine minutes and threatened to repeat their victory of Tuesday in even more decisive fashion. The score was 0—6, 6—1, 8—6, 6—4.

The last of the singles trials in the round robin series also were played. Howard Kinsey of San Francisco kept his slate clean by defeating George Lott Jr. of Chicago at 6—4, 6—4, 6—1, and in the other match Cranston Holman of Stanford University, whose work all season has been outstanding, disposed of John Hennessey of Indianapolis, seventh in the ranking, at 9—7, 4—6, 6—0, 6—4.

The victory of Tilden and Johnston, their second in three starts, does not definitely decide their selection as the challenge round doubles team, though it is the general opinion that they will be named again as the team, as they were last year, when they defeated Patterson and O'Hara Wood of Australia. Julian S. Myrick, Chairman of the Davis Cup Committee, stated yesterday that the four men, Tilden, Johnston, Richards and Williams, will probably be named as the team and the designation of who will play the singles and the doubles will be made later. The team must be named twenty-one days in advance of the challenge round, which will be held at the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia, beginning Sept. 10.

Johnston and Richards to Meet.

There is a possibility that Tilden might be named with Williams or with Richards, with both of whom he has played the doubles match in challenge rounds. The question of whether Richards or Johnston is to be named as the other singles player with Tilden will have some bearing on the selection of the doubles combination. Johnston and Richards will meet for the first time this season tomorrow in the East-West matches at Forest Hills and the match will have the status of a Davis Cup singles trial.

Johnston was the big man on the court yesterday. It took him a while to find himself against the avalanche of smashing placements let loose by Richards and Williams in the first set, but once he got started he was the most consistent performer of the four. Seldom has the Californian's forehand drive stood up as it did in this match. Playing with every ounce of energy at his command, Johnston fairly took Richards and Williams off their feet with his blistering pace.

His returns of service traveled so fast that they could hardly be seen and the remarkable thing was the consistency with which he kept his drives under control. Only the great saves of Richards, and occasionally of Williams, enabled them to keep the ball in play.

Johnston was always a deadly menace at the net with his smashing volleys and cleverly placed overhead shots and his service, after the first set, was more effective than any of the three others.

Tilden Was Irresistible.

Tilden made some of the greatest shots of the match and was extremely brilliant at the net at times, but his work was faulty at periods and his returns of service were glaringly weak. He rose to his best heights in the final set and was irresistible. Richards and Williams never approached again the form they showed in the opening chapter.

Richards's streaking returns of service were matched only by his partner's marvelous backhand shots, made off a rising ball, which confounded Tilden again and again. It would be difficult to say which was the greater at the net, Richards or Williams. Richards missed nothing, either on the straight volley or overhead.

In the second set the situation was almost completely reversed, and for the rest of the match the two teams fought on even terms.

MISS M'GARY BREAKS WORLD SWIM RECORD

DETROIT, Aug. 6 (AP).—A new world's mark for the 880-yard swim for women was set here today by Miss Ethel McGary of New York, competing in the national A. A. U. outdoor swimming championship for women, when she swam the distance in 12 minutes and 57 seconds. The previous record of 13 minutes 19 seconds was made by Miss Gertrude Ederle, New York, in 1923 at Indianapolis. Continuing on the course, Miss McGary lowered the American mile record held by Miss Helen Wainwright, swimming the distance in 26 minutes 33 2-5 seconds.

At the end of today's events the team of the New York Women's Swimming Association had amassed a safe lead in the race for the team championships.

The large number of entrants in the diving and free style events necessitated a number of preliminary heats today, with the result that the finals probably will be completed in these tomorrow.

Rain Again Halts Harness Races.

MONROE, N. Y., Aug. 6.—For the second consecutive day, rain interfered with the racing at Monroe, N. Y. Today only one heat was run in the 2-year-old trot. This was won by Rosedale of the Kirby stables, Goshen, N. Y., with Bright Dawn, second; Peter Stanford, from the William H. Lees stables, Monroe, third, and Alice Etawa, owned by Harry Bruce of Windsor, locks fourth. The program will be continued Friday, weather permitting.

MISS WILLS GAINS SEMI-FINAL AT RYE

Beats Miss Anderson, 6-1, 6-3, on Heavy Court—Dampness Halts Other Matches.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Miss Helen Wills, national women's tennis champion, reached the semi-final round of the women's New York State tennis championship today on the courts of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club. In the only match of the day the Berkeley girl defeated Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., at 6—1, 6—3. The other contests were called off on account of the dampness of the courts. It was not until near the close of the day that the champion and her opponent met, after groundsmen had worked on the courts all afternoon.

Miss Anderson was unable to make any headway in the first set, which found Miss Wills stroking the ball hard and with the best of control. From one corner to the other she directed her shots, compelling Miss Anderson to keep on the run and giving her few opportunities to get set. In the second set the Virginia girl succeeded in taking three games from the champion, mainly through her persistency in getting the ball back.

Miss Wills found it difficult to put across a winning shot, so thoroughly did Miss Anderson cover court, and frequently lost the point on an error after a long rally. The heaviness of the turf seemed to bother the champion, and Miss Anderson resorted to a change of pace at times to draw her out of position for a finishing shot. In general, the showing of the Richmond girl was highly commendable.

Tomorrow afternoon the three other matches in the round before the semi-finals will be played. At 2:30 P. M. Mrs. Molla Mallory will oppose Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup; at 3:30 Miss Mary K. Browne will play Miss Eleanor Goss, and at 4:30 Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy will meet. The doubles tournament will continue tomorrow morning at 10:45. The semi-finals of the singles will be held on Saturday and the final on Sunday.

EAST-WEST TENNIS WILL START TODAY

EAST-WEST MATCHES TODAY.

4 P. M.—Court 3—Manuel Alonso vs. Cranston Holman.
5 P. M.—Court 2—Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams 2d vs. William Johnston and Clarence Griffin.
6 P. M.—Court 2—William Tilden and George Lott vs. the Kinsey brothers.

The annual East-West tennis match, bringing together the best players of the two sections of the country, will begin this afternoon at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills. For the first time in the history of the series players from the Middle West will take part in the matches, and in addition Manuel Alonso of the Spanish Davis Cup team, whose home is in Allentown, Pa., will play for the East.

Dr. George King of New York and John Hennessey of Indianapolis will meet in the opening match of the series this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Alonso will play Holman in the other singles contest of the day. Two doubles matches will complete the afternoon's contest, in which Vincent Richards and Captain R. Norris Williams 2d will be opposed to William Johnston and Clarence Griffen, and William Tilden and George Lott will face the Kinsey brothers, national champions.

Tomorrow's program includes three singles matches and two in doubles. The feature will be the meeting between Richards and Johnston at 3 o'clock, their first of the year and also their first since Richards defeated Johnston in this series last year.

BROOKLYN CRICKETERS WIN.

The Metropolitan Cricket League championship fixture, played at Glenfield Park, Montclair, yesterday, between the Newark and Brooklyn clubs, resulted in one of the closest and most exciting contests brought off in that series this season, the Brooklyn team winning the match by the narrow margin of 3 runs, on totals of 101 to 98.

SOUND YACHTS LOSE OFF MARBLEHEAD

YANKEE IS TWICE WINNER

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 6.—In the international races sailed today for the Eastern Yacht Club Ladies' Plate by the Class R yachts the two Long Island representatives, the Ardette, owned by Donald H. Cowl, and the Quiver, by Philip R. Mallory, fared poorly. Each won a second place and each came in last. Nor were the Norwegian designed and built yachts much better, with the exception of the Norsman, which captured one of the races.

Yet the conditions, an eight-knot breeze and a lump of a sea, were supposed to be to the liking of the Ardette. At least most of her races on the Sound were won in winds stronger than five knots. In the afternoon race sailed against four yachts she was scarcely a factor from start to finish, nor was the Quiver ever threatening so far as first place was concerned.

On the other hand, the Boston productions were always to be reckoned with, especially the Gypsy, designed in 1923 by Frank C. Paine and sailed with great skill to victory in two races today, and the Yankee, designed by L. Francis Herreshoff, a son of the master naval architect, with which her owner, Charles A. Welch, won two races, not only against such an able skipper as Charles Francis Adams in his new Dandelion but also against Commodore Johan Anker in one of his own boats. The accomplishment of Captain Welch in the Yankee was perhaps the feature of the day.

The arrival of a new breeze from the eastward which hit it up to a whitecap affair at times was welcome this morning when the yachts came out to sail yesterday's postponed race. For a time Massachusetts Bay looked ugly, but the wind kept below ten knots. Both races were sailed over an eight-mile triangular course which was a reach, a beat and a reach to the finish.

In the forenoon race the Quiver, sailing against the Ellen, Opechee III and Tycoona, trailed almost from the start, the heavy weather not being to her liking. On the other hand the Ardette, after being third boat to the Spry and Norseman, got into a luffing match with the latter and won second place at the finish.

In the afternoon the Quiver clung on to the Yankee all the way and was beaten by about a half minute, but the Ardette was dropped on each leg and finished a poor fourth.

The standing for the plate at the end of the racing today by points was: Dandelion, Ellen and Gypsy 13 each, Yankee 11, Momiji and Opechee III 9 each, Ardlette, Norman and Tycoona 8 each, Shew and Spry 7½ each, Quiver 7 and Scapa II 5.

BAY SHORE RACE WON BY HESITATION

SAILING CONTESTS OFF

Lack of Wind Spoils Regatta on Association Cruise—The Harmony Also Victor.

BAY SHORE, L. I., Aug. 6.—For the first time in the history of the cruises of the Great South Bay Yacht Racing Association, the regatta committee of a race was forced to call off a sailing due to the lack of wind. None but some boats of the smaller divisions were able to cover the course. Although there was little or no wind at the start, it was decided to send the boats in the fleet over the usual association couse in the hope that the breeze would freshen and the craft would finish within the time limit. Unfortunately the light northeast breeze blew itself out and after drifting for several hours, the race in all but the smaller divisions was called off.

The only classes that finished were the catboats of Class W and the class of little C. C. knockabouts. The winner in the former division was Teaser, which is owned by C. A. Axtmann Jr. In the knockabout class, the winner was J. T. Walker's Peg II.

The power-boat cruising fleet arrived here this morning from Babylon. During the morning, there were motor boat races. In the Elco cruisette class the winner was Helen Janes, which is owned by D. MacDonald. Among the cruisers, first division, the winner was Pequest, the property of L. Smith. The second division was taken by Harmony, which belongs to S. H. Gillespie. The speedboat class was won by Louis Smyth's Hesitation.

The fleet will leave here tomorrow morning for Bellport Bay. There will be a race for the motor boats from port to port.

HOLT NOT CONFIDENT ABOUT WORLD COURT

He Says Senate Victory Requires Aggressive Leadership by Coolidge.

AND HE IS 'NO CRUSADER'

Opposition May Force Democrats to Reject the Proposal, as in the Case of the League, He Declares.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Aug. 6.—Hamilton Holt, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate against Hiram Bingham last December, believes the entrance of the United States into the World Court depends on aggressive leadership of President Coolidge.

Mr. Holt was in this city today and was asked whether he thought the Senate would accept the Court under the Harding-Hughes plan, as advocated by President Coolidge.

"The answer to this queestion apparently lies in the hollow of President Coolidge's hand," Mr. Holt said. "If he makes a real aggressive fight lukewarm Republican Senators will doubtless fall into line. But Mr. Coolidge is no crusader, as Wilson and Roosevelt were. He does not try to force his ideas on Congress or the country. If, as seems likely, he takes his usual moderate course, publicly supporting the Court, but leaving the rest to the Senate, then the fate of the Court is in the lap of the gods.

"For this would seem to be the situation: The Democratic Senators, with the exception of Reed of Missouri, Dill of Washington and possibly Blease of South Carolina, will vote for the Court to a man, provided the Republicans do not insist on reservations that insult the League of Nations, or that simply save the faces of the Republican 'bitter-enders.'

"The Republicans are split in two. One faction will stay regular and follow the President. The Senators of this group have no leader worthy of the name to direct the fight on the floor of the Senate or to be their spokesman before the public. As far as the Court is concerned they are undoubtedly more interested in party morale than in world morality. The Senators comprising the other faction are extraordinarily ably led. They will not make the mistake of defeating the Court outright and have the onus therefrom descend upon their heads. Rather they will overload the Court with such impossible reservations that either the Democrats will have to reject it as they did the Covenant of the League of Natons, or else the foreign nations will not accept them.

"Already we have indications of what these reservations are likely to be. It will be attempted to divest the Court of its power to issue advisory opinions, although several American States, including Maine and Massachusetts, give the Governor or Legislature power to ask such opinions from the State Supreme Court. It will also be attempted to disfranchise the British colonies as component members of the Court, thus preventing Ireland and Canada from settling a dispute with us or with England before the tribunal.

"It would be ludicrous if it were not so serious to note how the United States Senate is doing everything it can to prevent Ireland and the other British colonies from achieving an international status by evolution that we achieved by revolution. Historically, the British colonies are acquiring their international rights before their national rights. This may be the unorthodox way to do it, but one would think the Senate would give the helping hand to those sister peoples which did not leave the maternal hearthstone when we broke away."

WARDMAN IS BUILDING BIG LONDON HOSTELRY

LONDON, Aug. 6.—One of the most luxurious hotels in Europe, constructed and managed according to American standards, will be built in Piccadilly facing Green Park, it was announced today. When the Park Lane Hotel receives its first guests on Christmas Day, 1926, $2,000,000 will have been expended.

The financial backer is Harry Wardman of Washington, D. C., formerly a Yorkshireman, who was penniless when he went to the United States years ago.

Nine-tenths of the money has been raised in Yorkshire, according to Bracewell Smith, head of the syndicate. The construction, which began at noon today, put an end to ten years' speculation over what eventually would be done with the huge steel frame in the heart of the club and residential district. Sir Richard Sutton, who was killed in the war, planned the hotel, but never got further than the framework.

The Piccadilly Hotel will resemble the Savoy Hotel in general appearance. There will be 400 rooms, each with a bath, in the twelve-story building. All the staff will be British born.

One of the features will be a separate building with modern quarters for the guests' dogs. Another building near the hotel will have, in addition to garage facilities, 100 rooms for chauffeurs of the guests.

GETS HEARING AT LAST.

Writer Charged 2 Months Ago That City Employe Insulted Him.

After a two months' fight to place before officials his complaint that he was insulted by a city employe in Central Park on June 2, Robert A. Parke, 74 years old, of 33 East Sixty-third Street, a writer, who was one of the persons who seized Charles J. Guiteau after the latter had fatally shot President Garfield in Washington in 1881, appeared before Park Commissioner Gallatin yesterday at a special hearing of the charge.

Mr. Parke said that while taking his usual stroll with his dog in the park on June 2, he had been accosted by the employe, John J. O'Leary, and insulted. He said that O'Leary used obscene language and had abused him, going so far as to threaten physical violence.

Florence Scott of 855 Lexington Avenue, said she had seen O'Leary at work in the park nearly every day for several years and had never seen him create a disturbance.

The hearing was then adjourned until Monday.

2 Testify on Mail Order Bootlegging

Two witnesses were heard yesterday before the Federal Grand Jury that is conducting a John Doe investigation of the "mail order bootlegging" alleged to have been centred in a distributing plant at 1,123 Broadway, recently raided by Federal agents. The witnesses were Pye Jacobs of Des Moines, Iowa, and Frank C. Sharp of Detroit. Information about the evidence of the two was refused by Assistant United States District Attorney Robert E. Manley, in charge of the office during Mr. Buckner's vacation, and Assistant Attorney John M. Harlan

More Gallantry Demanded Of Jersey City Police Force

Chief of Police Battersby of Jersey City moved yesterday to correct the un-Chesterfieldian conduct of members of the force. He issued an order to all seven precincts calling for more gallantry among the police, particularly in trolley cars and busses.

"Complaints are again coming," said the order, "that uniformed policemen are keeping their seats in trolleys and busses while pay passengers have to stand. If this is not stopped an example will be made. Only the ignorant could be guilty of an ocucrrence of this sort and they must learn."

GENEVA DOCTORS VIEW LETTER OF NAPOLEON

GENEVA, Aug. 6.—The story of how a famous Swiss doctor refused to reply to the appeal made by Napoleon Bonaparte, then a young Lieutenant stationed at Corsica, for a written consultation regarding his uncle, who was suffering from gout, is found in a letter forming part of the exhibition gathered here for the Congress on Medical History. Of equal interest to the doctor's disdain of the youth who later became his sovereign is the commentary which the letter contains on the future Emperor's knowledge of the French language at the time he was a subaltern of the French Army.

The unusual document is addressed to Dr. Tissot of Lausanne, one of the most prominent physicians of the eighteenth century. Following an ill-written preamble, the introduction says that the writer's uncle, who was 70 years of age, was suffering from gout. The writer says he realized that the request was a bit belated, considering the patient's age, but in view of the fact that some people live to the age of 100 years there was reason to hope his uncle might profit from the doctor's advice. It relates how the uncle when still a youth was told by an elderly gout victim that he would suffer from the malady because he had a large head and small feet and hands.

The conclusion says: "The humanity of monsieur makes me hope that you will deign to reply to this consultation, which is so badly written. For the past month I have been tormented with a fierce fever, which makes me doubt whether you will be able to read his scratching."

Across the top of this letter in the handwriting of Dr. Tissot are the words "letter unanswered—no interest."

118 ARE INJURED IN RIOT IN WALES

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The situation in the Welsh anthracite coal strike became desperate today when 106 miners and 12 policemen, including an Inspector and Chief Constable, were injured in rioting, which began at Ammanford late yesterday and continued until the early hours of this morning. An appeal has been made for military aid, as further more serious riots are feared.

The police were completely overwhelmed by 600 strikers, who, singing and shouting, threw stones, used sticks and other missiles as reinforcements arrived, and repeated baton charges finally drove the enraged strikers back.

The trouble started when strikers unsuccessfully tried to take safety men away from the pits. Live electric wires kept them away from the power house, but the men were so aroused they attacked a small handful of police in revenge and a hand-to-hand struggle developed. Colliery offices were completely wrecked, and further excitement was added to the scene when strikers set fire to several wagonloads of hay. Medical men came from all surrounding towns.

WORK SAYS HE WANTS AID.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—Secretary Work said today the doors of the Interior Department were wide open to such an investigation as the Senate Public Lands Committee proposes to make into natural resources, or to any investigation by any other authorized agency.

"The department welcomes investigation and if there is anything going wrong here we want to know it," the Secretary said. "I have been investigating the department for the last two years and I want all the help I can get. We have nothing to hide here.

"The department has furnished the Senate committee with all the files and data requested and will supply any other information desired. Officials of the department and the field forces have been instructed to cooperate with the committee in every respect. I am willing to give the committee blanket authority to investigate every angle of the department's work.

"I have neither political nor social ambition nor financial obligations. I am only a public servant and want all the aid I can get in administering the affairs of this office."

Estimates 14,830,832 Jews in World

BERLIN, Aug. 4 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The dispute concerning the total number of Jews in the world has become more complicated by the publication here of new figures gathered by Jacob Lestschinsky, who says that the total is 14,830,832. According to the American Jewish Yearbook the total is 15,000,000, while Trietsch's estimate is 17,000,000. Besides these figures there are others less authoritative compiled in America and elsewhere.

SOLD UNFIT CATTLE; JAILED AND FINED

REPRESENTED AS SOUND

Ex-School Commissioner, Ex-Sheriff and Three Cattle Dealers Among Those Sentenced to Jail.

CORTLAND, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP).—Six of eleven cattle dealers and farmers, indicted by a Special Grand Jury in Cortland County for selling condemned tubercular cattle, today were sentenced to varying terms in the Cortland County Jail and to pay heavy fines. Four escaped jail terms, but were fined, and one was granted a suspended sentence.

Daniel B. Grant, named by Supreme Court Justice Hill as the apparent head of a conspiracy to save condemned cattle from slaughter by the State, and sell them as sound and first class stock, was sentenced to six months on the first of twelve indictments. On the second indictment he was also sentenced to six months, but sentence was suspended until the Spring term of the Supreme Court. On the remaining ten indictments he was fined $150 each, for a total of $1,500.

C. W. Ellis, attorney, former School Commissioner and farmer, also mentioned by the Court as a conspirator, and against whom three indictments were returned, was sentenced to six months in jail on the first indictment, a similar sentence was suspended until the Spring term on the second indictment, and he was fined $200 on the third.

Benjamin Kaplan, cattle dealer and slaughter house proprietor, mentioned as the third conspirator, was sentenced to three months in jail. Kaplan turned state's evidence.

Frank M. Henry, cattle dealer and formerly a sheriff, was sentenced to jail for two months and was fined $200.

Claude E. Dayton, in the words of the Court, a "tool of Grant," was sentenced to jail for two months.

Clarence Rood, said by the Court also to have been Grant's "tool," and who did not profit by the illegal sales, escaped with a suspended sentence when Justice Hill learned that he had nine children to support.

Those fined were:

TO 'PEP' HYMNS IN CHURCH.

After elaborate experiments with organ and jazz orchestra on the musical structure of the hymns "Holy! Holy! Holy!" and "Onward, Christian Soldier!" before six evangelical clergymen at a luncheon of the Exchange Club at the Hotel McAlpin, Ernie Golden, leader of the Hotel McAlpin Orchestra, was invited yesterday "to put pep into the hymns" at evensong at the Broadway Temple on Aug. 23 by the Rev. Charles Norman Hogel, assistant to Dr. Christian Reisner.

Golden explained his proposal for shorter and brighter hymns as not being "jazz" in any sense. All he expected to do, he said, was to give the hymns a different and more rapid tempo. Hymns were usually droned out by a second-rate organ and sung by fifth-rate singers, he declared, and he announced that if he were allowed to give his orchestra a chance in a good church there would be "standing room only."

The ministers at the luncheon were the Rev. Charles Norman Hogel, Methodist; the Rev. Dr. Stanley B. Miles, Methodist, pastor of the Metropolitan Temple; the Rev. O. P. Gillmore, pastor of Grace Methodist Church; the Rev. J. Sidney Gould of the West Park Presbyterian Church, the Rev. J. J. Kelly of the Calvary Baptist Church and the Rev. P. C. Warren of the West End Presbyterian Church.

FOG DELAYS NIGHT AIR MAIL.

Eastbound Plane Held Up at Cleveland—Westbound Fails to Start.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Aug. 6.—The night air mail service between New York and Chicago was interrupted tonight for the first time since its inception July 1, by dense fog and haze along the entire route.

The eastbound mail, due here at 5:30, had not arrived at Hadley Field, the eastern terminus, up to 11:45. Officials here received word it had been held up by bad weather at Cleveland. The westbound mail, consisting of fifteen pouches weighing 176 pounds, due to leave this station at 9:29 for Chicago in charge of Pilot Lloyd F. Bertand, was still here at 11:45 o'clock with no let-up of the haze in prospect.

The injury of Pilot Harry A. Chandler at Bloomsburg, Pa., last night, the first accident since the service was started and the poor visibility tonight influenced the officials to take no risk.

NEW YORKER A SUICIDE.

F. B. Thomason, Broker, Shoots Himself at Alexandria Bay.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, Aug. 6.—Frederick B. Thomason, an insurance broker of New York, shot and killed himself this morning at 9 o'clock. Ill health is believed to have been the cause.

Mr. Thomason had spent most of his Summers here for fifteen years. Mrs. Thomason, his third wife, whom he married about a year ago, was Miss Stephenson of Gananogue, Ontario.

Mrs. Thomason was in the kitchen this morning talking with the cook, who was preparing breakfast. She heard a shot, and when she reached Mr. Thomason, who was in a front room, he was dead. He was 55 years old.

Declaring that the "orgy of lawmaking" which has swept America has made it practically impossible to bring a citizen immediately before a jury for an impartial judgment on the evidence of both sides, the statement continued:

"But if my indictment will only awaken and arouse the people and our lawmakers to necessary action in order to protect decent citizens against the perjured tongues of arch-criminals, blackmailers and convicted felons, as in this case, I am willing to be the victim for an immeasurable service to American institutions which will have been rendered."

Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea, Mass., was in the limelight during the last Democratic National Convention in New York by his attack on the Ku Klux Klan. He fought the Klan issue at every possible point, and attempted to have the minority report reconsidered. But his effort was squelched by the convention, which booed him and made it evident that they wished no revival of that dangerous and unprofitable argument.

He was only 29 years old at that time, the youngest Mayor in Massachusetts. He was in the House of Representatives of Massachusetts for two years, and during the war served on a navy supply ship. He was a newsboy, an office boy and a salesman before he went into politics.

At one time in the convention he questioned the right of a delegate to vote twice in the Philippine delegation and succeeded in gaining a vote and a half for the anti-Klan plank. Then he went to the Nevada delegation and attempted to get a man there to change his vote. He was finally ruled out of order by Chairman Walsh. He tried a night or two later to raise the Klan issue again and was promptly ruled out of order.

BRITISH RUBBER FIRMS ASK HELP OF BALDWIN

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Fourteen British rubber manufacturing firms have signed a manifesto to the Prime Minister stating that they are short of rubber supplies, due to the operation of the Stevenson restriction scheme, which is having a serious effect on the British manufacturing industry. The manifesto demands modification of the Stevenson scheme "by introduction of expedients or amendments to carry out the expressed intention of the Legislature, viz., a stabilized price for rubber at one shilling threepence per pound."

Oswald Moseley, governing director of the Manchester rubber manufacturing firm bearing his name, who is a former member of the Stevenson committee which framed the restriction scheme, issued a statement today emphasizing the vital need for the release of further supplies of rubber if employment in rubber factories is to be maintained.

"Many factories," he said, "are short of rubber and some are working short time and will have to close down altogether, throwing thousands of workers on dole. If the Government does not grant an extra release the Colonies will inevitably take the law into their own hands."

An interesting statement of America's attitude toward British rubber production was made by C. H. Strutt, Chairman of the Anglo-Dutch Plantations of Java, at the annual meeting today.

"I asked the Chairman of one of the biggest companies in America why they, with the Stevenson scheme staring them in the face, did not buy when rubber was cheaper. He replied that it was owing to the action of the banks, not the manufacturers, the banks refusing to advance money for the purpose. This is not the whole story. A much larger demand from the continent lately has evidently come as a surprise to American buyers. Though we criticize the action of their tire manufacturers, they have beaten us in supplying cars everywhere outside of England."

States Receive $87,801,946 From U. S. in a Year—4,587 More Miles to Be Accepted.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—A total of 9,445 miles of Federal aid highways were built and accepted during the fiscal year ended June 30, at a cost of $190,485,399, of which the Federal Government paid $87,801,946.

In addition to this 4,587 miles were completed, but have not been accepted formally by the Government, at a cost of $105,123,086, of which Federal aid totalled $47,606,101.

If these vouchers are paid the total cost for the year will be $295,608,485, of which Federal aid will constitute $135,408,047 and the mileage total 14,032 miles.

Statistics made public today at the Department of Agriculture showed Texas led with 784 miles, built at a cost of $11,778,972 and received Federal aid of $4,867,315. Illinois built 431 miles for $13,045,775 and received $6,360,529. South Dakota built 458 miles for $3,416,836 and received $1,745,242.

Reports of the following States as regards accepted highways were included:

State	Total Cost.	Federal Aid.	Mileage.
Connecticut	$1,495,767	$549,810	28

SECURITY PARLEY MONDAY.

PARIS, Aug. 6 (AP).—Official announcement was made today that Foreign Minister Briand would leave Paris at noon next Monday for London, there to discuss with Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, the reply that is to be made to the second note of Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, with regard to security.

M. Briand will be accompanied by M. Berthelot, General Secretary of the Foreign Ministry, and a few experts.

In the course of their talk with Mr. Chamberlain, the French delegates will go over the rough draft of a proposed security compact, the broad outlines of which were suggested about a month ago by the British and which since have been amplified by the French Foreign Office.

It was said in official circles today that the Allies were near an accord on all the details of the proposed compact, and the pessimism shown in London caused some surprise here. The report that M. Vandervelde, the Belgian Foreign Minister, was presenting suggestions widely divergent from the French standpoint with regard to security was declared to be groundless.

It was asserted that the French and the Belgians were practically agreed on all the essential points, and that it remained only for M. Briand and Mr. Chamberlaid to iron out a few minor kinks in order to make an early reply to Berlin possible.

MORE GIFTS FOR TRIPLETS.

But Father Still Lacks Employment to Feed Family.

Mother and triplets are doing fine, but father is still out of work, was the report yesterday to inquiries concerning the welfare of the family of Mr. and Mrs. James Mulvaney, parents of seven children, who make their home in two whitewashed rooms near a stable in the rear of 99 Central Avenue, Newark.

The triplets were born last Monday. Their arrival brought dismay to the parents who were finding it difficult to struggle along. Publication of the family's flight brought some relief yesterday. Donations of clothes, food and money were made by persons who had read the story in the newspapers. One caller at the house yesterday was a nurse who offered her services. Mulvaney said if he got a job "everything will be rosy."

DROWNED YOUTH IS FOUND.

Cousin of Joseph Donovan, Banker's Son, Ends Three-Day Search.

The body of Joseph Donovan, 15-year-old son of J. F. Donovan, of 56 East 122d Street, National Bank of Commerce official and President of the Shenandoah Democratic Club, was recovered last night from the Hudson River near Grant's Tomb. The youth was drowned on the night of Aug. 3 while swimming with a number of boys.

His cousin, George Early of 26 East 129th Street, who had been searching for the body in a row boat for three nights, found it floating last night at 7 o'clock. At the time of the drowning, his companions had searched fruitlessly for him for hours. For three days the marine police grappled unsuccessfully for the body.

Last night two boys swimming in the river near Early's rowboat, called to him that they had seen a body floating near by. He found it a few minutes later.

THE PLAY

Music and the "Charm School."

JUNE DAYS, a musical comedy in three acts; book by Cyrus Wood, lyrics by Clifford Grey, and music by J. Fred Coots. Based on "The Charm School," by Alice Duer Miller and Robert Milton. At the Astor Theatre.

Butler	Ralph Reader
Susie Rolles	Gladys Walton
Mrs. Rolles	Winifred Harris
Sally Boyd	Berta Donn
George Boyd	Maurice Holland
Herman Van Zandt	Lee Kohlmar
David Stewart	George Dobbs
Austin Bevans	Roy Royston
Miss Hayes	Claire Grenville
Miss Curtis	Millie James
Elise Benedotti	Elizabeth Hines
Johnson	Jay C. Flippen
Helen	Aileen Meehan
Dorothy	Bobbie Perkins
Edna	Sylvia Carol
Renee	Joan Lyons

Once the plot of "June Days," put on last evening at the Astor Theatre, did well enough as simple fiction. Not long afterward it bloomed again as the theme of a gay skit entitled "The Charm School," which had a pleasant day on Broadway, and now it serves well enough the uses of musical comedy. As such it proved graceful and diverting last evening, once the preliminary business of saying "hello" had been gotten over with, and as soon as the chorus girls, for the moment masquerading as the pupils of the Bevans School, had appeared on the stage.

As nearly every one must know by this time, the plot concerns the feasibility of placing in charge of a young ladies' school an extremely personable young man. The story and the comedy strung on that theme seemed to argue against it. The musical play is no more encouraging to the educational ideal, but contrives to take the melancholy results less seriously.

And the pupils, the chorus girls, last evening did all that they could, dancing and kicking in groups and alone, all with the energy, precision and eagerness of the Hoffman troupe. Without the turns which had been devised for them at the conclusion of each musical number and a single military drill, "June Days" might have seemed much longer than it actually proved to be. Here, for once the girls had been skilfully chosen, for intelligence as well as charm; and the comedy profited by just that much.

The entertainment is spread out evenly through three acts in the usual drawing-room of a suburban dwelling, the principal's room at the Bevan's School, where charm is taught more earnestly than learning, and the girls' dormitory early one morning. For how else might we see the filmy pajamas sacred to such a room and single beds arranged in an orderly row? At any rate, these are the scenes where the sentimental incidents of the comedy occur, and where it is definitely established, once and for all time, that pretty girls cannot be instructed by charming men.

Miss Hines was the unruly Elise who fell in love with her teacher, long before he had faced pedagogy as a career; and in that part she proved sufficiently appealing. As Austen Bevans, the teacher, Mr. Royston added a good deal of quiet comedy, and sang in good voice. Most of the music seemed lacking in distinction, as did most of the singers. One dance number entitled, "June Days Waltz," which recurred several times, had an agreeable air. "Why Is Love" gave Miss Hines and Mr. Royston a chance to pose and pirouette gracefully, and another entitled "Anytime, Anywhere, Anyhow" had real musical quality. For the rest the three numbers sung by Jay C. Flippen, in black-face, were the most enjoyable. His part as gardner to this exotic school affords the only boisterous amusement. One of his many amoritas, in fact, or so he said, is so stingy that during the eclipse she tried to send a night letter. Ridiculous! One can scarcely believe such absurdities!

Belasco Changes Plans.

A change in his plans for the early part of the season was announced yesterday by David Belasco. Mr. Belasco had expected to reopen next week his three productions of last season—"The Harem," at the Belasco; "The Dove," at the Empire, and "Ladies of the Evening," at the Lyceum. Instead, "Ladies of the Evening" will resume at the Lyceum a week from tomorrow night and "The Dove" at the Empire on the following Monday, Aug. 24. No plans have as yet been made for the reopening of "The Harem" here.

Negroes to Try for Opera Course.

Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana, former Metropolitan tenor, is holding an audition at Town Hall this evening to decide who of the twenty-four negro soprano singers shall win the scholarship which he has offered. He will give the successful singer a free course of instruction in grand opera.

Parleys Are Started With Manchurians for Release of Captured Peking Professor.

PEKING, Aug. 6 (AP).—Dr. Harvey J. Howard of the Peking Union Medical College, who was captured by Manchurian bandits on July 20, when Morgan Palmer, an American, was killed, is held by the bandits at a place seventy li (about twenty miles) from Fuchowhsien, which is the nearest station to Palmer's ranch on the Sungari River. This information was included in a telegram sent to Harbin by Samuel Sokobin, the American Consul at Harbin, who is attempting to secure Howard's release.

Mr. Sokobin's telegram said that Dr. Howard was being well treated. Officials of the Manchurian Province of Holung-kiang have assembled at Fuchow-hsien and are ready to begin negotiations with the bandits for Dr. Howard's release.

Other members of the party which was at the Palmer ranch when Palmer was killed and Dr. Howard was captured, including Mr. Palmer's mother and Dr. Howard's son, James, are expected daily at Harbin.

GANZ CONDUCTS AT STADIUM

Gives Program of Strauss, Debussy and Tchaikowsky—Wagner Tonight

Rudolph Ganz conducted a fine program at the Stadium last evening. Besides Debussy's "Marche Ecossaise," which was presented there for the first time, he gave a smooth interpretation of Richard Strauss's "Till Eulenspiegel." Mr. Ganz gave two encores, the second one being his own attractive "St. Louis Symphony March," in which he uses syncopation to good effect. Tschaikovsky's Fifth Symphony, the second part of the program, is a favorite with Stadium audiences, who enjoy the Russian composer's melancholy and emotionalism.

Tonight there will be a Wagner program, and the young singer, Miss Helen Traubel, a soprano from St. Louis, will make her New York début.

Miss Miller to Sing at Baden-Baden.

Rosalie Miller, in answer to a cablegram, will sing the rôle of Pamina in "The Magic Flute" at the Baden-Baden Mozart Festival on Aug. 16. Miss Miller, who is a member of the Faculty of the New York Institute of Musical Art, returned to New York after her European successes. She gave five recitals in London and fifteen in Paris, where she appeared in conjunction with Gabriel Pierné, and with the Orchestra de Paris, under Casadesus; also with the orchestra of the Paris Conservatoire under Walter Damrosch. In Berlin she gave a recital of Eric Korngold's compositions, with Korngold at the piano. In Dresden Miss Miller appeared at the opera as Mimi in "La Bohème," with Busch conducting.

Last Festival Concert.

Columbia University held the final concert of its music festival last evening in the gymnasium. The chorus of the Columbia University Summer session and a professional orchestra of fifty musicians took part under the direction of Professor Walter Henry Hall. The program included Beethoven's overture, "Coriolan," the choral from the "Meistersinger," beautifully sung by the chorus, and Elgar's "King Olaf." The soloists were Nora Fauchald, Wendell Hart, Norman Jolliffe and F. Lorenz Smith. Elgar's Cantata received a fine interpretation, the work of the chorus being especially good. Professor Walter Henry Hall and the soloists were warmly applauded.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Spooks," now at the Cort, will move to Daly's Sixty-third Street Theatre next Monday night instead of Wallack's, as first planned.

Edward H. Wever and Ruth Tester are recent additions to the cast of "A Lucky Break," coming to the Cort next Tuesday night.

"The Poor Nut" will move from Henry Miller's Theatre to the Forty-eighth Street Theatre a week from Monday.

"Maid Marian," by S. K. Laurens, will be produced soon by Patterson McNutt.

SHIP BRINGS RACING YACHT

Mr. Jessup brought his yacht East for the Port Washington regatta. As soon as the Finland docked the Windward was removed by derricks to a waiting truck and sent to Port Washington, where she will refit.

Passengers arriving on the Finland included Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Grant, Dr. and Mrs. Dan A. Carroll and daughter, Miss Dana Carroll; Colonel A. T. Balentine of San Diego, Cal.; Captain Thomas Alexis Nerny of San Francisco, Robert Sykes, a yachtsman from Coronado, and Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Blanchard of Woodcliff, N. J.

CHICAGO RADIO FANS PLAN 'GENERAL STRIKE'

Listeners Object to Violation by Some Local Stations of 'Silent Night' Rule.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (AP).—A "general strike" of Chicago radio listeners today threatened to grow out of a controversy over "silent night" of local and suburban broadcasting stations.

Stations within the city have been observing Monday nights as silent for a year or more, while a number of stations with their transmitters in suburban towns have been going on the air on these nights. As a result radio set owners have objected, maintaining that operation of these stations has interfered with the reception of far-away broadcasters.

Frank H. McDonald, President of the Broadcast Listeners' Association, a local organization of radio fans, which has been active in the controversy, said today:

"Attention has been called to a communication from radio receivers at Aurora, Ill., who advocate the calling of a general strike of radio listeners; that is, to refuse to listen to 'unfair' stations on Monday nights. Whereas this plan does not differ from what fans of the Chicago area have been doing individually, we are heartily in favor of calling it 'a general strike' of listeners for their rights; not a fan to listen to an 'unfair' station on Monday nights."

As a result of a canvass of radio listeners in Chicago showing 98 per cent. in favor of a silent night in the metropolitan area of Chicago, the Broadcast Listeners' Association is planning to have submitted to Congress a bill to divide the nation into six radio areas and assign a different quiet night to each. Under this plan Sunday would be "open night."

MAIL FLIER SURVIVES CRASH

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Aug. 6 (AP).—Harry A. Chandler, air mail pilot, whose plane fell into the Susquehanna River here last night, will recover from his injuries, physicians said today.

Chandler's skull was fractured when his plane, its running gear tangled by uncut oats in a field from which he attempted to hop off, struck a tree top and plunged into shallow water.

The injured airman said he had lost his way on the westward flight, the last guiding beacon he had observed being at Phillipsburg, N. J. Flying lower, he alighted in the oats field near here, and dropped a magnesium flare which attracted a number of persons, from whom he obtained directions. The accident followed his attempt to resume his flight.

Fourteen sacks of mail were recovered from the wrecked aircraft and were sent west by Superintendent Tanner of the Bellefonte air mail field.

Frees Woman in Auto Death.

Magistrate Thomas F. Doyle in the Flushing Police Court yesterday dismissed a technical charge of homicide made against Mrs. Catherine Fahrquar of Cleveland, Ohio, now visiting in Jackson Heights. Mrs. Fahrquar's automobile struck and killed Joyce Matthews, daughter of the Rev. Gordon Matthews of Jackson Heights on Monday evening in Corona.

Mrs. Fahrquar did not testify. Magistrate Doyle freed her on the grounds that the girl had run directly in front of the car and that the accident was unavoidable.

Chambers's Trial Again Delayed.

The trial of Talbot W. Chambers of 180 East Seventy-fifth Street, charged with adultery as a result of testimony he gave in the divorce action brought by Thomas H. Symington, was postponed a second time in Special Sessions yesterday because of the absence of his attorney, Colonel William Rand, who is in Europe. The trial was set for Oct. 23. The charge against Chambers was made by Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mrs. Symington, about whom Chambers's testimony in the divorce trial centred.

THE ELECTION SECONDARY.

In this city the Democratic primary is to be such in more than one sense of the word. It will be not only first but foremost. The election in November will be not only secondary but subordinate. This is a reverse of the natural order, and it plainly upsets the ordinary tests and standards for candidates. Usually the question is what man can best go before the whole city to show that he is qualified to be Mayor. This year the inquiry is who is the one to go into the primary fight with the best chance of defeating the Hearst-Hylan combination. The big battle is felt to be the primary, and the combatants are chosen largely for their warlike ability in that field.

It is undeniably a pity that we have drifted into a situation where, for the time being, the large and lasting interests of the city have to be made to take a place second to a contest in the primaries. Perhaps this could not have been avoided. For the main determination to make impossible the continuance of Hylan rule, there can be nothing but praise. It is hard to think of any great question which more immediately concerns the City of New York than that of freeing itself from a Mayor whose conduct in office has been a source of constant reproach to this great metropolis. Moreover, aside from his defects of personal character and of official bearing, he has been so serious an obstacle to intelligent municipal growth that the demand of the hour is for some one who has a far better grasp than he of the needs and possibilities of Greater New York. To get rid of him is the earliest political step that should be taken. And if, in order to achieve that desired end, there has to be a fierce struggle in the Democratic primary, so be it. Some of the incidental effects are unpleasing, but the chief objective is certainly worthy.

With more than a month before the enrolled Democrats are polled in the primary of their party, we are obviously in for a period of strenuous campaigning. The report is that Governor SMITH will be in the thick of the fray. That is inevitable if he is to maintain his position as leader of the Democratic Party, and to beat back an attack openly directed from this city upon his work as Governor at Albany and upon his plans and hopes, if he is cherishing any, for future political advancement. Both for him and the Tammany leaders the primary will be critical. It will be no time for using foils with the buttons on. The rapiers must be thrust home. If Governor SMITH goes into the campaign with the energy and plain-spokenness which are promised, he will say things calculated to arrest the attention of the voters and to make the Hearst-Hylan ears tingle.

When so much hangs upon a bitterly contested primary, the preparations for it and the methods of influencing the electors will naturally be under close and jealous scrutiny. It will be strange if the Mayor, with his skill as a lightning calculator in the matter of corruption funds, does not attempt to horrify simple-minded citizens by picturing the vast sums of tainted money flowing into the treasury of Tammany Hall to be used against him. It may not relieve his fear, but it may possibly be instructive to all concerned, to print the following clause from the Election law:

> No contributions of money, or the equivalent thereof, made, directly or indirectly, to any parties, or to any party committee or member thereof, or to any persons representing or acting on behalf of a party, nor any moneys in the treasury of any party, or party committee, shall be expended in aid of the designation or nomination of any person to be voted for at a primary election, either as a candidate for nomination for public office, or for any party position.

This may seem hard reading to collectors of campaign funds, but it at least shows what is the intent of the law of New York as regards the holding of a primary election. This is a way of settling disputes within a party. No one but enrolled Democrats can take part in the nomination of Democratic candidates by means of a primary election. There ought to be the freest and fullest expression of preferences from voters neither bought nor coerced. But leaving out wholly the use of money in possibly unlawful ways, there will be excitement enough in making ready for next month's primary and trying out in it the strength of competitors. Both sides will go into it as on an issue of political life or death. Both say that they are making ready to fight it through to a finish. It is certain that for one or the other the primary will mark the finish.

MORE MARBLE-HEARTED FIENDS.

What is the matter with the farmers, the cooperators, all the wise and good with whom the Republican Party, as the special representative of that always defined class, has tried to "tie up" under Mr. COOLIDGE? To all venerators of the sacred tariff, the "flexible provisions" of the Fordney-McCumber statute are a wonder and a dream. The mere question of "comparative costs of production," so easily ascertainable and in whose ascertainment the accursed foreigners have participated so joyously, is but a detail. It is a sad fact that the most beautiful ideals have to submit themselves to the judgment of reality. "Everybody" knows what flexibility amounts to. The Tariff Commission occasionally recommends. If any Executive action on the recommendation follows, the rates are jacked up. This is as it should be. Reduction would be degeneration. Increase is in the natural line of the sky-scraping tariff. The august entity that fell from Heaven should resume its natural lift.

President COOLIDGE understands that. He has acted in accordance with that principle. On that account, and on the account of all human and superhuman wisdom, it is painful to notice the "treachery" with which his just endeavors are received in the house of his friends. Who is this man, CHARLES W. HOLMAN, unworthy Secretary of the American Institute of Cooperation and of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation, who, from his safe seclusion in Philadelphia, jumps on the "flexible provisions" as a "menace to the welfare of American business"? The world is tolerably full of "menaces," but Mr. HOLMAN exhibits one disagreeable to Swampscott. It would be a waste of time to dwell on the theory that "the cost of production rule has fallen down completely." If it has, the foreigners must bear the blame. It is where Mr. HOLMAN pretends to make the flexible tariff responsible for an injury to Mr. COOLIDGE's favorite, if somewhat vague, though always laudable policy of agricultural cooperation, that we must reprove the Secretary sharply.

Mr. HOLMAN has the self-possession to say:

> The uneasiness under the flexible tariff provisions interferes materially with the program of cooperative marketing. We prefer the comparative stability which existed prior to the passage of the flexible tariff provisions. Congress is the only body to determine tariff rates, and Congress should not permit any agent to tinker with them.

This is flat mutiny. Congress has determined where the fiat of flexibility should rest. It has been exercised in accordance with the ancient law. But it must be distressing for President COOLIDGE, to whom "something" for the advance of cooperation among the farmers is as the apple of his eye, to see this display of the ignorance and the ingratitude of his cooperators.

NEW YORK-BY-THE-SEA.

On Rockaway's sandy coast the waves must be wondering what the wild men are saying. The "boom" so suddenly let loose upon New York's ocean front is a phenomenon partly national, chiefly local. In the broader aspect it may be compared with the dizzy rise of Los Angeles real estate, with what has been going on for some time in Florida. The opportunity is offered to combine home-building with holidayland. In California it is the celebrated climate. In Florida it is the climate and the sea. On the Rockaway coast it is the combination of home and Summer resort. The fond forecasts of a rival to Atlantic City may be heavily discounted. It is the ambition of every ambitious strip of sea front to grow up and put Atlantic City out of business. Long Beach was deliberately groomed by Senator REYNOLDS for that purpose; but though Long Beach has turned out to be an eminently successful enterprise, its future plainly does not lie in competition with the Jersey resort. It will ultimately be engulfed by the metropolis.

The local and predominant cause is the steady and inevitable thrust of the population of New York City toward its periphery. On Long Island the beaches supply an additional inducement. Not much more than a decade ago Coney Island was a holiday sea front with a hinterland of marsh and wasteland. That intervening space has been almost filled up with permanent homes, and Coney Island itself, behind the narrow strip given over to the vast Sunday crowds, is a city of brick and mortar with apparently unlimited aspirations for million-dollar movie palaces. The same development has been under way in the Rockaways, where the frame Summer cottage has been rapidly replaced by substantial brick and stucco, and large apartment houses have made their appearance. The frenzied realtors today are discounting that development, possibly by several long years. Incidentally, the realization will be hastened if the city can make up its mind to present itself with an Administration that will provide the traffic arteries for growth instead of expending its energies on the art of letter-writing.

New York has been endowed by nature above any other world's metropolis. Its rivers alone would throw into the shade the Thames, the Seine, the Danube and the Spree. In addition it has the sea. When it is said that twelve miles of Rockaway coast constitute the "only" remaining ocean front within city limits—this leaves out Staten Island—London and Paris and Berlin may find themselves wondering what they could not do with a bit of the real sea within their municipal boundaries. Without surrendering to undue complacence, one may indulge in satisfactory contemplation of a city stretching its great bulk from the Westchester hills to the sand beaches of Long Island.

THE LIFE OF THE PROTOCOL.

Those who cried out that England had "torpedoed" the Geneva Protocol for arbitration, security and disarmament are now declaring that it is very far from being "abandoned or dead." Former President MOTTA of Switzerland asserts that it is "very much alive." To the detached view it was evident from the outset that, as a whole, it could not be adopted. Color was given to the charge, essentially false, that it proposed to achieve "security" by handing over command of the British fleet to the Swiss Admiralty of the League Council. Likewise the question of a nation's "domestic jurisdiction" over such matters as immigration was placed in a light extremely dubious. Opinion was alienated both in England and her Pacific colonies, and the more so as opposition to the protocol was strongest of all in the United States. Even more vital was the question of universal obligatory arbitration, which was the foundation of the whole vast structure of security and disarmament. Not merely England but Italy and Japan registered clear reservations to that. Only France and her following of smaller nations really believed in the protocol as first promulgated.

Yet the British Government showed that it had been profoundly affected by the ideas for which the protocol stood. The "potential enemies pact," by which Mr. CHAMBERLAIN proposed to safeguard the future of France, Germany and England, was no more or less than an application of the principles of the protocol to a limited region and a definite problem. That he understood this was evident in his clearly expressed hope that the proposed pact might lead to the protocol or its equivalent by a nearer way. In proposing herself as a member of the League, Germany accepted arbitration even for the burning questions of her eastern boundary. England stands ready to maintain the security of France with her army and navy. Where the protocol undertook to solve all possible problems for all time, the potential enemies pact limits itself to a specific region. It means local self-government under Federal auspices. If the world were overspun with similar pacts, all that is essential in the protocol would be achieved.

Like several spokesmen of the smaller European States, Mr. MOTTA, who is now Foreign Minister of Switzerland, predicted that the next Assembly of the League will revive the question of the protocol, centring its efforts on the adoption of obligatory arbitration. More and more European statesmen are coming to agree with Professor SHOTWELL and his American associates. If only it is possible to designate as aggressor a nation that wages war without submitting to judicial process, "security" will take care of itself. At about the same time, France, Germany and England will be coming to grips on the knotty details of their separate pact.

EXAMINING IMMIGRANTS ABROAD.

If the examination of prospective immigrants abroad, just inaugurated in England, proves successful, it will no longer be possible to charge that the administration of the restriction law works hardships on those admitted to this country. This charge, to be sure, has not been substantiated under the law of 1924, but goes back to the temporary measure of 1921 and 1922, under which it was possible for persons to cross the Atlantic only to be refused admission. Ever since July 1, 1924, there has been such complete control abroad that the number of persons rejected at Ellis Island has been very small. The latest experiment goes even further than had been anticipated, and enables the prospective immigrants to be examined before they sail, so that when they board the ship they will know that they will be admitted, barring some unforeseen disaster or epidemic. It is hoped that the new methods will make it possible to dispense entirely with the Ellis Island inspection.

The practice until the beginning of this month was for the would-be immigrant to apply to the nearest American consulate, furnishing stipulated data about himself and family. He was then given a number on the quota. Upon purchasing his steamship tickets he was subjected to a careful examination by the shipping authorities, as, under existing laws, they are obliged to pay for the return voyage of rejected immigrants. Under the new practice the immigrant applies by letter to the consulate, and is given a number and an appointment to call for examination. He is then turned over to the medical inspectors. If their report is unfavorable, he is rejected forthwith. If it is favorable, he completes the examination and obtains his immigrant certificate, which entitles him to travel within specified dates, depending on the monthly quotas.

Students of immigration restriction have long been agreed that examination abroad was highly desirable. Heretofore there have been practical details which threatened to make an efficient examination impossible and which may still prevent the adoption of this system in some of the Continental countries. Under the old attitude toward emigration and immigration many of the nations were loath to permit American officials to examine prospective immigrants. The question was the subject of diplomatic interchange on numerous occasions, the foreign Governments resenting this apparent extension of American control. Great Britain today seems not to be bothered by these technicalities. She accepts the fact that examination abroad is the most humane and sensible method of control and does not see in it any desire of the American Government to usurp power. If, after a fair trial, the system works well there, it will undoubtedly serve as a precedent for those nations which have heretofore objected to such examinations.

English papers, still perpetuating the myth of the "horrors of Ellis Island," express the hope that this means that immigrants henceforth will be landed in America without passing through that gateway. The station, never as bad as the English painted it, was modernized a year or more ago. If for administrative reasons it proves advisable to continue the practice of landing the immigrants there, no just criticism of their treatment can be made. It is only necessary to compare the lot of the immigrant in 1922 and today to see that everything possible is being done to eliminate all unnecessary obstacles and hardships.

ECONOMISTS VS. CHEMISTS.

While the economists are speaking here in the East rather pessimistically of the earth's coming to the unhappy state of the old woman who lived in the shoe and, having so many children that she didn't know what to do, finally had to restrict their food supply, the chemists of America, who are holding their seventieth annual meeting this week in Los Angeles, look hopefully forward to the morrow. For one thing, a new process is reported by which it is stated a thousand years' supply of potash for the American farmer can be assured with, incidentally, independence of European supplies of this soil-recreative substance. The material from which it may be extracted lies in accessible deposits along the Atlantic Coast in New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. So even this green sand which the chemist has found may rise to confute the estimates of the anxious economist who continues to wonder what shall we eat and what shall we drink and wherewithal we shall be clothed.

Those who have been alarmed over the prophecies of the geologists, that the known supplies of oil in the United States will be exhausted in a few years at the present rate of consumption, will travel in their cars with less worry on hearing from these same chemists that the technical difficulties in the manufacture and use of molasses and the juice of the sugar palm as fuel for standard automobile engines have been overcome. It is even asserted that this new fuel, a denatured alcohol, not only gives fresh hope of continued mobility for the human race after the oil wells of the earth are exhausted, but offers certain advantages over the present fuel, offered at almost every crossroad in supply stations that are hideous to all save those in need of "gas."

A third hopeful message tells of new processes for taking nitrogen out of the air and "imprisoning" it in solid compound. This can be done where the electrical power used is cheapest, and shipment can then be made where the product (sodium nitrate) is most needed. Two processes are employed, but both make use of electricity, one of them being that of "splitting water" and compelling by great pressure the atoms of hydrogen thus divorced to unite, each with three atoms of nitrogen, assisted by the mysterious catalytic agent that has not yet let its identity be known even to the greatest of chemists.

It was reported finally that vitamin A might increase the span of human life, as it has done in the case of certain lower animals. In this and other ways the synthetic chemist, with his catalytic assistant, gives new hope with every recurring meeting of the American Chemical Society that he will be able to keep the Malthusian economist from sending us all to our last narrow beds because there isn't enough to eat in the earth-house.

THE SURPRISES OF SEX.

The effect of surprise being essential to art, Mr. A. B. WALKLEY hails the early demise of the sex play and sex novel that are raging in London as elsewhere. VELASQUEZ surprises us with the sinister scowl of Pope INNOCENT, CARPACCIO with the geometrical symmetry of Saint URSULA's bed, BEETHOVEN with the sudden sound of horns in the C minor symphony, WREN with the dome of Saint Paul's. "Art "without surprise is like Piccadilly "Circus without Eros." The field of sex is too limited, the theme too scant, to give scope for surprise, and so "artistic monotony" will do its perfect work. One is reminded of the flapper who explained that she kept her hair curled forward over her ears so that when she and dear Willie were married she would have something with which to surprise him.

It may be surmised that the new psychology has not reached London, at least with anything like the surge and volume inundating these shores. It has added acre upon acre, we are told, to the field of sex; it has enlarged its theme with variations that reverberate through the corridors of history and subvert the Decalogue. Certainly it is full of surprises. No one of us is so humdrum a plodder in the highway of opinion as to escape that awful Oedipus complex. The more completely he is married, the surer the new psychologers are that matrimony is only "a disguised and substituted form" of the deep sin of Swellfoot the Tyrant. If he honors his father instead of being insanely jealous of him, his seemingly biblical virtue is "a repressed revul-"sion all the more vigorous and ex-"treme." Even in loving the Lord the presumption is that he is "transferring" an impulse of homage from some quite mundane object. When paterfamilias gives up golf for the daily dozen, prompted by mounting blood pressure, he is warned against the patience and calm that are his nearest need; he must "keep the libido flowing" or his subconscious will become a sink of iniquities.

Have we not here new fields for sex novels and plays, new themes replete with artistic surprise? Possibly not. For the individual it is a proud joy to grope inward for complexes—an ecstasy unparalleled since M. Jourdain discovered that all his life he had been speaking prose. Practitioners roll the sounding vocabulary over their tongues with amazing relish. And there is enough truth in the new psychology, a sufficiently keen analysis of phenomena hitherto vague, to bolster both parties in their conviction of strange, exclusive wisdom. But the stuff in hand is that of private quackery, not popular art. Herr FREUD is well advised in heading the new foundation which is to purge psychoanalysis of flubdubbery. Literature and the theatre have little in common with the dim confessional or with the private clinic. The psychology of the crowd is in many ways crude, but it rejects the ego centric. "On the stage," says Mr. WALKLEY, "nothing surprises us more than what "we know already in common ex-"perience."

Also, there is the matter of racial reticence—if you will, hypocrisy. In many phases the Freudian psychology is as deeply repugnant to our collective consciousness as that other product of the Continent, the triangle play. It lacks artistic surprise because it is not a matter of common experience or at least of common conversation. "You say," Mr. WALKLEY exclaims, "that it is holding the mir-"ror up to nature? Nature replies "that she cannot bear it, that the "mirror ought to be smashed, that at "any rate it is like your cheek to hold "it up!"

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Might Well Have Waited.

HARRY A. CHANDLER of New Brunswick, N. J., the mail-carrying aviator who crashed into a tree near Bloomsburg, Pa., Tuesday night and was terribly injured, showed the qualities expected from the military flier rather than of a man engaged in the peaceful work of transporting letters. Forced by fog to descend in what proved to be a field of growing oats, he must have known that it was a bad place from which to start again, especially as it was dark. He had more than an excuse, therefore, for remaining where he was until morning, but to do so seems not even to have occurred to him.

He had his mail to deliver on time at Bellefontaine and the honor of the Air Postal Service was involved. So CHANDLER, after such little examination of his surroundings as he could make by the light of his burning flares, started his engine and taxied off through the oats toward the dimly visible Susquehanna River. He struck a big elm at the edge of the field and fell with his wrecked plane into the river. Near-by campers swam out and saved him from drowning.

This is the first bad accident that has marked the aerial mail service in the Eastern district since it was started. It illustrates the dangers to which all of the fliers engaged in it are exposed on every journey, for, in spite of all that has been done to decrease the perils of night flying across mountainous country, they remain many and large, and the aviators so feel it their duty to get through the allotted distance on schedule time at almost any risk that they take what to almost anybody else would seem to be needless chances. That spirit was magnificent and heroic in the war, and it is so still, of course, but the managers of the service should see to it that the men do not carry it too far.

They Only Make Bad Worse.

Two cases hardly can be called an epidemic, but when they involve men so well known as W. E. GLADSTONE and Lord RANDOLPH CHURCHILL the sense of number is magnified. In both these instances sons of the eminent dead have seen fit to protest vehemently against criticisms of their fathers that have appeared in books which, till the protests were made, had attracted little attention or comment. Now the books have been so well advertised by these demonstrations of filial piety that their authors probably have high hopes of seeing them classified among the best sellers of at least a week or two.

In neither instance will the indignant sons find that the defense of the father's memory has accomplished anything. Captain WRIGHT's harsh reference to Mr. GLADSTONE was quite unnecessary and in the worst of taste, but so minutely can it affect the established reputation of the Liberal statesman that it well might have been ignored. The aspersion of Lord RANDOLPH CHURCHILL in an anonymous book of "Uncensored Recollections" was of a different quality.

As this second book has been out for two years, and long since forgotten by all except a few specialists, it does seem that WINSTON CHURCHILL would have been wiser not to add his well-ripened grievance to the discussion of the one asserted with better reason by Mr. GLADSTONE's angry sons.

In England, as in most other countries professing to be civilized, it is considered good manners to treat the newly dead with kindness, if not with respect; therefore, the two books in which this law or custom has been forgotten should have the fate of other products of the scandalmonger's art—left to those who enjoy such stuff and ignored by everybody else.

Every Bar Now Is Down.

What the British feminists rightly may consider a triumph has been achieved in the final taking down in their country of all restrictions on the right of women to learn and practice medicine in all its branches. The winning of this victory is marked by the admission of women at last to a full share in all that the Royal College of Surgeons can give, and as it has the reputation of being among the most conservative of British institutions, there seems to be no excuse for maintaining any of the other rather vague disqualifications which still vex the souls of England's aspiring women.

In this country women long since were allowed to handle the scalpel after what would have been proper training for men—and if anybody would trust them to do it. Many do have that confidence, nowadays, and though women doctors still are far more numerous than women surgeons, the latter have as a class a record of at least average efficiency, and some of them are admittedly as skillful as the best of men surgeons. That they are is a bit surprising, not because of any essential inferiority of women, but because, through all the ages, they have not had the training in the handling of tools which naturally gives to men a special aptitude for the doing of such work.

And surgery does require an aptitude of much the same sort that is needed to make a good manipulator of tools in other domains. With it, of course, must go what the doctors call the "tactus eruditus"—sensitive finger-ends and the art of interpreting correctly what touch can tell their possessor; but in that women well might be the superiors of men, as many of them for generations have been spared the toils that blunt the tactile powers.

Not Every Killing Is Murder.

If Chicago can prove that recent reports about the murderous proclivities of her inhabitants were much exaggerated, it behooves her to do so at once. Unfortunately for that city, however, denials do not travel so fast or far as accusations, and already the dreadful score of 270 murders in a year has gone pretty well all over the world and everywhere has become the subject of comment by people glad of a chance to proclaim their own superiority to a neighbor.

The Mayor of Chicago protests that the 270 was the number of killings, not of murders, and that not a few of them were the highly commendable shooting of dangerous criminals by the Chicago police.

That is a legitimate defence of the city's reputation, but the Mayor should remember that the figures to which he objects were collected and promulgated by Chicago statisticians, and he may have noticed that some of the Chicago papers put the 270 in big headlines with what looked much like pride as establishing another "record."

LIVING.

So little living seems alive,
Why! almost half my threescore ten
I've quite used up, and had perhaps
A month, in all, of moments when
My whole self woke to beauty born
Of action, thought, or just of sense—
Such vibrant, poignant living then
That any other's just pretense.

I plod along with days and weeks
And months, perhaps, of work and sleep,
Of exercise and cheerful talk,
Of thought on what I wear and eat;
And yet I have my reckonings—
My moments when I take a dive
In thought, come up aghast at waste
Of my small time to be alive.

Perhaps I'm just too dull to catch
Flashes of beauty as they come—
To get the color, heed the sound,
Sense action beautifully done.
Ah well! it's worth a year of days
That lack the spirit's quickening
If just one moment I can feel
What cloud or verse or friend can bring.

IMMIGRATION RESTRICTIONS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Regarding your editorial, "Annexation by Statistics," may I say that the statement as to British influence behind the Immigration act of 1924 was not made by me, but by "Current Opinion" in its November, 1924, issue, pages 623-4, entitled, "America Invites British Racial Control," which said the law which went into effect on July 1 of last year was not so much a "Nordic" law as it was a pro-British law. Your objection, therefore, is to Current Opinion.

In numerous organs of public opinion, Collier's, World's Work, Current Opinion, as well as in the national press, prominent Government officials have joined in praise of the "national origins" idea on which the 1924 act is based as being the best immigration law ever passed, because, as stated by Commissioner Curran of Ellis Island, it "insures that all future immigration will consist of the same racial proportions as are found in the stock of the hundred millions of us already here."

Having been Assistant Commissioner at Ellis Island from 1893 to 1902, and a student of and interested in immigration for more than thirty years, I asked Mr. Curran if he would kindly direct me to the authority to justify his statement, and was referred by him to the Immigration Committee at Washington.

When I applied to both Chairmen I was informed that the facts on which the law was based came to them from the Carnegie Endowment in New York. This body in turn referred me to the agents who had worked up the facts. I then went to the man whose argument for the law had been printed as a public document by the Carnegie Endowment, "International Conciliation," 202, Sept. 24, and the official report of the hearings before the Committee on Immigration, Serial 5, March 8, 1924. When I asked the Carnegie agent for the authority on which he based his facts, I was told that it was all contained in the documents above cited, and this was all that he would say about it.

Being thus driven into a blind alley, I applied to the present Director of the Census, and under date of June 24 received a reply from Mr. W. M. Stuart, in which he said:

"There are no figures in existence which show completely the national origin of the population of the United States. Those responsible for this legislation were well aware that the determination would have to be to a considerable extent a matter of estimate, as no exact figures are available or any actual enumeration possible."

This tells the whole story. The law has, therefore, no foundation in fact. It is an impudent imposition on the people. The purpose of the law is to shut out the Italians and the Jews. The Administration attitude regarding the 1924 immigration law is to defend the "national origin" idea with special solicitude for Japan and the 350 aliens of this racial stock who will be affected by the law in any one year. No concern for the races whose nationals are to be excluded on the expressed reason that they are "inferior."

I have not seen the article in the Italian paper to which you refer in your editorial, but any opposition to such a law as this is not only natural but praiseworthy. Since the World War Italy has saved European civilization from anarchy, and it is entitled to fair play at least.

Presidents Cleveland, Taft and Wilson each in turn vetoed immigration exclusion laws based on selection, on the grounds that they were unnecessary and not in accord with national tradition or interest. These laws, however objectionable they appeared to the three Presidents, were honestly aimed at restriction and exclusion. The law of 1924, built upon alleged statistics which have no existence in fact, were fabricated for a sinister purpose and are in truth discrimination.

THE TIMES editorial obscures the real issue, which is solely whether the "national origins" theory, which in 1927 will turn over to three members of the President's Cabinet the right to decide the future immigration policy of the United States, independent of the Congress, is based on fraud or not.

The Ascent of Man.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It was worth while to devote the large space you did in this morning's paper to Mr. Bryan's arraignment of the process or theory of evolution and its exponents. It was probably his greatest effort in this direction, and it is well to know the utmost that can be said by those who believe as he did.

Now let me urge upon all who have read Mr. Bryan's arraignment, with his assertion that the evolutionary hypothesis "would eliminate love and carry man back to a struggle of tooth and claw," that they read Henry Drummond's illuminating and inspiring book, "The Ascent of Man." They have heard a good deal of the unfortunate and misleading phrase, "the descent of man." They will find great relief and profit in Drummond's reversal of the picture.

Henry Drummond was one of the world's greatest exponents of love, and his little book, "The Greatest Thing in the World," published in countless editions everywhere, is perhaps the greatest love classic in all literature outside of the Bible. He is well qualified, therefore, to give expert testimony on the relationship of the process of evolution to the spiritual development of man, and to the "greatest thing in the world"—love.

To those who sincerely wish to be informed and to think understandingly on this subject, and to weigh Mr. Bryan's statement that "Science is a magnificent material force, but it is not a teacher of morals," as well as his other similar statements, I recommend a careful reading of Henry Drummond's other book, "The Natural Law in the Spiritual World," and John Fiske's splendid little book, "Through Nature to God." These three books, all of which are very easy reading for the average man, will be worth more than many pages of oratory and many controversial discussions.

EUGENE THWING.

Erred on Curzon Dates.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the very interesting account of the career of Lord Curzon in Sunday's TIMES there is one slight slip. The author says:

"In 1919 Curzon * * * became Foreign Minister—but under the same terms of subservience to Lloyd George as had marked his course in the war. * * * Curzon allowed Lloyd George to conduct British foreign policy. At the Versailles Conference it was Lloyd George who made the decisions, Curzon merely supplied the experts."

It was Lord Balfour, not Lord Curzon, who was British Foreign Minister during the Conference of Paris. The Treaty of Versailles was signed on June 28, 1919, and Mr. Balfour, as he then was, continued as Foreign Minister until Oct. 23, 1919, when he was succeeded by Lord Curzon.

TARIFF AND FALLING WAGES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Truly the President of the American Federation of Labor scored when he censured the Presidents of the textile industries for not maintaining the high wages of the textile workers. Was not the tariff given to these industries by the Congress and the President to maintain and increase the wages of the wage earners? By all the holy promises of the protectionist orators, wages in these industries can never be lowered while the tariff is in effect.

William Green is right in taking this stand if he honestly believes that the tariff is so mighty and powerful an instrument. Can he justify this belief in sound economic reasoning? People in general are beginning to find out that there are economic laws which operate as surely as do the laws of science, and the public is beginning to listen to the economic experts' interpretation of these laws, as it has been for some time listening to the scientists' interpretation of the laws of science.

The economist can show why the textile protectionists were wrong when they asked for and secured higher tariffs on the commodities they manufacture. He can also show why they were also wrong when they expanded the production facilities of a highly protected industry so much that its productive capacity is greater than the normal consumption of this country. The tariff walls have raised American textile costs so high that American textile prices are out of line with world prices, and the foreign market for the normal American surplus is non-existent at these artificial prices.

To meet the situation and to limit production to American needs, the textile interests must cut prices, or run on part time and increase costs still further—costs, that is, per unit of production. But in order to reduce production costs in periods of keen competition, the temptation is to lower the unit cost by producing as close to capacity as possible and to reduce costs still further by lowering wages. The result is that production continues to outrun demand. The market remains demoralized. The manufacturer does not care much whether he runs or closes, and as the wage earner needs wages to live, the latter accepts further reductions.

The world wants goods today, but it does not want to pay American wages for them. Therefore, large numbers of textile workers, and others as well, are idle or are working only part of the time. That other nations want the very classes of goods these workers can produce is proved by the fact that they are buying from American manufacturers intricate and expensive machinery and are setting it up in their countries to be worked by their citizens. Aided by American capital, they are duplicating the very facilities which are idle or partly idle in this country today. Before we know it other countries will be equipped with American machinery and American capital to manufacture the commodities we are unable to market today because of our wage scale, which the tariff has thrown so out of proportion to the wage scale of the world.

What are we going to do about this situation? No useful purpose is served by emphatic pronouncements from Swampscott by the White House spokesman that the tariff must be maintained at all co[illegible]o that wage scales may be maint[illegible] when we see wages in the protected industries going down. Nor does it do any good to shout from the American Federation of Labor offices at Washington that manufacturers must maintain wages when the public refuses to pay the price the higher wages entail.

The first thing to do is to get the leaders of labor, capital and the Government to face the facts and admit that conditions are as they are. When the educated men at the head of affairs have not got the nerve to admit the truth about economic facts it is indeed difficult to convince less educated men of the fallacy of trying to meet existing conditions with broken and shattered dogmas.

Let's have the protectionists in the investing classes admit, for instance, that business conditions are in such a state in this country today that they can earn more income with their surplus funds by staking foreigners in foreign lands than they can by attempting to keep American workers employed at the present rate of wages in this country.

Then let them admit that cash wages and real wages are not one and the same. Having already accepted the fact that wages in the shoe industry and in the textile industry must be lowered, and having lowered them, let's take the next step and admit that with less to spend in their various towns these people will be able to buy as much as they have been buying only if prices are reduced to fit the new scale of wages. This means that groceries, dry goods, buildings, taxes, rents, other wages and salaries must be reduced, and reduced promptly.

If these economic facts are faced immediately and acted upon at once, the standard of living in the towns and communities where these great industries are located need not be lowered a particle. If the economic consequences of the reduction of wages to the principal part of the population in these industrial sections are not admitted at once, the wage earners will suffer first, but the rest of the community will suffer later.

How far must we be willing to reduce wages, rents, taxes, prices? To the point at which our great surpluses will find ready markets in the world at large. We need have no fear of foreign competition when we maintain our living standards by reducing the cost of those standards. What we have a real right to fear is world competition if we attempt to maintain our living standards much longer at artificially high costs.

With Yankee intelligence, wit and education, coupled with the natural resources with which this country is endowed, we can hold our own. Of course, we shall see great floods of goods enter our markets, but we shall also see that human beings employed abroad at profitable wages, making the things we buy, will want the things we manufacture. Is it not logical to suppose that the Italians in Italy will like Fords as much in Italy as Italians in America like them when they can afford to buy them? May they not be able to buy them when Fords cost half as much and when they themselves are profitably employed making straw hats, entertaining tourists and doing a thousand and one other things which they can do better in Italy than we can do them here?

Permanent prosperity depends upon the adjustment of trade which makes possible the freest exchange of goods. Let's admit these economic facts as Americans, regardless of our political, our economic and our social affiliations, and work for the proper adjustment of our economic life to fundamental economic laws.

Let's all work for the full dinner pail at half the price. Unless we do, more of us each month will be forced to accept half the dinner pail at the full price.

THANKS NEW ZEALAND ON FLEET'S BEHALF

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Aug. 6 (AP).—Residents of Auckland were thanked in advance for their welcome to the United States battle fleet when the United States Consul spoke today before the members of the Chamber of Commerce.

"In a few short days," he said, "there will anchor in the bay what I believe to be the most beautiful in the world, and at least the most beautiful I have ever had the good fortune to see, a fleet of ships bringing to your shores some eleven or twelve thousand of my fellow countrymen.

"I need not speak of the welcome that awaits them, need not pour out my heart in appreciation of the glorious hospitality that is New Zealand's. I do not care to adorn the break of morn nor to color the rainbow. But I do wish in the full simplicity of my heart to tell you how pleased I am to know this number of my fellow countrymen will have an opportunity to know your country and your people; that they may see with their own eyes what Anglo-Saxon pluck, enterprise and stability and worth have made of an island in the South Seas, and that when they return to the United States, singing the praises of New Zealand in one harmonious jubilee chorus, that they will also return apostles, not twelve apostles, but twelve thousand apostles, of the gospel of Anglo-Saxon friendship and good-will."

Wellington to Open Homes.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Aug. 6 (AP).—Every effort is being made to see that as much private hospitality as possible is extended to the personnel of the United States fleet during its visit to New Zealand, to give the visitors some idea of the home life of the country.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 6.—This city and Sydney are beginning to return to normal, now that the two divisions of the American fleet have sailed away. The decorations, placed with so much care upon public buildings a fortnight ago, are being taken down and the populace has gone back to its own quieter ways. The talk now is of memories, and from all accounts these will be many and certain to last through the years.

Newspapers are full of pictures showing sailors with heads thrust through ports kissing girls good-bye, and social hostesses are talking of the charm of American manners and the affinity between Australians and the visitors from overseas. As one of them put it, "You cannot be a good Britisher unless you admire the Americans for their solid qualities, for they are precisely those on which we pride ourselves."

Public men here comment upon the splendid impression the visitors made by their good behavior, their friendliness and the speed with which they found a place in female hearts.

Reports of international weddings continue.

The keynote of the fleet's visit is the resulting good feeling between Australia and the United States.

OPPOSES LIMIT ON GIFTS.

Wisconsin Alumni Leader Says It Pestricts Search for Truth.

The resolution adopted Tuesday by the Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin restricting the acceptance of donations from wealthy men was directly against the Wisconsin tradition of placing no limitations upon the acquisition of knowledge, according to John S. Thompson, Secretary of the Wisconsin Alumni Association in New York.

"About thirty years ago a Wisconsin professor, Richard T. Ely, was accused of teaching socialism," he said. "At the time of his exoneration the following resolution was adopted:

"'Whatever may be the limitations which trammel inquiry elsewhere, we believe that the great State university of Wisconsin should ever encourage that fearless sifting and winnowing by which alone truth may be found.'

"The class of 1910 inscribed this resolution on a bronze tablet in front of the main building. The action of the Board of Regents in refusing money which might be used for that sifting and winnowing is directly against the Wisconsin tradition."

TRAINS A FEATURE OF EVENING GOWNS

CLOTH CAPES PROMINENT

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Trains on evening gowns will be fashionable the coming season. This was conclusively demonstrated by Louise-Boulanger before an exclusive audience at a private showing of her Fall and Winter models this afternoon. Several interesting and absolutely new variants of the train were presented. Some of these established original styles of exceptional grace.

One type of evening gown was made of crêpe chiffon and silver lamé on diagonal lines, the bodice quite plain with a deep "V" décolletage, the entire dress having the effect of being swathed about the figure, but slightly eased and drawn toward the side at the back. A large loop of chiffon was attached to one shoulder, and another was arranged over one hip and a narrow scarf of the material trailed on the floor.

Another model of evening dress "en traine" was shown in two shades of yellow and green chiffon with bands of gilt lace. A bustle was formed with a full loop of chiffon from which the train swept inclined and quite long.

White panne velvet of lovely silken quality was the fabric used in a splendid dinner gown elaborated with silver lace and paillettes in a pattern of wheat and slender leaves. A modish bias flounce displayed fulness in the front godet and a deep fishu-shaped garniture formed the finish to the décolleté bodice. The sash was arranged in two large loops at the back wiah two very long scarf trains.

In less formal costumes the bustle idea was reproduced with one, two or three loops of the same goods entirely covering the back from belt to hem, the front remaining absolutely straight.

The Louise-Boulanger neckline is emphasized in a high simple band or slightly flaring "standing" collar in morning and tailored frocks. Afternoon gowns have soft scarfs and artistic arrangements of cravats and ties and evening gowns are usually cut with a deep "V" or oval. The back of the evening bodice in more extreme models is very low—some to the normal waistline—and with these sleeves are non-existent.

Capes are among the most successful wraps in the collection, the ones most definitely featured being a simple full cape of cloth with high "choker" collar. Some of these are lined with fur, squirrel, hare, kolinsky, "rouson" or one of the beautiful colors of dyed rabbit.

The hit of the exhibition was an evening wrap of white velvet, lined with orange colored fur. Very smart, practical capes of cloth were lined with the same material in another shade. A golden brown kasha was lined with café-au-lait kasha and had large shawl collar of natural lynx.

'POLITE' BUYER ROBS STORE

Doris Lukeman of 508 West 135th Street, employed as a salesgirl in the Nancy Brown Candy Shop in the Roseland Building at 1,654 Broadway, near Fifty-first Street, was alone in the shop about 9 o'clock last night when a young man entered the store and told her he wanted a pound of candy.

While he was making his selection, Miss Lukeman said, the young man was exceedingly polite to her, complimented her on her looks, and left a very good impression when he went out with the box of candy under his arm.

Shortly after 10 o'clock, he came back. Miss Lukeman greeted him with a bright smile and he asked if he might use the telephone. When he came out of the booth, according to Miss Lukeman, he was a thoroughly different young man. The gentleman had vanished and in his place was a young thug, hand in coat pocket, who seized her and said, "get into the back room and keep your mouth shut, if you don't want to get hurt." Terrified and amazed as well, she was thrust into the back room.

Hardly had the door slammed behind her when she heard the gong on the cash register ring as the drawer flew open. A tinkle of falling coins—$35 was taken—and a swift patter of footsteps to the door, and she was alone again. She wrenched open the door and ran to the crowded street, but the robber was nowhere in sight. She notified the police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, and detectives got a good description of the robber from her.

PARADE NO PLACE FOR DOG.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 6.—The Seventy-first Infantry's guardhouse, empty since the regiment came to Camp Smith ten days ago on its annual encampment, got its first occupant today.

The Seventy-first's lone prisoner is Brownie, a puppy of indeterminate ancestry with a tail longer than his body, with which he used to wag himself into the good graces of the whole regiment, particularly the mess shack men. He was left behind by the 107th, promptly attached himself to the Seventy-first, was welcomed and accorded many liberties, among them the pleasure of nipping a major's horse on the heels, but he went too far yesterday. He attempted first to lead the evening parade and then to run between the legs of the soldiers. The last was too much. The commanding officer ordered him locked up in the guardhouse during ceremonies.

Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall will be a guest of the regiment tomorrow and will be one of the observers while it works out its main battle problem of the encampment.

DECLINE IN AUTO DEATHS.

New Jersey Reports 315 Fatalities This Year, 26 Below 1924.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 6.—State Motor Vehicle Commissioner William L. Dill today announced that from Jan. 1 to June 30 this year 315 fatal accidents were caused by automobiles in New Jersey. This is twenty-six less than in the corresponding period of 1924. In the first six months of 1923 there were 278 deaths by automobiles in New Jersey.

"These figures, which are accurate and are furnished through the courtesy of the Department of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health," said Mr. Dill, "will be encouraging to all of those organizations and individuals who are engaged in safety first work and will be an inspiration, we are sure, in stimulating renewed effort in the cause of humanity."

From January to June last year 230 pedestrians were killed by automobiles in New Jersey. The total for the corresponding period of 1925 was 196. Mr. Dill is convinced that in many instances the cause of fatal mishaps is carelessness of drivers.

BANCROFT'S BODY COMING ON WARSHIP

THOUSANDS STAND MUTE

TOKIO, Aug. 6.—In a hush unbroken save by the measured booming of a salute of nineteen guns and the clear notes of bugles sending the echoes of their requiem across the bay, Ambassador Bancroft's body was borne from Yokohama today on a Japanese warship back to those shores whence came America's first envoy to Japan.

As the ship passed the breakwater the last cannon boomed and Japan had paid the highest possible honors to the former Chicago attorney, who died in his country's service.

A Princess of the blood, the Premier, Cabinet Ministers and high national and diplomatic officials attended the funeral services in St. Andrew's Cathedral, where the glitter of gold lace uniforms and bank after bank of flowers, including wreaths from the Emperor and Prince Regent, contrasted with the black dress of mourners. The service was short.

The Imperial Bodyguard of Lancers, carrying fluttering pennons which bore the Rising Sun, led the procession of nearly 100 motor cars which passed through lanes of the Imperial Bodyguard Division, the flower of Japan's Army, on the way to the Tokio Station.

The route was lined with thousands of citizens, who paid their last respects with bared heads to the Ambassador, who had endeared himself to the people in his nine months of service. Past the embassies, with their flags half-masted; past the Imperial Palace grounds, where the Guards were presenting arms; through the business district, where every window was filled with hushed and uncovered spectators, the cortège arrived at the railway station.

There the Lancers formed a lane through which the hearse passed as it was taken into the entrance reserved for the royal family.

Here the platform was cleared, except for three companies of infantry and a band, as the American Army and Navy officers carried the casket to the waiting special train. The baggage cars were filled with floral offerings from Japanese and foreigners. The coaches were crowded with Government and diplomatic officials and the embassy staff. As the train left the shed the band played a solemn air and the bugles sounded.

The stations en route to Yokohama were filled with school children and municipal officials.

At Yokohama the train was met by a detachment of Japanese marines, which formed the escort to the pier, where thousands of persons stood hushed. The coffin was then taken to the cruiser Tama and placed on a steel catafalque especially built, between the main conning tower and the turret. The mourners went aboard and paid their final respects to the Ambassador.

Then all save Lieut. Commander Herbert Hein, the Naval Attaché who will accompany the body to Chicago, went ashore and stood uncovered on the pier while the cruiser in midafternoon put slowly out to sea, with the Rising Sun flag at half-mast, on the way to San Francisco.

DISCUSSES 'NEW GASCONY'

PARIS, Aug. 6.—The reported discovery of a shallow plateau in the Bay of Biscay is still arousing considerable interest in Paris and the Paris Midi today prints the following:

"At a few days' interval two pieces of news have been published, one sad, the other gay; the Sargasso Sea is no more, but a new continent is being formed in the Bay of Biscay.

"The disappearance of the Sargasso Sea, where ships died among red-hued seaweed, will sadden many poets and annoy some business men. A corporation had just been formed to relieve the untold treasures buried in the Sargasso and would-be stockholders have been rushing to buy shares in this enterprise.

"The 'New Gascony,' on the other hand, is a better affair. Its surface is now only forty meters below the waves. Another little rise and France will have a new province without striking a blow. All that is needed is watchfulness on the part of the fleet, so that at the exact moment the New Gascony reaches the air a company may be landed to plant the French flag on the still moist soil.

"But will a New Gascony rise out of the sea, and has the Sargasso Sea disappeared? This must be proven.

"Recently we have seen photographs of the Sargasso Sea—not only was the seaweed thick above the surface of the water but hundreds of lost vessels of all sizes and kinds were also accumulated there. It may be alleged that such photographs are faked, but nevertheless they exist—thousands of spectators saw them in the movies.

"Concerning the New Gascony, however, it is certain that soundings recently made in the centre of the Bay of Biscay revealed a submarine plateau at a depth of less than forty meters, while the charts gave the depths at 4,000 to 5,000 meters. But have all hypotheses been exhausted? Perhaps the hydrographic experts who were supposed to be charting the bay in bygone years instead of conducting fastidious soundings spent their cruise smoking good pipes and playing poker.

"If the water was 40 or 4,000 meters deep it was enough to drown in, at any rate."

BOY, 12, MISSING 28TH TIME

Police Fear He Was Drowned, but Mother Is Sure He'll Come Back.

Stanley Artowicz, 12 years old, was reported yesterday by his father, John Artowicz, a laborer, to have disappeared from their home at 69 Green Street, Brooklyn, for the twenty-eighth time. He left on Wednesday, ostensibly to work in a laundry. Police, however, heard that the boy had been seen playing near the East River and fear that he may have been drowned.

The boy's mother showed no anxiety. "If it was the first time this happened it would be different," she said. "But he's always at it. Sometimes it's only for a day or two, sometimes longer. When he gets hungry, when his funds run out and when he wants to sleep, he'll come back."

SHOWS PETTY POLICY HURTS DANUBE TRADE

GENEVA, Aug. 6.—The report of Walker D. Hines to the League of Nations on Danube River traffic conditions, which was made public here today, indicates that, although the Danube fleets contain 25 per cent. more tonnage than before the war, traffic on the river is today only about 56 per cent. of normal pre-war traffic. There was an increase, however, of 50 per cent. during the first six months of the year over the corresponding period of 1924. This is attributed to shipments of corn from Serbia to the Black Sea.

Post-war diminution of traffic is largely due to economic depression characteristic of Europe, but is intensified by the breaking up of the wide free trade areas which existed in the Austro-Hungarian Empire. At present the river is cut by seven custom barriers. This not only has seriously diminished commerce, but promises to do so to a greater extent except so far as the situation may be ameliorated by commercial treaties among the States.

The report shows that the petty attitude not only of officials of the various riparian States but the Governments themselves add to the difficulties. The Serb State and Rumania exclude all foreign navigation companies from handling internal traffic on the Danube in their respective countries and on tributaries which now are treated as territorial waters. Hungary and Serbia maintain separate frontier stations at the common frontier involving double delay and formalities. Frontier formalities now involve a large economic waste requiring tugs and barges to remain idle for a period estimated at 6,000 barge days a year.

Although port facilities are greater than before the war, port difficulties are numerous. Austrian and Hungarian companies are denied the right to use many port facilities in Serbia and Rumania which previously belonged to them. Acting on the general law designed to protect domestic labor, certain navigation companies have been notified by the Serb State to replace agents and employes with Serb nationals. The Belgrade port authorities subject foreign vessels to double taxation and exclude them from certain forms of international traffic because landing facilities are on the Save River, which is territorial water.

After suggesting remedies for the many difficulties, Mr. Hines points out that these Danube States are finding great difficulty in securing the needed capital and that the removal of causes of friction on the Danube would be a favorable argument to encourage foreign loans.

BRAZIL COFFEE STATES WILL MAINTAIN PRICES

Shipments to Export Ports Will Be Regulated to Avoid Flooded Markets and Lower Income.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Aug. 6 (AP).—The coffee-growing States of Brazil have resolved to cooperate with the State of Sao Paulo in efforts to maintain the prices of coffee by regulating deliveries for exportation at the ports, thereby avoiding flooded foreign markets after the coffee harvest and a consequent slump in prices.

It was learned here today that an important meeting of coffee growers of the State of Minas Geraes, which is now producing a coffee crop which averages one-third of that of Sao Paulo, has resolved to support the policy of Sao Paulo coffee growers of limiting shipments to the export ports, Santos and Rio de Janeiro. It is stated, however, that the Minas Geraes coffee growers are opposed to the policy of fixing prices by purchasing stocks offered for sale on the coffee exchanges, which policy has been followed previously and which has been criticized in America. It is also reported that the Sao Paulo plantation owners have resolved to abandon this policy.

President Bernardes is determined to squeeze out inflated money from the national currency, and in this he is supported by the organization of coffee growers, which is opposed to permitting any further issue of currency to support coffee valorization schemes. The coffee growers recommend, in place of such issue, a foreign loan to provide funds to be loaned to farmers on security of their coffee crops at low interest rates.

GERMANS REBUFF RUSSIANS

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—The scientific academies of Heidelberg, Munich, Berlin, Goettinger and all other German academies of science have declined the invitation of the Russian Academy of Science to take part in the two hundredth anniversary of its founding next September. Educational circles declare they cannot see their way clear to be represented in Moscow on this occasion on account of the Soviet courts having condemned the three German students to death for alleged espionage for the German Government during a tour of Russia.

Germany officially denies that these men were on a Government mission and filed a protest in Moscow against the death sentences on the alleged sketchy evidence submitted. The Soviets have promised to stay the execution for the present and to consider the pleas from the parents and student organizations for a pardon.

Now the German educators combine in an appeal to the Russian Intelligentia for aid in behalf of the condemned students, knowing that the Soviet Government desires German participation in the celebration.

FRIENDSHIP SESSIONS OPEN

World Alliance at Stockholm Elects Dr. Boynton President.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 6 (AP).—The World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches formally opened its conference in the Academy of Music here today, the central part of the city being decorated with flags of all nations in honor of the delegates.

Dr. Nehemiah Boynton of New York was unanimously elected President. In his address he reminded the conference of the fundamental principles uniting those striving to play their part in the reconstruction of the world and of the obligations resting upon all Christian peoples.

A letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury was read, in which the high English ecclesiastic regretted his inability to attend the meeting.

Arthur J. Brown of New York declared American churches were exercising pressure in favor of the United States joining the Permanent Court of International Justice and the League of Nations and expressed the opinion that ultimate participation by the United States in these organizations would result from this influence.

He was 78 years old, and was born in Middletown, Conn. He was the son of Stephen Olin, the second President of Wesleyan University.

Mr. Olin was graduated from Wesleyan in 1866 and began the practice of law in this city two years later. The firms of Olin, Rives & Montgomery; Olin & Rives & Olin, and Olin, Clark & Phelps were all in turn headed by him. In late years he specialized on copyright law and represented many of the foremost publishing houses in this country.

For thirty years Mr. Olin had been a trustee of the New York Public Library and for several years prior thereto he had acted in a similar capacity for the Astor Library. He was President of the University Settlement Society for several years, and he also served as Vice President of the New York City Bar Association. He was a member for more than twenty years of the old National Guard, retiring in 1903 with the rank of Colonel and Chief of Staff.

Mr. Olin was devoted to the progress of Wesleyan University. He was the first trustee elected by the alumni, served in that capacity for forty-five years, and last June was re-elected for another term. In 1922 when Dr. William Arnold Shanklin, then President of Wesleyan, was on leave, Mr. Olin was requested to act as President.

Last June the university, in commemoration of the services of Mr. Olin and of his father, broke ground for a new library, to be known as the Olin Library. Since his graduation he had never missed a commencement. Last May, although suffering from a severe illness and advised to remain at home, he insisted on attending the commencement and made the trip to Middletown on a stretcher and in a special railway car.

Mr. Olin was one of the founders of the Players Club, a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Century Club, University Club, City Club, and Downtown Club. He received the honorary degree of LL. D. from Wesleyan University in 1894. He was married first to Alice W. RELIANCE SIGHTED A FLOATING MINE

Passengers Believe It Had Been Drifting Since the War—Jobyna Howland Returns.

TEXAN BEFRIENDED A PRINCE

Captain F. L. Irverson of the United American liner Reliance, in yesterday from Hamburg with 483 passengers, reported that while the vessel had been off the Grand Banks on Sunday afternoon he had sighted what he believed was a floating mine. The skipper did not go close to investigate, but those on board thought the dark object bobbing up and down in a brisk sea was one of the unaccounted-for mines that was set afloat in the North Sea during the war.

"It might have been a mine," the captain said. "There are some of them being discovered even now in various places." Passengers said the mine resembled an umbrella with projections like water pipes set at intervals.

One of the amusing incidents of the trip was the gift of a keg of beer to Miss Jobyna Howland, an actress who appeared in "Kid Boots" before she went abroad five months ago. Passengers, hearing that Miss Howland had rebuked the ship's bartender for closing the bar without notifying her, raised a purse for the gift.

Sigmund Rothchild, a Texas oil man, who purchased a castle at Heidelberg in 1923, told on his arrival how he had acted as good fairy to a stranded Russian Prince now a waiter in the Hotel Bristol in Berlin.

The Texan was impressed by the waiter's distinguished air and upon inquiring found that the man who was serving him was Prince Serge Galatzin, once a wealthy property holder in the region of the Black Sea—at least, that is what the waiter said.

"I would be more satisfied with my unhappy lot," said the waiter prince, "if I could but have two weeks of being a gentleman living in luxury again."

"Your wish is granted," said Mr. Rothchild.

So the waiter prince went to the castle at Heidelberg and enjoyed two weeks of hunting, fishing, riding and living the life of a man of wealth. Then he went back well pleased to his job.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, his wife, the daughter of Mark Twain, and their daughter, returned on the Reliance. They spent four weeks in Austria.

Dr. J. G. William Greeff of New York returning from London and Paris was also on board with his son, Bernard. The nerve specialist went to Paris to do some research work in a French method for the introduction of concentrated oxygen into the human body through an injection.

"Two years ago I first experimented with this idea," he said, "my attention being drawn to it by the fact that Marshall Pétain used it to counteract the effects of gas poisoning following the World War; and that a number of the best Alpine climbers climbed Mount Blanc in much less time and with less exhaustion after first being fortified with injected oxygen.

"Oxygen is injected with the aid of a special machine, which permits of the employment of the concentrated oxygen without injury because of the tremendous pressure which conserves it in the containers. Once between the outer and the inner skin it forms into a pocket resembling a water blister and then gradually the gas forms a vein system of its own and the process is clearly observable."

HELD IN DUMMETT CASE.

Last of Trio Sought After 1917 Shooting Caught in Harlem.

The old Dummett shooting case which created much excitement in Mount Vernon in 1917, was revived yesterday with the arrest of the third and last man said to have been involved in it. Howard Dummett, the victim, was shot outside of a poolroom on West Third Street, Mount Vernon, on Nov. 21, 1917. Salvatore Albero and Anthony Mega were arrested, but a third man escaped.

William Morretti, 33 years old, of 293 Lenox Avenue, New York City, was arrested in Harlem early yesterday by Captain Silverstein and Lieutenant Mattes on a warrant charging him with first degree robbery and assault, on which charges a bench warrant was issued Dec. 5, 1917.

Search for the murderers of Jacob Schumacher and Raglan I. Nicoll, trolley employes killed in a recent holdup, led to Morretti's arrest. Silverstein and Mattes, who also worked on the Dummett case in 1917, were searching for John "Dopey" Marino, wanted for the trolley murder, when they learned yesterday that Morretti was in Harlem. They obtained the old warrant, returned to New York and got their man.

STOLE TO AID POOR MOTHER

Youth Who Took and Sold Golf Clubs Is Put on Probation.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 6.—When probation officers told County Judge William F. Bleakley of the needs of Herbert Stewart's widowed mother and crippled brothers in Germany, he was put on probation for three years today when arraigned on a charge of stealing a bag of golf clubs at Bronxville on July 10.

Stewart, who lives in New York, lost his father and two of his brothers in the World War, the probation officer said. They fought in the German Army. Stewart had been sending from $40 to $60 a month to his mother, but lost his job. A few days preceding July 10, the officer said, Stewart received a letter from his mother, saying that she and the crippled son were destitute. In despair he stole the clubs, sold them and sent the proceeds to his mother.

QUEENS CAR STRIKE ENDS.

Dozen Employes Return to Work and Equal Number Resigns.

The strike of operators, motormen and conductors of the New York & Queens Railway Company in Queens, which had been under way since midnight Sunday, ended yesterday afternoon when a dozen employes returned to work and an equal number turned in their resignations to Edward A. Roberts, general manager of the company under the receivership of General Lincoln C. Andrews. Mr. Roberts said last evening that the men who had resigned would be taken back in the employ of the company at any future time, but they would lose their seniority standing. Mr. Andrews said that up to yesterday there were but twenty of the thirty-nine men who had originally gone out still on strike.

The strike opened when Fred Young, transportation superintendent, was supplanted on Saturday by Chester C. Davis, formerly with the Long Island Traction Company, one of the systems under the administration of Mr. Andrews. The operators refused to work under Davis. A movement was started on Monday whereby the striking operators would become affiliated with the Amalgamated Association of Street Car Conductors and Motormen. Meetings were held, but yesterday a spokesman for the operators said they had decided that it would be advisable to allow the men to return to work, particularly those who were married and had dependents.

Traveling conditions on the various lines of the company operating between the car barns at Woodside and Flushing; Junction Avenue, Corona and Flushing, and College point and Jamaica had resumed normal proportions when the rush hour arrived last evening.

CROWN PRINCE IN AUSTRIA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 6.—The former German Crown Prince is officially reported to be at the Upper Austrian resort of Gmunden, visiting the Duke and Duchess of Brunswick. The latter is his sister.

It came out today that the ex-Crown Prince had been staying for eight days at the Mondsee Chateau of the Bavarian noble, Count Almeida, where he will spend some time.

For some days mysterious reports were afloat concerning the Crown Prince's whereabouts. It was reported that he had been in Hungary, but this was denied.

The other day a squadron of Austrian federal cavalry belonging to the Salzburg garrison passed through the village of Mondsee. Its band gave the Crown Prince a serenade. The civilian population takes no notice of him as he preserves the rôle of a private tourist.

It is understood that Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria will visit him in Mondsee.

AGED SUITOR ENJOINED.

Told to Keep Away From Young Woman Who Sold Him Insurance.

Mrs. Belle Trenholm, who lives at the Grace Club operated by Mrs. Grace Humiston at 147 East Twenty-first Street, and James H. Driscoll of 138 East Twenty-eighth Street were among those who aired their troubles in the West Side Court yesterday. Mrs. Trenholm charged that Driscoll had annoyed her.

She said: "He has kept after me ever since I sold him a life insurance policy. I'm a young woman and don't want him around. He is 74 years old. Look at this which he sent me, Judge."

She showed Magistrate Edward Weil a newspaper clipping with the picture of former Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia with his youthful secretary-bride taken some years ago. Over the Senator's picture was written "Jim" and over the woman's "Belle" and "If he can do it, why can't I?"

"I'm only 54, Judge," answered Driscoll, who was carrying a cane and wearing a flower in his buttonhole, "and I just wanted to be friendly."

"If you are 54 then I am 21," said the Magistrate. "I'll let you go, but keep away from her after this."

HELD FOR THREAT TO KILL.

Horace S. Chase, 41 years old, of 43 East Twenty-seventh Street, was committed to Bellevue Hospital yesterday for ten days' observation after Magistrate Norman J. Marsh in Tombs Court had heard a charge by Robert B. Luckey Assistant Treasurer of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, that Chase had threatened to kill George M. Shiver, President of the company, in his office at 2 Wall Street last Tuesday.

Mr. Luckey said Chase asked him to cash a check and, when he refused, threatened to kill Mr. Shiver and put his hand in his pocket as if to draw a pistol. Edward M. Devereaux, Treasurer of the company, with offices in Baltimore, said he married Chase's sister and had known the prisoner many years. He testified that Chase was committed to Bellevue in 1919 for observation and later was sent to Matteawan. He was discharged as cured, recommitted in 1922 and discharged again in 1924.

Chase testified he went to the railroad office to collect $60 due him. He denied he threatened Mr. Shiver.

Badly Wounded, He Drops at Father's Feet in Saloon.

The stabbing of a 15-year-old boy in front of a former licensed saloon at 130 Baxter Street last night caused great excitement in the neighborhood. The wounded boy, Tony Caggianno of 126 Baxter Street, was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital with a deep wound near his heart, in a serious condition.

He refused to give any information to the police other than to say that the stabbing had been done with a long knife. Witnesses told the police that the boy suddenly staggered from a group of young men and ran into the former saloon and collapsed in front of his father, who was sitting there.

On the arrival of the police and an ambulance, word of the stabbing spread through the district. Several additional policemen were called to keep back the growing crowd to permit the boy to be lifted into the ambulance. Detectives expressed the belief that the boy had been stabbed as the result of a feud.

Scopes, science teacher convicted at Dayton, Tenn., of violating the Tennessee Anti-Evolution law, the Executive Committee of the Soviet Irreligionists' Society has begun the collection of a fund to be devoted to the publication of natural science literature for the Russian peasantry.

The Russian newspapers, which gave considerable space to comments on the Scopes trial, have begun a campaign for contributions under the slogan, "John Scopes Fund."

"My feet thank you as well as my tongue"—

—said a vivacious woman with a smile. "When I started out this morning for the August Furniture Sale I was pitying my feet. Poor things! how they'd have to travel before I'd find the right furniture!"

"Look at them!" She was sitting in the Budget Service Office. "My sympathy wasted. First I saw the Budget House, then came to you, and here—sitting—we planned my new apartment. You told me what furniture comes within my income—sitting!

"Then out into the Store I went, and with the plan it was simple for the salesman to show me what I wanted. Back to the Budget Service to open my deferred payment account, which I do—sitting. I'll have to go home now and work, so my feet won't get spoiled."

That's the carefully planned Wanamaker unity of service—the planning and budgetting—furniture stocks on the same floor or the two below—and accounts for Deferred Payments opened right in the Budget Service, too.

Two million dollars of Wanamaker furniture at 10 to 50 per cent. less in price—that's the sale that is bringing great service and happiness to the entire community.

SAYS FRENCH DOUBT SECURITY COMPACT

TELLS STORY OF PANAMA

He Says That Root Blocked Annexation Proposal Made to Roosevelt by Magoon.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 6.—Robert Masson, Director of the Credit Lyonnais of Paris, in a lecture before the Institute of Politics tonight, said the French had had so many disappointments from attempts by the other nations to guarantee her security that they did not know what to think of the security compact now being negotiated among France, Great Britain and Germany. The French, he declared, are very skeptical and fear a new series of disappointments. He defended France's big army, her submarines and her military alliances as necessary defensive measures caused by fear of another invasion.

"Perhaps it [the compact] is a good thing," he continued. "Perhaps it is not. It is hard to tell when you have no inside information. No doubt it is comforting to hear from our friends that we are going to have the security we want at last. But suppose our friends are wrong? Suppose their impressions are as correct as those of that famous French politician who visited Germany a few weeks before the last war and came back guaranteeing the peaceful intentions of our neighbors? If there is a miscalculation, who has to pay for it?"

M. Masson said that the average Frenchman yearns for a state of things that would allow him to dismiss "the dreadful nightmare" of insecurity from his mind, and that "if a genuine agreement is really under way, as it seems today," it will be received with great pleasure and relief in France.

Points to French Disappointments.

The list of disappointments suffered by France in its efforts to obtain security through the cooperation of other nations, he continued, began with the refusal of the United States to ratify the Versailles Treaty and included the aloofness of the United States from the League of Nations, and the failure of the Geneva Protocol.

It was such disappointments, he explained, that caused France to look around for other guarantees of stability, and to make her alliances with Poland and Czechoslovakia, which have been much criticized abroad as tending toward militarism and war.

"If we turned to our Western friends for a promise of assistance," he said, "we met with a refusal. But we were not expected to look around for other possibilities, though it is the plain duty of a government to leave no stone unturned in order to secure the security of the country. It is another instance of that strange situation of ours—for certain people—whatever we do is wrong."

The average Frenchman, M. Masson went on, is determined that the history of the last decade shall not be repeated. The general opinion in France, he said, is that the two requirements for security and peace are the observation of the protective clauses of the peace treaty and guarantees of the eventual assistance of her friends in case France is attacked. At present, he added, neither of these conditions has been met.

Pointing out the distance between France and America, M. Masson said that military preparedness was necessary for France in order to protect her from a swift invasion and defeat in a future war before her allies arrived on the scene.

"If our sole protection is your assistance," he added, "and if we are not in a position to resist by our own means an eventual aggression such as the last one will sweep the country and compel you to land in Spain or Holland. You will rescue us when we have practically nothing left to save. Perhaps you will agree, therefore, that we must have a minimum amount of land and sea forces."

Even with the cooperation of her friends, he concluded, France must rely upon herself for the defense in the first place.

Says Arms Cuts Depends on Russia.

Major Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice, Chief of Operations of the British General Staff during the World War, told his round table on "Limitation of Armaments," that reducing of land armaments in Europe must be general in order to be effective in preventing war, because if one nation remained armed while the others disarmed the situation would be a temptation to war.

Accordingly, he continued, it is hopeless to talk about a reduction of the size of European armies until Russia can be brought into the bargain. He pointed out that Russia has the largest army in Europe in point of numbers, although its equipment and transportation facilities are poor, and that the large armies maintained by Poland, Finland and other States bordering on Russia are mainly due to fear of the Russian army.

Professor Jesse S. Reeves of the University of Michigan said at the Maurice round table that the phrase "outlawry of war" was a "crime against the English language" from the viewpoint of international law. He said that war in international law is a legal means of redress and not a crime, and that the world cannot get rid of war by coining epithets, but only by getting rid of the causes of war.

Our Policy in Caribbean Attacked.

American policy toward the Carribbean countries was attacked as "wobbling" and ex-Secretary of State Hughes was called "weak" in dealing with those nations by former Judge Otto Schoenrich, a New York lawyer, formerly special commissioner to Santo Domingo, before the open conference on the foreign policy of the United States.

"During the past twenty-five years," he said, "our course has often been so wavering, the intensity of our action so different, that we are regarded by many as drifting opportunists. There have been periods of strong attitude, of weak attitude, and of an intermediate attitude.

"Roosevelt was the chief exponent of the strong attitude, as shown by his recognition of Panama's independence, his settlement of the Domincan debt and his intervention in Cuba. That he was not actuated by imperialistic motives is proven, however, by the fact that under Roosevelt the United States twice withdrew from Cuba.

"The weak attitude was illustrated during the recent incumbency of Secretary Hughes. Seldom did we take a firm stand, and what we did accomplish was largely by moral suasion and bluff. In Cuba and Honduras our bluffs was called and nothing happened. The result has certainly not strengthened our position in Cuba, while in Honduras the politicians thumb their noses at the United States and not in years has American prestige in Central America been so low as at present.

"Personally, Secretary Hughes was probably inclined to be a strong attitude man, but he appears to have had his attention otherwise occupied or to have been fettered by the exigencies of American politics. On the other hand, Wilson, who might be regarded as a strong attitude man in view of the ruthless administration of Haiti and Santo Domingo, was probably moved thereto by considerations of European policy and himself most likely inclined to a weak attitude, as shown by his pusillanimous course in Mexico.

Says Root Blocked Taking of Panama.

Judge Schoenrich told a story of how Elihu Root as Secretary of State stopped President Roosevelt from a possible annexation of Panama to the United States. Describing the great influence wielded in Panama by ex-Governor Magoon of the Canal Zone, Judge Schoenrich said:

"When he (Magoon) returned to Washington, at a conference with Roosevelt and Root, our future relations with Panama were discussed. Magoon remarked that if deemed advisable he believed he could induce the Panamanians of their own accord to make a petition for annexation to the United States. Roosevelt began to walk the floor excitedly and said:

"'Magoon, I think I'll let you—' but Root interrupted calmly: 'That would hardly be in accord with our policy.' The subject was dropped. If Knox had then been Secretary of State the United States might now have more territory and more responsibilities."

Judge Schoenrich criticised our conduct in Haiti, especially for what he said was brutality of marine and navy officers, and said that American influence in Central America had waned, especially in the past five years. Lack of continuity in the State Department, the unfamiliarity of American officials with Central American affairs, and the poor quality of some American Ministers to those countries, he declared, were the causes of our lack of influence.

Rear Admiral Harry M. P. Huse and Major Gen. John L. Chamberlain took exception to Judge Schoenrich's remarks about the brutality of the Marines, whereupon he said that he did not mean to give the impression that all the officers in Santo Domingo and Haiti were brutes, but that some of them were.

Would Extend Monroe Doctrine.

Professor George H. Blakeslee of Clark University said that the American people as a whole believe in the Monroe Doctrine as "an article of faith," and that they would fight for it.

"Probably it is the only one of our foreign policies that they would fight for," he said.

If the Monroe Doctrine could be made a common policy of all the American republics, he said, it would go a long way toward removing the dislike and apprehension of the doctrine which exists widely through Latin-America. The doctrine would then be a joint policy, instead of the exclusive possession of this country.

Professor Charles K. Leith of the University of Wisconsin discussed the conflict of economic imperialism on the part of the United States in exploiting oil and other natural resources in Mexico and South America with the national aspirations of those countries.

Professor Leith suggested that as the United States was an interested party it should not sit as a judge in disputes between its own economic imperialism and Latin-American nationalism, and said he was not surprised that Latin-American nations were turning to the League of Nations in hope of getting a more impartial judgment on such controversies.

Wallace Predicts War and Famine.

Henry A Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer, predicted at the round table on agriculture and population that the world would face a food shortage in five or ten years, and that it would become so acute by 1960 that "nations in their scramble for food and markets will find another universal blood-letting the only solution for the problem."

Mr. Wallace said that his predictions of war and famine did not take into consideration the possibility of the discovery of new synthetic foods, which might change the outlook.

"There is always the chance of finding some mechanical way," he continued, "of taking the energy out of the sun and using it to combine carbon dioxide and water to make sugar and starch. Every year or two the chemists tell us about their close approach to this problem. Personally I think that the chances of a really revolutionary discovery of methods of manufacturing synthetic food is exceedingly remote."

Assuming no cheap method of making synthetic food is discovered, he said, he believed that the population of the United States would continue until it reached the 200,000,000 mark. Long before it reached that point, he said, public opinion would change in favor of birth control. This, with the reduction of immigration, he predicted, would cause our population to stop its present rapid growth sooner than most statisticians expect.

"The probable ultimate situation as I now see it," he went on, "will be a population of 200,000,000, of which 160,000,000 will be town and city people and 40,000,000 farmers. This assumes that the farmers of 100 years hence will be 30 per cent. more efficient than the farmers of today, and that the city dwellers will live more largely on foods of cereal, vegetable and dairy origin."

Boys Eat College's Pet Corn And Ruin 4-Year Experiment

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Aug. 6.—A surreptitious corn roast at the experimental farm of the New Jersey State Agricultural College by boys from town has brought a halt to a four-year experiment with a special type of corn, Dr. Jacob Lipman, the Director of the college, told Recorder Tindall today when two of the alleged culprits were brought before him.

Dr. Lipman said the college had for some time been the victim of boys who broke windows, threw stones at the cows, broke trees and otherwise damaged the farm. The assault on the corn came last week, the boys stripping all the ripe ears and using all the marking stakes to make the fire for the roast.

He decided not to press a charge against the boys on condition that their parents keep them away from the farm in the future.

Boy Freed of Homicide Charge.

Convinced that the death on July 26 of Anthony De Luca, 17 years old, of 363 East 121st Street, was caused by a blow struck during a typical boyish fist fight not intended to do serious injury, Magistrate Frederick B. House yesterday dismissed the charge of homicide against Patsy De Martino, 17 years old, of 306 East 118th Street. The boys had an argument followed by a fight. De Martino hit De Luca near the heart and he dropped dead.

SAY ARMY AND NAVY CAN SAVE LITTLE

ARMY MIGHT SPARE $50,000

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 6.—Surveys of the Navy and War Departments, made at the request of President Coolidge to determine whether economies could be effected, show that the expenditures of military establishments of the Government cannot be reduced substantially in the next fiscal year without impairing efficiency.

President Coolidge will be told in reports, which will be submitted in detail soon, that while some duplications can be eliminated in both departments to effect slight savings, the total reductions will be very small if the army and navy are to be maintained at the present size. President Coolidge two months ago ordered surveys in both departments and suggested that he would like to see a cut of more than $50,000,000 in the army and reductions wherever possible in the navy.

The sum of the reports, details of which will be made by the respective Government officers to the Budget Committee, is that in the last fiscal year the expenditures were cut to the bone. Any further reductions will be made, it is declared, at the expense of efficiency. The only way the army can save money, it is stated, is by reducing the personnel, now is 115,000 men. The navy officials insist that the present personnel of 86,000 men should be maintained.

$50,000 Saving Suggested.

The army survey points out that six duplications in work can be eliminated, but savings of less than $50,000 would be made by this and other changes. The army force, including the civilian clerks and enlisted men, is below that of the period before the war, while the cost of feeding an enlisted man is placed at 31 cents a day, compared with 49 cents paid by the navy.

The navy survey says that perhaps $5,000,000 might be saved by closing down some of the shore stations and navy yards, but this is not recommended. Officials declare that the following should represent the navy's budget and activities for the next fiscal year:

An appropriation of at least $25,000,000 to lay the keels and begin construction on the eight light cruisers and complete the three submarines authorized in the 1916 naval program.

The appropriation for continued improvement of Pearl Harbor should reach $2,000,000. The last Congress authorized an expenditure of $5,000,000 for this work and $1,000,000 has already been expended.

The enlisted personnel of 86,000 should be maintained as at present.

Appropriations for upkeep in the engineering, construction and shore stations should not be reduced.

The expenditures for fuel for long distance cruising should be continued, as these cruises are regarded as necessary for proper training.

While there is a demand for a fleet base on the Pacific Coast, supported by Senator Hale, the navy officials will not recommend it because of the economies desired by the President.

At present the establishment is keeping in limited commission 95 per cent. of the capital ships and 90 per cent. of the available destroyers. The missing 5 per cent. of the capital ships will be missing for some time, for four of the battleships are to be modernized and will be in drydock for that purpose.

Within sixteen months the new airplane carriers, the Lexington and Saratoga, will be ready for service. The men to man them will be drawn from the battleships in drydock. When these battleships are ready for service again it is manifest, the officials say, that the navy will be short several thousand men to operate them at treaty strength.

President Coolidge realizes these needs as well as anybody, but he is still looking around for extravagances which, if abolished, might save enough money to meet the demands of the new cruiser program. The navy is ready to tell him where he can find them, but the sticking point on this subject is Congress itself.

Shore Station Suggestions.

The information the navy will give Mr. Coolidge is that the Atlantic Coast shore stations may be reorganized, and it will make the following suggestions:

Maintain the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard as a submarine base only. Abolish the Boston yard as an active unit, but retain it in shape for use in time of war and centre all naval activities for the fleet on the Atlantic Coast at New York and Norfolk; reduce the naval training school at Hampton Roads to a school for specialists and centre training activities at Newport, R. I., the Great Lakes station and San Diego, Cal., Take the money thus saved, approximately $8,000,000 annually, and apply it to the needed betterment of Pearl Harbor and to the establishment of a fleet base on the West Coast.

The navy finds the reasonableness for this suggestion in the fact that while the Atlantic Coast now has six yards in active operation with comparatively little to do, the Pacific Coast has only two yards, those at Bremerton and San Francisco, which are supporting the Pacific fleet with only a 60 per cent. force. One of the heavy charges of a navy yard is overhead, which remains the same whether they are working or doing nothing. Two big yards on each coast for capital ships and facilities for caring for the auxiliaries elsewhere is all the navy actually needs on either coast, it is contended.

Pearl Harbor is an outer defense post, the key to the Pacific, hence it falls in a different category from all others. It is a repair, supply and fuel station and a place of refuge or for attack, so is highly important from every angle. Congress has appropriated $1,000,000 to deepen its channel, but $5,000,000 must be expended to make the harbor fully available.

Representative William Edward Hull of Illinois, member of the Pan-American Highway Commission, called upon President Coolidge today and requested an appointment for the commission to pay its respects before sailing for Buenos Aires Sept. 3. The commission desires to come here on Sept. 2. It is understood that the President will receive them here at that time.

The commission will attend a ten-day highway conference in Buenos Aires, Oct. 3 to 13, and purposes to give all the technical information upon highway building available.

William C. Deming, President of the Civil Service Commission, consulted yesterday with Everett Sanders, Secretary to the President, about the vacancy in the commission. He presented his views, which were submitted to the President.

Among the candidates are Mrs. Charles Bennett Smith of Buffalo, member of the New York Civil Service Commission; Miss Lydia Hafford, Secretary of the Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Boggs of Virginia, recommended by Governor Trinkle, under the law of selection must be made from the Democratic or other minority parties. The appointee cannot be a Republican.

President Coolidge ehas indicated that he will name a woman to succeed the late Mrs. Helen Gardner.

Negro Chosen School Treasurer at Elmsford; Angry Opponents Plan to Put Woman Back

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Elmsford is again in the throes of a school fight. At a meeting of the School Board on Tuesday night Chester A. Wilson, a negro who is employed at night as a porter at the Grand Central Terminal, was elected Treasurer of the school district in place of Mrs. Mary Avery, who has held the position for seven years. Mrs. Avery is also postmistress in the village. It is probable that a meeting of protest will be held and Wilson will be asked to resign in favor of Mrs. Avery. Mrs. Avery said Wilson had told her he would do so.

Thomas English, President of the board, professed ignorance. He said he did not even know Wilson, but did know that the man owned real estate. Wilson's name was proposed by Robert Lorsing and seconded by William R. Miller, a new member of the board. English cast the deciding vote. Trustees Nicholas F. Sheridan and Otto Suuple voted for Mrs. Avery.

Wilson said today he would do nothing until he had seen the three men who voted for him. Wilson's price for resigning may be a seat on the board, it was said. He was a candidate for the trusteeship, it is reported, and to keep him off the board the majority offered him the treasurership. Wilson is a political leader among those of his own race here who are a big factor in local politics. His entry into the School Board situation is an indirect outgrowth of the agitation several months ago when Principal Thomas Holden chastised a negro boy with a rubber hose.

TRY FORMER SUITOR OF DOROTHY PERKINS

SMILES AS JURY IS PICKED

Michael (Mickey) Connors, for love of whom Dorothy Perkins, 17 years old, is said to have killed Thomas Templeton last St. Valentine's Day in her home at 26 Jane Street, was placed on trial yesterday before Judge John F. McIntyre and a jury in General Sessions on a statutory charge in which the Perkins girl appears as complainant. After a jury had been selected the trial was adjourned until this morning.

Dorothy, who was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to serve five years in State's prison, was brought to court from Jefferson Market Prison, where she is being held to await the outcome of the Connors case. She is a more subdued Dorothy than the girl who appeared as defendant for the shooting of Templeton. Although she is said to have killed him because he called Connors "yellow," she is expected to take the stand, probably this morning, against Connors.

Connors presented a contrast to the girl. In both manner and attire he was gay and he smiled during the examination of talesmen. Although he has been in prison since July 1, awaiting trial, and was a prisoner on Welfare Island for two months previous to July, he had no prison pallor, but a healthy tan and his lavender shirt, red striped necktie and brown silk hose seemed in keeping with his gay demanor.

Connors is 35 years old and married. His occupation at times has been that of a longshoreman. He is being tried on a three-fold indictment and may be convicted on any one, or all of its three counts. Assistant District Attorney James E. McDonald, who is prosecuting the case, said Dorothy's story will be corroborated by other witnesses.

The indictment alleges that the crime charged to Conners was committed on the night of Feb. 14, last, when Dorothy left a Valentine party at her home and went with Connors to his home in Greenwich Street. Later that evening she returned to the party. Her father is said to have been talking to Templeton, with whom Dorothy was then very friendly. The girl overheard Templeton's alleged statement about Connors being "yellow," whereupon Dorothy rushed to her room, got a pistol and fired at Templeton, the bullet going through her father's coat before it killed the young man.

YOUNG TURKISH PRINCE HERE FOR LONG VISIT

Refik Ismail Bey Will Be the Guest of William C. Bullett—Has Had a Hard Life.

Refik Ismail Bey, a 12-year-old Turkish prince, arrived yesterday morning on the Fabre liner Braga from Constantinople. He will be the guest for six months of William C. Bullitt, author and former diplomat, whose testimony before the Senate Committee of Foreign Affairs in 1919 regarding his mission to Soviet Russia was one of the opening guns of the Republican fight against the Treaty of Versailles.

Mr. Bullitt went down to Quarantine on a revenue cutter to aid his protégé in case of difficulties with the immigration authorities, as Refik speaks only Turkish. He explained that he had met the boy two years ago, during his residence in the Golden House at Roumeli Hissar on the Bosporus, near Bebek.

Refik, he said, has had a hard life. He is the son of a former landowner of Adrianople, who was killed by a band of Bulgarian patriots at the end of the Balkan Wars of 1912 and 1913. For weeks the baby and his mother were kept prisoners by the Bulgars, but were later permitted to leave for Constantinople, leaving all their property behind them.

When Mr. Bullitt was in Constantinople two years ago he and his wife became greatly interested in the boy and they invited him to visit them here. Refik will remain with the Bullitts until November, when he will accompany them to France, after taking advantage of American surgical facilities to have his tonsils removed. Thence the party will go to Constantinople early in 1926, Mr. Bullitt having planned to journey to Samarkand and Bokhara.

COURT RESERVES DECISION

Prosecutor Calls Convicted Prisoner "Brains of the Whole Crew" In Bank Murders.

On the ground that the statement of John Farina an hour before he was executed absolving Anthony Pantano from voluntary participation in the murder of two West End Bank messengers in the $43,000 hold-up constituted new evidence, Robert B. Johnstone, attorney for Pantano, made a vigorous plea yesterday before Justice Dike in the Brooklyn Supreme Court for a new trial for his client. Pantano is now in the death house at Sing Sing. Morris and Joseph Diamond were also convicted of the murder and executed at the same time as Farina. Pantano, convicted at the first trial, obtained a second, at which the jury disagreed. He was again convicted at the third trial.

Mr. Johnstone argued that Farina's statement, though it was not technically a dying declaration, should be considered as such and should be regarded as circumstantial rather than "hearsay" evidence. He declared that the impossibility of cross-examination should not lessen the importance of the statement, coming as it did from a man about to face death.

"At the time of the murder," said Mr. Johnstone, "Pantano was engaged in an innocent occupation far from the scene of the crime. He did not run away after the murder and he received no share of the proceeds of the crime, although there was some evidence at the trial that he had been promised such reward.

"The whole question resolves itself into whether Pantano voluntarily gave information to the conspirators regarding the movements of the bank messengers, or was coerced into giving such information through threats of death to him or his family.

Says Statement Was Voluntary.

"Farina's statement in the death cell was a voluntary one, made one hour before his execution, and not drawn from him by any outside source. Farina was present on every occasion when the Diamonds and De Saro plotted the crime and therefore knew of Pantano's connection with it.

"When a witness is absent his dying declaration is 'hearsay,' but is admitted as an exception to the rules excluding hearsay evidence because of the circumstances under which it is made. I maintain that the same circumstances prevail here in an even greater degree."

Pointing out that Farina was brought up in the Catholic faith, with belief in the hereafter and in future punishment, Mr. Johnstone said Farina must have been aware of the solemnity of the moment. "Death was inevitable," he said. "Nothing could prevent it. He would be on his way to the chair in one hour. He made that statement. Cross-examination would mean nothing in comparison to the solemn circumstances under which this declaration was made. Truth and the ascertainment of truth are of far more importance than precedents. No precedent can sanction injustice."

Assistant District Attorney Cuff attacked the admissibility of the statement of Farina on the ground that it was only hearsay evidence. "This is only a piece of paper," he said. "Pantano was the brains of the whole crew. Without his aid there could have been no murder."

Cites Farina's Defiance.

Answering Mr. Johnstone's argument about the circumstances under which the statement was made, the District Attorney said: "Farina was a man without a heart. He didn't care for God, man or devil. As he was going to the chair he put a cigar in his mouth to show his defiance. When he walked up to the chair he spat upon it. This is the man upon whose dying declaration, as they call it, they rely."

The statement, declared Mr. Cuff, was made at the urgent request of some one outside. He also stressed the phrase, "As far as I know," used by Farina. "Pantano's own confession," he went on, "is enough to refute this declaration. He himself confessed that he gave the information voluntarily. There is no reason for granting a new trial. Pantano has already had a fair trial before a jury of men of high intelligence. This so-called evidence could have no possible effect even if a new trial were granted."

NAVY SEEKS TO KEEP ROCKAWAY AIR BASE

TO MAKE ANOTHER APPEAL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The prospect that the present naval air base at Rockaway, L. I., will have to be abandoned as a result of the refusal of the Sinking Fund Commission of New York City to cede this site to the Navy Department today prompted T. Douglas Robinson, as Acting Secretary of the Navy, to issue a statement indicative of the deep concern of the navy over the matter.

At the same time Mr. Robinson stated that before taking final action for the disposal of the buildings on the site the Navy Department would again make formal application to Mayor Hylan and the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund for the cession or a long-time lease of all or a portion of the property now occupied by the navy.

"The navy," said Acting Secretary Robinson in his statement, "is very much concerned in regard to the necessity of abolishing its present air base at Rockaway, L. I.

"This action is imperative because of the refusal of the Sinking Fund Commission of the City of New York to cede this site to the navy, the use of which was granted as a war time emergency measure.

Logical Place For Defense Base.

"Unless the City of New York reverses this decision and gives the navy the use of this site at Rockaway for an extended period of years, a vital link in the defense plans is smashed. These plans call for an air base in the New York-Narragansett section. Rockaway is the logical place for this base.

"The location is in the immediate vicinity of the Ambrose Channel Lightship, which is the focus of the sailing routes of the greater part of American commerce. Such a point is particularly favorable for the effective use of submarines by an enemy seeking to destroy our shipping. Seaplane control in conjunction with the use of small, swift surface craft has been found to be the only effective method by which such a menace can be checked. The Navy Department selected this site after a careful study of all available sites in the New York-Narragansett section.

"No other location can be found combining all the defense advantages possessed by this one. It now stands as a completed point for coastal patrol work. It has already cost the Government more than $1,660,000.

"If the City of New York still insists that the navy abandon this vital link in our defense chain then this expenditure is a total loss. In addition, the New York-Narragansett sector is without naval air defense indefinitely, for it is very improbable that new appropriations can be secured to acquire and build up another site. In that case no provision remains for the proper aerial defense of the City of New York against enemy raids from the sea.

"The navy understands that the Legislature of the State of New York has granted the City of New York authority to provide for the navy an adequate air base. Therefore, it remains with the Government of the City of New York as to whether this vital air base is maintained or is abandoned.

"The Navy Department fully appreciates the action that has been taken in the past by the New York City authorities in giving the navy the use of this land, and feels confident that when all facts are known, and the necessity of continuing this base is realized, the city will grant the navy's request for further and continued use of the land now occupied as an air base at Rockaway, L. I."

Opposition to the Navy Department retaining an air station in Jacob Riis Park at Rockaway Point developed in 1922, and after a series of conferences between city officials and the Navy Department, during which protests were made by many organizations and individuals to turning the park into a naval air station, the city refused to cede the land.

At that time the Navy announced that it would give up the land at once, but delayed its plans in the hope that some sort of an arrangement might be made because of the desirability of the site from a strategic point of view.

JUDGMENT AGAINST BANKER

O. H. Fuerth Must Pay $59,977 Due Brokerage Firm.

A judgment for $59,977 was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday against Otto Herbert Fuerth, an international banker, on an order of Justice Ingraham, who found that Fuerth had no valid defense to a suit for $54,458 due on a judgment obtained against him in England in 1921 by the stock brokerage firm of Henry Carlebach & Co. The judgment was for $66,921, on which a little more than $12,000 was paid.

An affidavit filed by Herbert S. Ogden, for the plaintiff, said that Fuerth consulted with him on the adjustment, and told him that all his property had been confiscated by various Governments during the World War on the ground that he was a citizen of Hungary. He said he had valuable property in England, France, Hungary and Brazil. He was engaged in floating loans in London for Central European countries when the war began, Mr. Ogden said Fuerth told him, but was compelled to leave London hurriedly to avoid being interned, and the plaintiffs closed out his account, sued in his absence and got judgment.

Mr. Ogden said that Fuerth told him that his wife had an income of $60,000 to $70,000 a year but that he would not permit her to pay his debts, and expected to be able to do so himself. The attorney said that Fuerth failed to make good his promises to settle.

18 Out of 40 Appear for Jury Duty

Out of forty notifications sent to citizens yesterday to appear for duty on the Federal Grand Jury, Brooklyn, only eighteen persons responded. Of this number some presented excuses that could not very well be denied. The remaining number was so small that all were excused and will be notified to appear later. The scarcity of answers to the notifications is ascribed to the number of persons on vacations and travel tours.

Auto Maker's Son in Crash Loses Right to Drive Car

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Aug. 6 (AP).—Albert R. Erskine, 16, son of the President of the Studebaker Corporation of South Bend, Ind., today was forbidden in a local justice court to operate an automobile.

The order resulted from an automobile accident in which his car struck another machine driven by a Laporte boy, Herschell Cattlin, aged 14, who also was ordered to cease operating an automobile.

GERMANY TO EVICT AS POLAND DID

SPURNS EXTREME DEMANDS

By LINCOLN EYRE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—Rejecting the Junker extremists' demand for unrestricted retaliation, Foreign Minister Stresemann declared in the Reichstag this afternoon that the German Government in its treatment of Poles living in Germany would duplicate, but on no account exceed, the severity exercised by the Polish authorities in their expulsion measures against Germans resident in Poland. The parliamentary majority approved the Ministerial attitude in this respect, but strong criticism of the conditions originally prevailing in the Schneidemuehl refugee camp was voiced by speakers of all parties.

"Throughout this painful business we have merely followed Poland's lead," Herr Stresemann said. "We shall resort to force in expelling Polish residents of the Reich only when Poland begins to use force against our compatriots.

"It is obviously to Germany's interest that not she but Poland should start applying force.

"Today we learn that the Polish Government has given Germans in the Province of Posen who have not obeyed the expulsion order forty-eight hours to leave the country.

"We shall serve the same notice on the Polish citizens residing here who opted (voted) for Poland in the plebiscite."

"Out of a formal right the Poles have made a great wrong," he averred.

"Six years after the end of the war they have driven tens of thousands of helpless people out of their homes. This is not the spirit of pacification which the world so urgently needs, but the spirit of ruthless selfishness."

He gave 27,000 as the total number of Germans who have been or would be expelled from Poland. More than half, he said, already have crossed the frontier.

Both the Federal and Prussian Administrations were fully informed of the impending influx, and the authorities charged with the reception of the refugees had been instructed what to do.

Here the Reichstag fixed an accusing eye upon Herr Severing, the Prussian Minister of the Interior, who was on the ministerial bench and whom the Nationalists blame for the miserable accommodations provided at Schneidemuehl. One Nationalist orator, indeed, demanded to know why Severing could not give proper attention to 10,000 German refugees when he had displayed so much hospitality to Polish Jews. Socialists took up the cudgels for their Prussian party leader, whom their spokesman described as having brought order out of chaos on the frontier, and devoted himself wholeheartedly to the relief of his distressed compatriots.

TWO CONNECTICUT MEN KILLED BY ARMY TRUCK

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 6 (AP).—Robert Butler of Guilford, Conn., was killed instantly and Edward T. Carrington, general manager of The New Haven Journal-Courier, died on the way to the Margaret Pillsbury Hospital in an ambulance, as the result of an automobile accident in Pembroke, five miles south of here, just before noon today.

The accident, the police said, happened when an army motor truck, running No. 2 in a New Hampshire National Guard convoy proceeding to Rye Beach for the annual encampment of troops, and driven by Lenwood Daniels of Dover, N. H., turned out to allow a produce truck to pass.

In turning back to the road from the electric railway tracks, the rear of the army truck was struck by a northbound Concord-Manchester electric car. The truck was tossed across the road, crumpling the car occupied by the victims against a tree.

NAMING OF GARY DELAYED

Evidences of nation-wide interest and offers of active cooperation from leading citizens in various parts of the country caused leaders in the National Crime Commission movement, who met yesterday in the offices of Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel Corporation, at 71 Broadway, to defer for one week the selection of a chairman and other officers. An Organization Committee was appointed and instructed to select a "slate" Monday for adoption at a meeting next Wednesday.

Although it was the announced purpose to ask Judge Gary to accept the chairmanship, the receipt of hundreds of telegrams and letters from crime experts, business men, State, county and city officials offering their services, led to a discussion regarding the advisability of making the organization more truly national by including among its officers men from other States.

The Organization Committee, which is to get in touch with various men in other parts of the country, comprises George W. Wickersham, Chairman; Richard Washburn Child, William B. Joyce, former Governor Charles S. Whitman and Horace F. Poor. They will prepare their slate Monday in Mr. Wickersham's office. The meeting to which they will report will be in Judge Gary's office.

Those who attended yesterday's meeting, presided over by Mr. Wickersham as Temporary Chairman, with Rayford W. Alley acting as Secretary, were George Gordon Battle, Chairman of the Law Reform Committee of the Association of the Bar of New York; Mr. Child, John W. Davis, Assemblyman F. Trubee Davison, Dr. John H. Finley, former State Commissioner of Education; William B. Joyce, Chairman of the Board of the National Surety Company; W. E. Knox, President of the American Bankers' Association; Burdette G. Lewis, Commissioner of Institutions for New Jersey; Mr. Poor, who is Chairman of the Crime Committee of the Merchants' Association of New York City; W. H. Pouch, President of the National Association of Credit Men.

Others were Mark O. Prentiss, who is spokesman for the movement; William L. Saunders, Chairman of the Board of the Ingersoll-Rand Company; Stanley A. Sweet of Prison Industries; General Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; former Governor Whitman, C. K. Woodridge, President of the National Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World; Governor George S. Silzer of New Jersey, Harry Davison, brother of Assemblyman Davison, and E. A. St. John, President of the National Surety Company.

Gary Again Explains Aims.

Judge Gary explained the purpose of the movement and its progress to date, and Mr. Child answered questions from those who did not attend the first meeting. It was generally agreed that the movement was in response to a real need and would accomplish a great public service in stamping out, in so far as possible, crime conditions that were characterized as "terrifying."

The meeting was behind closed doors and information concerning it was made public by Mr. Prentiss. Asked if the question of financing had been discussed, Mr. Prentiss said:

"Judge Gary said he would do all he could to help and would be more than pleased to make financial contributions. Mr. Davidson and one or two others endorsed Judge Gary's idea of making contributions, but a detailed discussion of finances was not held. The commission certainly will have a high-class secretary and staff who will be paid."

Governor Silzer was quoted by Mr. Prentiss as having emphasized that New Jersey stamped out a large part of its crimes of violence, including highway banditry, by immediate trials and very severe penalties. Governor Silzer called together the prosecuting attorneys and advised what they should do, then called together the Judges of New Jersey's criminal courts and asked them to inflict the severest penalties. Mr. Prentiss pointed out that "Jersey justice" is now a well known phrase.

Mr. Wickersham, according to Mr. Prentiss, said the National Crime Commission's work is not to be accomplished in a week, or a month, and that those who really wanted to aid in the movement must enlist, in effect, "for the duration of the war."

As an aid to the proposed commission, Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager has invited business men to occupy the bench with him and give their reaction to the day's proceedings. In Yorkville Court yesterday W. J. L. Banham, President of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation and head of the Otis Elevator Company, sat with the Magistrate and later expressed surprise that so many men without proper licenses are driving taxicabs.

"It is evident," said Mr. Banham, "that the period during which occurred the transfer of control from the License to the Police Department contributed largely to the existing situation. Some drivers are still using their 1924-1925 licenses with only a slip of paper to sho wthey have filed application for new licenses."

Brooklyn Committee Says Records Now Are Scattered.

In a statement issued yesterday J. W. Richardson, Chairman of the Public Safety Committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, said that plans were being considered by that body for coordination of criminal records. The records, according to the statement, are distributed among many departments of the city and State. It is proposed to bring them into one department, where they may be more readily accessible.

Certain changes in the penal and prison laws which will permit more severe sentences for professional and dangerous criminals and greater leniency for first offenders are also under consideration by the Public Safety Committee. The committee also is inquiring into more careful segregation of prisoners and suitable work for all prisoners.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Movement of Stocks Confused; Changes in Both Directions—London's Reduced Bank Rate.

The financial event of yesterday was the reduction in the London bank rate, which was unexpected. Naturally enough, the incident had no particular effect on our own Stock Exchange; which, in fact, amused itself with futile conjecture as to a possible rise in the New York Reserve Bank rate. That idea was purely a product of the Wall Street imagination, and probably originated from the fact of a reactionary stock market.

There were not many rapid declines in prices yesterday, and in a few stocks the recent professional bidding up process was resumed. But the general tendency of the day was fractionally downward; the advance, at any rate, was checked. Changes in price of separate stocks, however, had little or no relation to one another, except as they showed the speculative position in the different shares. It was the usual speculative readjustment after a continued movement in one direction.

No light was thrown on the money market position by the weekly Federal Reserve return. Rediscounts increased considerably, the whole system's loans on Government security reaching the highest figure of the year. The increase, however, was wholly accounted for by transactions of the New York Reserve Bank, whose ratio of reserve a week ago was the highest in fourteen months. The larger rediscounts at that institution (they are now nearly six times as great as a year ago) may be reasonably ascribed to the reversal of the gold movement in our foreign trade since this time in 1924. Prior to the change from gold imports to gold exports, it was mostly the inflow of gold which made the private banks of this district independent of the Reserve Bank's rediscounting facilities and reduced that item at the New York institution to an entirely negligible amount.

From yesterday's reduction of its official discount rate from 5 per cent. to 4½ by the Bank of England, there are some highly interesting possible implications. To some extent it doubtless recognizes the lower rates in London's open money market, which had declined since May from 4¾ per cent. to 4¼. But the lower of those rates has existed for several weeks, and the margin between bank rate and market was no greater than on numerous occasions during 1924. Furthermore, the Bank of England knew that to reduce the official rate would occasion further decline in the open market; which in fact happened yesterday. The reduction, therefore, must apparently mean that the Bank has no uneasiness over such fall in sterling at the end of Summer as would seriously imperil the institution's gold reserve.

That attitude might be based on belief that, with this year's abundant European wheat crop and with Europe's present stock of cotton 40 per cent. above last August's, there will be no such abnormal "British import surplus" as last year's to depress the sterling rate. But it would seem also to reflect belief that there will be no considerable rise in the New York money market, because that would make our own open money market higher than London's and would therefore occasion a movement of American balances back from London to New York, with the resultant pressure on sterling. Considering how closely the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve have kept in touch with one another, yesterday's lowering of the London bank rate is fairly plain assurance that our own bank rate is at least not destined to an early advance.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, AUG. 6, 1925.

Stock Exchange call money was 4¼ per cent. all day. It was the first session in the week that the rate was maintained without change. While only a fair supply was on offer, it was more than enough to meet the modest requirements, in fact, a small amount was unloaned at the close. Time money market was dull, very few new trades being reported. Renewals were the only diversion of the session. Both commercial paper and acceptances ruled steady and without variation in discount.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Stock Market Again Ends Lower; Trading Continues Active.

After a few of the familiar rapid advances in prices of some high-priced speculative issues during the forenoon dealings yesterday, when trading on the Stock Exchange was unusually active, the market developed irregularity shortly after noon and ended the day lower. In the afternoon, when stocks were declining, business became less active, but the aggregate for the day was again large. Many of the "specialties," despite the late reaction, closed with substantial gains, but the list as a whole, as indicated by the averages, was lower. The announcement of a reduction in the Bank of England rate from 5 to 4½ per cent. had virtually no effect on the local market; in fact as stocks declined in the late dealings some speculators spread a rumor that the local rediscount rate would be advanced, with the usual sequel that it was left unchanged at yesterday's meeting of Reserve Bank directors. There was nothing in the local money situation, according to the best Wall Street opinion, to warrant any change.

London Bank Rate and Exchange.

The New York banking world will keep a close watch on the movements of sterling exchange in coming weeks in order to detect any effect that yesterday's Bank of England discount rate reduction may have on the market. The belief was generally expressed that the change would cause little variation in exchange rates, as London has built up the strongest kind of support for the gold standard since the return to it a little more than three months ago. Yesterday's sterling market steadied after a slight decline on news of the discount rate change, and closed just 1-16 cent lower for the day. The principal effect of the Bank of England's action, it was said by bankers yesterday, may be in stimulation of British trade, which evidently was considered more important in London than the exchange situation, especially when sterling has given proof of its strength for several months.

Realizing Sales Continue.

Brokers who do a large commission house business reported yesterday that many of their customers were lightening their accounts, and that this has been responsible for at least part of the reaction in stock prices during the past few days. This liquidation, it was explained, was not confined to any one group of stocks but was well scattered. But while liquidation of that sort was going on, some brokers reported some shifting of accounts from many of the high-priced industrials into the railroad shares and other issues, which, according to brokerage opinion, have advanced in the recent market as sharply as have the industrial issues, public utilities and other specialties. Some of the public utilities absorbed profit-taking sales without any unfavorable effect, as indicated by the sharp advance in Montana Power to a new high record for all time, and by advances in Havana Electric, United Light and Power and other issues which have been prominent of late. Public Service of New Jersey, which advanced sharply earlier in the week, lost only 1¼ points for the day, despite the realizing sales.

It has been believed during several days past, by many of those who follow the stock market closely, that strenuous efforts were being made by the professional bears to get the market "turned around," that is, not only to bring it to a point of irregularity where the advance would be halted, but to reach a point where some liquidation of stock would be induced. Thus far these efforts are not considered to have been successful. The selling yesterday converged sharply on the oil issues, which show no disposition whatever to follow the general trend of the market. There was especially heavy selling in one or two of the so-called "weak sisters" of the oil list. In these particular cases the concentrated selling had the effect of bringing them down 2 or 3 points. It did not spread to the rest of the list, however.

Mergers Still in the Air.

Wall Street hears a great deal about mergers these days. In fact, merger rumors, which are legion, have been partly responsible for keeping the speculation flame shining so brightly. The mergers about which rumors are flying are railroads, public utilities, food companies, beverage companies and companies engaged in the manufacture of automobiles. Some of them, of course, may finally come to the surface as actual deals. In most cases, however, the mergers which have lately been rumored about Wall Street would not only be impracticable but impossible.

Chain Store Sales Establish Records.

A number of the prominent chain store organizations issued their sales statements yesterday covering the month of July. All of these companies report large increases in sales compared with the same month last year. In many instances the sales for July this year, and the total sales for the first seven months of the current year established new high records for all time. The gains in sales compared with last year range from 12 to more than 25 per cent. The report of F. W. Woolworth & Co., the largest of these organizations, gives some interesting details as to the manner in which sales gained in various sections of the country. The Woolworth report points out that, while the increase in the sales of the various stores was well distributed and covered every section of the country, the largest gains were reported in the agricultural sections of the West and Middle West.

Wall Street heard with interest yesterday the news that the money order convention concluded some time ago between Finland and Soviet Russia had resulted in those countries adopting the American dollar as the standard of value in their official transactions. Money orders are to be expressed in United States dollar values and settlements made by means of bills, according to reports, drawn in dollars on New York. This was said to be the first instance where two foreign nations in agreement had adopted the dollar as their standard of value, although the dollar's popularity as an unofficial if not official unit of trade abroad has been well known.

Rediscount Rate Here to Stand.

The lower discount rate announced by the Bank of England is expected to exert a helpful influence in the bond market in New York, where the belief that the Federal Reserve rediscount rate might be advanced has tended somewhat to check investment buying. According to banking opinion, as expressed yesterday, it is clear now that the New York rate will not be advanced. The New York Federal Reserve Bank and the Bank of England have cooperated to maintain stability since the British return to the gold standard, and for the rate here to be advanced following the reduction in London would be to draw an excess of funds here to the distinct disadvantage of the London market. Even under present conditions it is expected that many American balances which have been accumulating in London will be withdrawn to New York if the general banking rates in London are reduced to maintain their ratio to the Bank of England rate.

N. Y. CENTRAL BUYS AUTOMATIC SIGNALS

EQUIPMENT FOR 7 SECTIONS

Will Be Installed on 2,600 Miles of Track to Comply With Commerce Commission Rule.

Installation of automatic signal control on seven divisions of the New York Central Lines, including two divisions of the New York Central, two of the Michigan Central, two of the Big Four and one of the Boston & Albany, has been contracted for with the General Railway Signal Company at a cost of from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. The contract constitutes the largest order yet placed by a railway system for automatic signals and it is in compliance with the mandates of the Interstate Commerce Commission issued in 1922 and last year.

More than 2,600 miles of railway are concerned in the present contract. Between 1,300 and 1,400 locomotives will be equipped with automatic train control as an additional safeguard.

The New York Central in the last two years has spent more than $800,000 on automatic train control. Various systems have been installed and are already in operation on a number of divisions. Experiments in automatic signalling and train control have been conducted over twenty-three years and were begun long before the Interstate Commerce Commission made such installations mandatory.

First Order in 1922.

On June 13, 1922, the commission entered its first order requiring the installation of train-stop or train-control devices upon a passenger locomotive division on each of the forty-nine railroads by Jan. 1, 1925. On Jan. 14, 1924, the commission issued a second order requiring that a second division be equipped before Feb. 1, 1926, on the lines of the forty-seven of the railroads affected by the first order and that forty-five other roads make similar installations on designated portions of their lines.

On requests of certain of the carriers the commission has extended the specified dates of completion for some of the roads.

Since the issuance of the commission's first order the New York Central lines have installed general railway signal train-control devices on about ten locomotives and about twenty miles of line on each of the following roads: Boston & Albany, Michigan Central and Big Four. Similar installation has been made of Union Switch and Signal Company devices on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and of the Sprague devices on a few locomotives and a few miles of track of the Mohawk division of the New York Central. Recently the commission ordered similar trial installations of the Clark devices on the Michigan Central and of the Miller devices on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern.

The sections of the New York Central which will benefit from the present contract include the roadway between Springfield, Mass., and Albany, N. Y., on the Boston & Albany; between Albany and Syracuse on the New York Central; between Buffalo and Cleveland on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern; between Detroit and Niles, Mich., on the Michigan Central, and between Indianapolis and East St. Louis, Ill., on the Big Four Route.

The contract is for 1,357 train control equipments for locomotives and apparatus for 969 miles of line or about 2,600 miles of track.

Will Equip Other Sections.

To make it possible for locomotives equipped with train control to operate on any railroad, the New York Central Lines, it was indicated yesterday, will later order similar equipment for the new sections of the line between Springfield and Boston, between Syracuse and Buffalo, between Cleveland and Chicago, between Niles, Mich., and Chicago, between Cleveland and Indianapolis and between New York and Albany.

The General Railway Signal Company also has contracts with the following railroads in the New York Central Lines territory: Lehigh Valley, Erie, Delaware & Hudson and Pere Marquette. Lines not in New York Central territory but having contracts with the General Railway Signal Company for similar automatic systems include the Atlantic Coast Line, the Southern, the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific and the Kansas City Southern.

Commenting on the order placed by the New York Central Lines with the General Railway Signal Company for train control equipment, W. W. Salmon, President of the latter company, said:

"The General Railway Signal Company has expended millions of dollars in developing and perfecting automatic train control devices and systems and is just now beginning to reap the benefit of this work.

"It is naturally gratifying that my company should have received this important order and I feel confident that we can reasonably look forward to a large amount of business from other railroads for a long time."

Manila Electric Heads Quit.

At a meeting of the directors of the Manila Electric Corporation the resignations of Charles M. Swift as President and R. B. Marchant as Vice President were accepted. John H. Pardee, formerly Vice President, was elected President and J. I. Mange, President of the Associated Gas & Electric Company, was made a Vice President to fill the vacancy.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Sterling and Franc Centre of Interest on Discount Cut and Circulation Increase.

Business in the foreign exchange market yesterday converged in sterling and the franc, Continentals being more or less subordinate to the interest created by the surprise announcement of a cut in the Bank of England's discount rate, and the huge increase in circulation reported by the Bank of France. The first reaction to the news brought moderate selling which depressed the pound 3-16 cent, to $4.85 5-16, and the franc 1½ points, to 4.69¼ cents. However, buying of an excellent character dissipated the earlier nervousness and both bills closed up to within a bare fraction of Wednesday's final.

Italian lire was quiet and firm around 3.63½ cents, while the Belgian franc regained 2½ points of the loan sustained on Wednesday, moving up to 4.53½ cents. Holland, Spanish and Swiss documents were sluggish. Danish and Norwegian were irregular, the Copenhagen bill yielding 5 points to 22.76 cents, while Oslo advanced 6 points to 18.46 cents. South Americans and Far Easterns remained steady, but the Canadian dollar dropped to 1-32 of 1 per cent. premium, from 3-32 in effect since the first of the week.

CHAIN STORE SALES SET HIGH RECORDS

LARGEST GAINS IN WEST

Gross sales of the larger chain store organizations of the country, according to statements issued yesterday, established high records for some companies, both for July and for the first seven months of the current year to date. The increases in gross sales for both the month and seven months recorded gains of from 12 to more than 25 per cent., compared with the corresponding periods last year. Increased sales were reported in all sections of the country, with the largest gains in the agricultural districts.

F. W. Woolworth & Co., the largest chain store system of the group, reported gross sales of $17,828,930, a new high figure for any July on record. The total compares with gross sales of $15,950,572 in July last year, the gain amounting to $1,878,358, or 11.78 per cent. For the seven months the company reported gross sales of $119,125,211, against $107,242,852 in the same period last year, a gain of $11,882,359, or 11.08 per cent.

The increased sales reported for July, it was pointed out yesterday, are significant in view of the fact that July this year had only three Saturdays, due to the July 4 holiday, whereas July last year had four Saturdays. It was further pointed out that Saturday's business is the biggest of the week, being equal to about 30 per cent. of the average week's sales. The company further reports that all districts recorded a gain in sales in July, but the largest gains were reported in the West and Middle West. Of the increased sales reported in July, old stores in operation more than a year contributed $1,184,610, or 7.43 per cent. to the gain, while for the seven months old stores contributed $6,052,869, or 5.64 per cent. The company had 1,356 stores in operation on Aug. 1, against 1,356 on Dec. 31, 1924.

Gains by Other Companies.

The S. S. Kresge Company for July reported gross sales of $7,509,647 against $6,370,556 last year, a gain of $1,139,091, or 17.8 per cent. For the seven months ended July 31, this company reported gross sales of $52,164,547 against $45,726,542 last year, a gain of $6,438,005, or 12.3 per cent.

The J. C. Penney Company, Inc., for July reported gross sales of $5,881,017, against $4,752,168, a gain of $1,128,849, or 23.75 per cent. For the seven months the Penney organization reports gross sales of $41,549,826 against $34,417,370, a gain of $7,132,456, or 20.72 per cent.

July sales of the McCrory Stores Corporation aggregated $2,149,675 against $1,909,282, an increase of $240,393, or 12.5 per cent. For the seven months this company reported gross sales of $14,228,284 against $12,639,779, a gain of $1,588,505, or 12.5 per cent.

Isaac Silver & Bros. Company, Inc., for July reported gross sales of $335,280, against $264,706, an increase of $70,574 or 26.6 per cent. For the seven months sales aggregated $1,967,847 against $1,556,378, an increase of $411,469 or 26.4 per cent.

ASSOCIATED GAS GETS LONG ISLAND UTILITIES

Acquired Companies Serve Many Towns Now Experiencing Realty Booms.

The Associated Gas and Electric Company of New York has added to its groups of New York State utilities the Long Island Water Corporation, it was learned yesterday. The corporation was reported some time ago as being the subject of negotiations between "certain interests," and the Ward estate through Marshall Field, Glore, Ward & Co.

The Long Island Water Corporation is a successor to the Queens County Water Company serving Belle Harbor, Arverne, Rockaway Park, Rockaway Beach, Oceanside, Edgemere, Neponsit, Far Rockaway, Fort Tilden in Queens County, and Lawrence, Inwood, Cedarhurst, Woodmere, Woodsburgh, Hewlett, Valley Stream, Malverne, Lynbrook, East Rockaway in Nassau County.

The Long Island Water Corporation has taken over the Baldwin Water Company and the Roosevelt Water Company, which are in adjacent territory and serve Baldwin and Roosevelt, L. I., respectively. When consolidated these properties will serve approximately 25,000 consumers.

The recent electrification of the Babylon branch of the Long Island Railroad and the tremendous real estate activity in the Borough of Queens should, it is said, insure the growth of the properties acquired.

Another recent addition to the associated group is the Litchfield Electric Light and Power Company, distributing electricity in Litchfield, Bantam and Washington in Connecticut. The acquisition of this property makes possible a tie-up with the Harlem Valley electric properties of the associated system.

Besides controlling and operating public utilities in this State, the associated company has various properties in other States and Manila, P. I.

The Prudential Insurance Company paid out over $28,000,000 in 1924 to insurance policyholders in the State of New York, more than $12,500,000 of which was in settlement of death claims, the company said yesterday. Distribution of dividends amounted to about $8,800,000, while $2,000,000 was paid in matured endowments.

An analysis of death claims showed that 52 per cent. of the beneficiaries were wives and their children, with mothers constituting an additional 25 per cent. Applied to New York State, this analysis would indicate, it was said yesterday, that more than $6,000,000 was paid by the company to widows and their children, while the payment to mothers was about $3,125,000.

Denies North American Rumor.

In response to inquiries concerning reports that the North American Company was increasing its holdings in Washington Railway and Electric Company stock, Frank L. Dame, President of the North American Company, said yesterday it had for some time owned 75 per cent. of the common stock of the Washington company but was not further increasing its holdings.

Crown Finance Earnings Report.

ADMITS SHATTUCK MAY BUY HUYLERS

SHATTUCK STOCK RISING

The Frank D. Shattuck Company, owner of Schrafft's, has entered into negotiations with the Huyler interests for the purchase of the Huyler chain of stores, an official of the Shattuck Company admitted yesterday.

"Nothing definite has been done," he added. "We have talked with the Huyler interests, but as yet no papers have been signed."

The Shattuck Company was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts on May 31, 1906. Its assets, as announced on Dec. 31, 1924, were $4,656,205. It operates, under the name of Schrafft's, twenty-one restaurants and candy stores in New York, Boston, Brooklyn and Syracuse.

The Shattuck Company has acquired an interest in Christie, Brown & Co., Ltd., the largest manufacturer of biscuits and similar products in Canada, it was learned yesterday. Discussing plans for a merger of the two companies, a director of the Canadian concern, interviewed in Toronto, said that the object was to promote the introduction of Christie biscuits and other products in the American market. No change in the management of the company in Canada is contemplated.

An issue of $1,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative redeemable preference shares of Christie, Brown & Co. has been placed on the local market through Hitt, Farwell & Co., of 160 Broadway. The Canadian company was incorporated last April to acquire the baking business founded seventy-five years ago by William Christie. The company's products, numbering over 400 varieties, are sold throughout the Dominion.

The property of the company occupies a square block in Toronto and has sales branches in many other Canadian cities. Its capitalization consists of $1,000,000 first mortgage bonds, $1,000,000 preferred stock and 105,000 shares of common stock without par value. For the last five years the net profits of the business have averaged about $198,000 annually. Assets are listed at $3,012,379.

WARD LINE TO END ITS RECEIVERSHIP

Will Apply in Court Next Tuesday—Holding Company Has Bought All Bonds.

$2,000,000 IN CLAIMS PAID

Steamship Company Is Said to Be Showing Profit Under Management of Receiver.

An application for the discharge of Francis G. Caffey, as receiver of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company, better known as the Ward Line, will be made next Tuesday in the Federal Court, the holding company, the Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Steamship Company, having purchased all the bonds of the Ward Line and paid off in full about $2,000,000 in claims against the company. This was announced yesterday.

Hubert E. Rogers, a director of both steamship companies, and attorney for the A. G. W. I. in matters affecting the Ward Line, explained the application for the discharge of the receiver. The purchase of $5,103,000 in bonds of the Ward Line was recently completed, the price having been 95 and two years' interest, making the total price 105.

This arrangement will end the suit for $18,000,000, brought by Receiver Caffey in July, 1924, in which he charged that assets of from $12,000,000 to $18,000,000 had been diverted from the Ward Line by the Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Company after the latter company had gained control of 99 per cent. of the stock of the Ward Line. As it is now the sole owner of the bonds and 99 per cent. of the stock and is paying claimants in full, there is no longer need for a receivership, it is said. The Ward Line, under Mr. Caffey's management, is said to be making money.

The Ward Line went into the hands of the receiver on Dec. 31, 1923, on an action in equity brought by Wendell P. Colton Company, an advertising concern, and a creditor of the company to the amount of $14,191. The petition stated that the capital stock of the line was $10,000,000, and that its debts aggregated $2,000,000, the amount which Mr. Rogers said yesterday had been paid. The assets were always in excess of the liabilities.

AUTOMOTIVES GAIN IN JULY

July was one of the best months the automobile and allied industries ever experienced, according to Automotive Industries. Sales were not as high as in June, but were better than in any previous July, so much so that the prediction is already being made in some quarters that the whole of 1925 will set a new record. In summing up conditions in the industry, the journal of the trade says:

"The introduction of new models and the lowering of prices during the last week or two has produced the expected stimulus to the sales of the companies concerned, and an excellent volume of business for August is promised. More than the ordinary interest in new cars has been shown by the public.

"Stocks in dealers' hands are in good condition, and in only one or two spots in the South and West is any difficulty being experienced in keeping used cars moving. The number of old models on dealers' floors at this time is the lowest yet recorded.

"A survey shows a majority of the manufacturers genuinely optimistic and making plans accordingly. Others are not so favorably placed. It might be said with reasonable exactness that the automobile manufacturers who were rushing production the first part of the year are still unable to catch up with orders except to a small degree. Some are still unable to make deliveries within two months."

TO EXTEND DOCK SERVICE.

Benenson Associates Plan Unification of Pier Properties in Brooklyn.

Extensive development of the properties of the New York Dock Company is planned by Gregori Benenson and his associates, who recently acquired the stock in the company held by the Mutual Life Insurance Company, A. Iselin & Co., and Roosevelt & Son. Engineers have been engaged to map out a program of unification of the 159 warehouse buildings, 20 manufacturing plants and 34 piers into the largest warehouse, shipping, industrial and distribution center in the world.

Mr. Benenson and his associates will first increase the company's warehouse and storage business by extending its serviceability by a trucking service to be formed soon, which will make deliveries and transfers of goods stored. It is planned also to form a financing department, which will make loans, on occasion, on goods stored. The company has resources available for this purpose.

No new money will be furnished for the developments which will be financed by the profits of the company. Properties of the company extend for about two miles along the river and harbor front from the Brooklyn Bridge south. It is expected that the plans of the Port Authority will have an important effect on the Brooklyn waterfront, and in this, the marginal railroad owned by the company, will be a factor.

TO ELECTRIFY IRON PLANT.

After more than 100 years of continued production the historic Phoenix Iron Company at Phoenixville, Pa., which played an important part in the World War, the Civil War, and during the early days of the Republic, will soon have changed fully to electrical operation, it was announced yesterday.

A contract for equipment in excess of $250,000, necessary for the electrification of the huge thirty-six-inch "bloomer" mill, has been awarded to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, including the main mill motor, the fly-wheel set and auxiliaries, weighing more than half a million pounds. The new electrical apparatus will increase the electrical equipment of the plant 4,350 horsepower, and is in addition to the Westinghouse drives for the twenty-two-inch and four-inch structural mills installed last year.

In recent years, in addition to steam and hydraulic power, electricity has been gradually applied to the various machinery units at the plant now culminating in the electrification of the "bloomer" mill. This mill is capable of rolling 12,000-pound ingots into "blooms" or structural blanks of an average weight of 180 pounds per lineal foot at the rate of 30,000 tons per month, charged weight.

On Job 58 Years, Gets Gifts.

William W. Andrews, cashier of the Brooklyn office of the Fidelity-Phenix Fire Insurance Company, who has been in active service with the company for fifty-eight years, received yesterday a gold watch bearing the emblem of the company and a check for $1,000.

DIVIDENDS BY 5 COMPANIES.

California Petroleum Increases Annual Rate to $2 a Share.

Directors of the California Petroleum Company at their meeting in Los Angeles yesterday increased the annual dividend rate on the common stock from $1.75 to $2 a share by declaring a quarterly dividend of 50 cents, payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 20. Heretofore the company has been paying dividends at the rate of 43¾ cents a share quarterly.

The American Locomotive Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share on the common stock and the quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock, both dividends being payable Sept. 30, to stockholders of record Sept. 14. The third quarterly installment of the extra dividend of $10 a share declared in the Spring, amounting to $2.50 a share, will be paid with the current quarterly dividend.

Directors of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the prior preferred stock, payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 15, and the quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock, payable Oct. 15 to stockholders of record Sept. 15.

The Phoenix Hosiery Company announced the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the first and second preferred stocks, payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 17.

Directors of the Dictaphone Corporation declared the regular quarterly dividend of 8 per cent. on the preferred stock, payable to stockholders on Sept. 1. C. K. Woodbridge, President, reported an improvement in business conditions, and said that the gross returns for July showed an increase of 47 per cent. compared with the same month last year.

STEEL FOUNDRIES EARNINGS

The American Steel Foundries Company for the six months ended June 30, 1925, reports net earnings of $3,216,903, after all expenses and taxes, against $2,824,215 in the same period last year. Net income of $2,788,347 was reported for the six months against $2,348,664 for the same period last year.

The net income for the first six months of 1925, after providing for preferred dividends, was equal to $2.74 a share earned on the 902,745 shares of no par value stock outstanding. This compares with $2.81 a share on the 722,196 shares outstanding last year.

R. P. Mount, President, stated that the plants were operating at between 50 and 60 per cent. of capacity. He intimated that operations would be reduced further for another month or so, but added that contracts on hand for repairs warranted a fair operating rate during the current period of slow equipment orders.

30,000-TON STEEL ORDERS.

Contracts for structural steel aggregating 30,000 tons were placed in the past week, according to reports in steel trade circles. Inquiries for an additional 20,000 tons are in the market, including 3,000 tons for oil tanks for the Vacuum Oil Company and 2,000 tons for a hospital in Philadelphia.

The orders in the past week include 4,020 tons for the ore dock extension of the Great Northern Railway, placed with the Stacey Manufacturing Company; 2,500 tons for an apartment on Riverside Drive, placed with the Paterson Bridge Company, and 2,350 tons for new buildings at Duke University, Durham, N. C.

WYLIE TELLS WHY HE QUIT OIL CONCERN

'NOT OF THE INNER CIRCLE.'

Veteran Aid of Doheny Asserts That Standard Oil Interests Had Asked Him to Stay.

Herbert G. Wylie, who resigned as President of the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company last Saturday, issued a statement yesterday in which he confirmed reports in the financial district that dissension prevailed between the new management and the few members of the old régime who remained with the Pan American organization when Edward L. Doheny sold control of the company to Standard Oil of Indiana.

Mr. Wylie's statement on his resignation follows:

"At the time that Mr. Doheny disposed of his control of Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company, fortunately or unfortunately, as the case may be, I had been confined at home for several weeks with laryngitis. The new interests called to see me when my voice was practically inaudible and I could only make my ideas known in a whisper.

"They asked me to remain with them in the same capacity, namely, as President and General Manager, assuring me that there would be no changes in the organization. This I was reluctant to do, but on receiving certain assurances agreed. When I returned to the office I found that the management had business well in hand and had diverted from the office of the President much that had heretofore been under his jurisdiction.

"I realized that I was not within the inner circle and that business was being transacted without consideration for me. As the days went by I felt this more and more; and as the President had a particular responsibility to the stockholders that he could not assume without being kept well informed he decided that he could not continue to occupy that office—therefore my resignation."

Mr. Wylie was one of the pioneers in the development of the oil industry in Mexico. In fact, many have given him the credit for the building up of the properties of the Mexican Petroleum Company for Edward L. Doheny in Mexico. According to his close associates, Mr. Wylie handled all of the operations in the field while Mr. Doheny handled the finances of the corporation. Mr. Wylie has been with Mr. Doheny for more than twenty years, or since before the organization of the Mexican Petroleum Company, when Mr. Doheny was a prospector in the Mexican oil fields.

Since the change in the management of the Pan American Petroleum Company a few months ago there have been several changes in the policy of operation of the Mexican properties. The most important change from Wall Street's standpoint has been the conservation of the Mexican oil resources by curtailing production and using instead part of the flush production of heavy-grade crude oil produced in some of the Southern fields in this country.

The New York Times:

The fact that I have run a full page advertisement and more in The New York Times every Sunday since May 10, with generous representations practically every day in the week, is first hand evidence of my confidence in its pulling power with a very important and responsive group of readers.

The use I make of the columns of The Times in making announcements of the multitude of auction sales of real estate held by me is based upon my opinion and judgment of its value as a newspaper that is well edited and justifies its widespread use as an advertising medium.

NATION IN NO PERIL FROM OIL SHORTAGE

VAST AREAS UNEXPLORED

26,000,000,000 Barrels in Regions Not Yet Touched, Conservation Board Is Told.

J. Edgar Pew, President of the American Petroleum Institute, has submitted to the Federal Oil Conservation Board at Washington a reassuring report covering the future supply of petroleum in the United States. The report was prepared by the committee of eleven of the Institute's directors. It says that the nation is assured of a supply of motor fuel and lubricants sufficient to meet the needs of national defense and for essential uses beyond the time when science will limit the demand by developing more efficient uses of, or substitutes for, oil, or will displace its use as a source of power by harnessing a natural energy.

The survey estimates the petroleum recoverable from existing fields at 5,300,000,000 barrels and that after pumping and flowing cease there will remain in the area now producing and proved 26,000,000,000 barrels of oil, a considerable portion of which can be recovered by improved and known processes.

Uncertainties of the Search.

"The discovery of crude oil—which is the beginning of the oil industry and on which so much depends—is not an exact art," the report goes on. "Oil is hidden—the industry is essentially a 'finding' industry, attended with great uncertainties in the search. The future supply of crude oil cannot be blocked out and drawn upon as needed as in the case of oil shales, coal and lignites, from which liquid fuel can be extracted, and of many other minerals. Favorable looking lands become oil fields when the drill has revealed the presence of oil, and only then.

"Hence predictions of future supply of crude oil are necessarily conjectural. Speculative, also, perhaps to a greater degree, must be estimates of future demand, depending as they do upon sciditions which, with the advance of science and invention may undergo unforeseen and radical chages. Conclusions of the committee are based on the best information obtainable within and without the industry." The summary of other conclusions follows:

Improved methods of deep drilling below oil sands now producing will disclose in many areas deposits not hitherto available, which will be tantamount to the discovery of new fields. Improved methods of producing have been perfected which will make possible recovery of oil from these lower levels. The limit of deep drilling has not been reached.

The major oil reserves of the United State lie in some one billion, one hundred million acres of lands underlain by sedimentary rocks, and not fully explored, in which geology indicates oil is possible. With extended search new supplies will be found therein.

Vast Additional Reserves.

The nation has an additional reserve in the vast deposits of oil shale, coal and lignites from all of which liquid fuel and lubricants may be extracted if and when the cost of recovery is justified by the price of these products. These deposits are so huge that they promise, under conservative estimates, an almost unlimited supply.

While this report is confined to the petroleum supply and demand within continental United States the importance of imports cannot be ignored. Countries to the south are known to have large petroleum resources, for the output of which the United States is a natural market and the supply therefrom must inevitably have its influence on the consumption of American reserves.

The availability of future petroleum supplies from the vast area of land mentioned above depends upon adequate incentives to the exploration which in the past has given to the nation a sufficient supply of petroleum in peace and in war, throughout the history of the oil industry from its inception in 1859.

There must be:

(a) Security in the ownership of oil lands and of the right to lease.

(b) Conditions of exploration and development by owners or lessees permitting exercise of initiative, liberty of action, the play of competition and the free operation of the law of supply and demand.

(c) Prices that will provide a return to producers, refiners and distributers commensurate to the risks involved and the capital invested.

Urges Efficient Utilization.

The supply of petroleum will be made to go much further through more efficient utilization. Automotive experts say that the mileage of the motor car per gallon of gasoline may be doubled through structural mechanical changes, when price justifies such changes. Improved mechanics will also result in smaller consumption of lubricants.

Through improved methods, principally the process known as "cracking," the refining branch of the industry has already increased the yield of gasoline, now the major product of petroleum. Through further improvements and extensions the supply of gasoline will be augmented still further by the "cracking" of fuel oil. In consequence the supply of fuel oil will be correspondingly diminished, thus eventually removing fuel oil from competition with coal.

Waste in the production, transportation, refining and distribution of petroleum and its products is negligible.

The members of the committee which, with President Pew, prepared the report, are E. W. Marland, President Marland Oil Company, Ponca City, Okla.; D. M. Folsom, Director General Petroleum Corporation, San Francisco; E. T. Wilson, Chairman of the board, Continental Oil Company, Denver; K. R. Kingsbury, President Standard Oil Company (California), San Francisco; George S. Davison, President, Gulf Refining Company, Pittsburgh; W. S. Farish, President Humble Oil and Refining Company, Houston; J. C. Donnell, President Ohio Oil Company, Findlay, Ohio; W. N. Davis, President Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association and Vice President, Phillips Petroleum Company, Bartlesville, Okla.; Frank Haskell, President Tidal Oil Company, New York; R. L. Welch, General Secretary American Petroleum Institute, New York.

SEEKS TO INCREASE TRADE WITH TURKEY

Mouzaffer Ahmed Bey, the first Trade Commissioner ever appointed to this country by the Turkish Government, arrived yesterday from Angora on the Fabre liner Braga. The Bey, who was graduated from Columbia University in 1923, said that he was without diplomatic or consular status, and that the object of his mission was to stimulate trade between the two countries through a diffusion of economic information to importers and exporters in the United States and in Turkish ports.

He declared that while Turkish exports to the United States remained stable, imports from the United States had fallen off materially in the last few years, principally due to underselling by the Japanese.

"The United States does not seem able to compete in the Near East against the European and Asiatic powers, with their cheap labor, their adequately organized merchant marines and their willingness to meet the demands," he explained.

"For example, after the armistice there was a demand for American cotton goods throughout Turkey. Now the Japanese have collared the trade, being able to undersell the Americans by 20 per cent.

"The American goods are superior to the Japanese, but the popular demand is for the cheaper fabrics. Failure to understand Turkish psychology on this point has hurt American exports."

Mouzaffer Ahmed Bey also said that Turkish exports to the United States last year were valued at $13,000,000, principally tobacco, raisins, figs, mohair, licorice root and extract.

The Bey is a member of a distinguished Turkish family, being a cousin of Nuzhet Bey, who was a former commander at the Dardanelles, member of the Angora Legation at Rome, and present adviser to the American Consul General in Constantinople. He expects to open an office in New York and has engaged temporary quarters at the Hotel McAlpin.

POWER FIRM'S SALE LIKELY.

United Company May Take Over Penn. Central, Reports Say.

The sale of the Penn Central Light and Power Company to the United Lighting Company was reported yesterday as probable. Day & Zimmermann, engineers, are largely interested in the Penn Central.

A meeting of Penn Central stockholders will be held Oct. 12, and it was said yesterday that they would probably authorize the deal. Charles Day of Day & Zimmermann said a statement would be issued shortly.

The Penn Central operates in a Central Pennsylvania district, embracing about 4,000 square miles and including Blair, Cambria, Huntingdon and Mifflin Counties, and part of Indiana, Bedford, Franklin and Juniata. Among the important communities served are Altoona, Huntingdon and Lewistown. It has property and security valuation exceeding $22,000,000, and has outstanding 61,140 shares of common stock and 85,671 preference shares.

Arthur Emanuel Company, Inc., of New York, which has been active recently in acquiring public utility properties, controls and manages the Kansas Electric Power Company, which, in turn, controls the United Lighting Company. The latter concern operates utilities in Albion, Springboro and Conneautville, Pa.

BEVERAGE MERGER IN VIEW.

White Rock Company Is Reported to Be the Nucleus.

A consolidation of a number of beverage companies making mineral waters and other soft drinks is reported under consideration in the financial district. While it is entirely in a preliminary stage, it is known that some of the officials of the companies involved are in favor of such a step because of the economies of operation which would be made possible.

In case such a merger goes through, it is reported that the White Rock Mineral Springs Company will form the nucleus.

G. F. Shurtleff Returns to Mexico.

George F. Shurtleff, the newly elected President of the Canario Copper Company, has returned to Mexico to inspect the properties and supervise operations planned for the latter half of the year.

COTTON GOES HIGHER ON SHORT COVERING

FOREIGN MARKETS ARE FIRM

Trading in cotton, while restricted in volume, was characterized by further short covering as a measure of protection against tomorrow's Government report. Demand came almost entirely from previous sellers as trade buying orders are on a scale down and the absence of selling pressure caused a slight advance in prices. At best figures of the day, the list had recovered about all the ground lost this week, with May half a cent above recent low levels. Final quotations showed a gain of four to eleven points.

In addition to the 14,128,000 bale crop indication issued by Hopkins, Dwight & Co., The Hopkins Commercial Appeal also estimated the yield above fourteen million, with an indicated outturn of 14,200,000 on a condition of 68.8. Most private estimates, however, are below rather than above thirteen and three-quarter millions, compared with the last Washington estimate of 13,588,000.

Covering operations similar to developments in American markets the previous day occurred in Liverpool yesterday and advanced quotations there about 20 English points.

UTILITY PLAN APPROVED.

Commission Authorizes Bridgeton Gas Issue of $194,000.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 6.—The Public Utility Commission authorized today an issue of $194,000 in capital stock by the Bridgeton Gas Light Company. The money from the sale of the securities will be used to improve the company's property.

The board denied the petition of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company for a revocation of the board's approval whereby the North Jersey Bus Company, Inc., operated four buses between Paterson and Rockaway Township. The board also denied an application by the Morris County Traction Company for a removal of certain restrictions placed upon the bus concern when it received permission to operate on the route.

The Utility Board granted permission to the Public Service Transportation Company to extend the operation of nine buses between Camden and Collingswood to include Haddonfield in the route. Permission was also given to John H. McDonald to operate two buses between Wrightstown and Palmira.

Profits of the Symington Company.

The Symington Company for the quarter ended June 30 reports total income of $161,985 and net profit of $119,603, after all deductions. The net income, after dividend requirements on the Class A stock, was equal to 6 cents a share earned on the 300,000 shares of no par value common stock outstanding. For the first six months of 1925 the company reports net profit of $420,957, which after Class A stock dividend requirements was equal to 73 cents a share earned on the common.

Southern Cities Earnings.

The Southern Cities Utilities Company for the first six months of 1925 reports gross income of $1,309,645 and net of $509,600. The balance after charges was $141,130, equivalent to $18.80 for the year on the common stock, and $8.40 on the entire capitalization of common stock and voting trust certificates.

SPECIAL 5% DIVIDEND ON POWER STOCK SEEN

The American Water Works and Electric Company, which recently called for retirement at 105 its entire outstanding issue of participating preferred stock amounting to $10,000,000 par value, is expected some time after Aug. 24, the date set for the retirement of the stock, to announce a special dividend to common stockholders. This, according to reports yesterday, will be in stock and will amount to 5 per cent. The par value of the common is $20, but it is selling around 65.

It is understood that with the preferred issue out of the way, the common, of which there are 550,000 shares, will by the first of next year be put on an annual dividend basis of $1 a share in cash and 5 per cent. in stock. This would considerably exceed the $1.20 a share per year it now earns.

In retiring the preferred stock, the company is giving to its holders one-half share of first preferred, one-half share of common and $27 cash in exchange for each share of participating preferred. At prevailing prices the combination offe rsubstantially exceeds the optional cash redemption price of $105 a share.

While it has been assumed that the common stockholders would come in for some kind of a "mellon" at the retirement of the participating shares, it was not known until yesterday that a definite plan was under consideration.

COCOA EXCHANGE SOON TO BE OPERATING HERE

Charter Is Received for New Organization, Which Is Expected to Start Next Month.

A charter has been received from the State authorizing the establishment of a Cocoa Exchange in New York City. It is expected to be in operation in September and will have its trading quarters at 124-26 Water Street. Other products of the tropics may be traded later in along with cocoa, among them burlap, spices and rubber.

The organization committee includes A. P. Arosteguy, of J. J. Julia & Co.; Frank J. Barrett, of Frank J. Barrett & Co.; Maurice C. Hill, of Willard Hawes & Co.; Benjamin Peabody of T. Barbour Brown & Co., and Isaac Witkin, of J. Aron & Co. The permanent secretary is Robert Cross, formerly with W. R. Grace & Co. Permanent officers will be announced soon. Elections will be held annually.

METAL MARKETS HOLD FIRM.

The local metal markets were again firm yesterday and a good demand was reported for copper, lead and zinc. The Western Union Telegraph Company was reported to be in the market for 4,000,000 pounds of copper metal yesterday, and a number of smaller inquiries were in the market. The price of the red metal was unchanged, being quoted at 14⅝ cents for contracts up to the close of October. Foreign prices were also firmer yesterday, coming more in line with the local market, and producers predict a further advance in the price of copper, provided demand continues on the present scale.

The leading factors in the metal markets, both in this city and St. Louis, are still quoting 8¾ cents a pound for lead, but according to reports in the local trade some small dealers and producers are getting a premium of ½ cent a pound over the quotation of the larger companies. The largest consumers, however, got enough metal to meet their requirements from the standard companies at the prevailing market price.

Zinc demand was again active and prices were fractionally higher. Prime Western zinc was quoted at 7.57½ to 7.60 cents a pound East St. Louis, against 7.50 to 7.57½ cents quoted on Wednesday.

Sugar Prices Raised 10 to 15 Points.

Sugar refiners yesterday advanced their price from 10 to 15 points because, it was said, of an expanding demand due to canning factories' demands and larger home consumption. Yesterday's advance was started by Arbuckle Brothers, who raised the price 10 points to 5.35 cents a pound. The American and Franklin companies followed with a like advance, putting their price at 5.50 cents. The Federal Company advanced its price 15 points to 5.35 cents. The McCahan Company advanced its list 10 points to 5.50 for prompt shipment or within two weeks.

Grennan Bakeries Earnings Gain.

WHEAT MARKET LOWER AT CLOSE

WORLD SITUATION A FACTOR

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Long wheat came out freely on all bulges today, and while offerings were readily absorbed on the break a majority of local traders were inclined to feel that the technical position was somewhat strained and many of them went home short. Closing trades were at net losses of ⅛@¾ cent, with September showing the most strength, finishing ⅛ cent under the more deferred delivery after being at a fractional premium at one time. Offerings of cash wheat were not large and the basis on red Winter was ½ cent better at 9¼@10 cents over the September, while the ordinary run of hard Winter brought 2@3 cents over. The volume of trading was materially less than on Wednesday, when total purchases were 72,043,000 bushels, according to official reports.

In some quarters the world's situation was regarded as coming rapidly to the fore as the main price making factor, with a feeling that heavy buying of cash wheat by importing countries could not be much longer deferred, especially in view of the continued wet weather abroad and the known light supplies in hand and on ocean passage. The manner in which the market has absorbed the immense profit taking sales of the past few days occasioned much suprise, as at the close tonight September was off only 1¾ cents from the extreme top on the present movement.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,479,000 bushels; week ago, 1,794,000; last year, 2,685,000. Shipments, 840,000; week ago, 901,000; last year, 1,553,000.

Primary arrivals of corn today were 476,000 bushels; week ago, 356,000; last year, 537,000. Shipments, 292,000 bushels; week ago, 465,000; last year, 330,000.

RUBBER MARKET STEADIER.

The crude rubber market was steady yesterday, the small amount of business being transacted at levels only slightly changed since Wednesday. It was the first sign of stability in a week. The underlying strength was due to the reappearance of manufacturers on the buying side, particularly for the distant periods, spot and early months suffering more or less neglect.

Spot smoked sheets were held at 86 and 87 cents, with 85 bid; August was bid at 84, September at 82 and October-December at 73½ cents. London moved uncertainly in the forenoon, but the close at 43½d was a bit above earlier cables.

Cropley, freight traffic manager, and H. N. Thomas, passenger traffic manager. A large service expansion is planned by the company, which operates steamers between San Francisco and Sydney, Australia, by way of the Hawaiian, Samoan and Fiji Islands.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4 per cent. for the best names. Wednesday—4 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Fancy Slickers Are Wanted.

Slickers for women, misses and children are finding favor with buyers of popular-priced Fall merchandise. High shades of red, green, purple and blue are preferred, as well as fancy stripes and plaids. These slickers are rubberized and retail from $5.50 to $6. An odorless variety, to retail for $2 or $3 more, is also being sold, as well as transparent oiled silks which retail from $16.50 to $22.50. These slickers may be used through the year, but at present buyers are preparing for a demand from school girls of various ages.

Novelty of pattern is demanded by buyers of imported wool hosiery to the exclusion of all the plain varieties of foreign goods. "Loud" color combinations are also finding favor. Imported sweater and golf hose combinations for Fall are also showing novelty of design. The tendency is toward stripes rather than the fancy block patterns of the past season. A reaction from the extreme nature of some of the latter patterns is to be noted in the new slip-over sweaters, which are of a much more subdued tone when they are not of the striped variety.

New Necklaces Offered Here.

A new type of necklace that is being offered by a local importer is of the festoon collar type. It is composed of five rows of indestructible pearls and crystal beads, and retails $3.50. Another necklace offered by the same importer is made of metal and fancy stones. The feature of this model is the series of stones that hang as pendants from the main string, which is of choker length. It is offered in a variety of colored stones, and sells at $1.95.

Velvets Are Well Sold Up.

Faced with an insistent demand for their goods from the dress and millinery trades, some manufacturers of velvets and velveteens report that they are sold up as far ahead as Sept. 15. With a scarcity of goods predicted for later in the season, it was said yesterday that an advance in prices would not be an unlooked for development. The dress industry is calling actively for velveteens. Brocaded velvets are also in demand, with epinard green and the wine shades among the favored colors. The millinery demand, in addition to these shades, is for blues, purples, wisterias and wild aster.

Gray Goods Demand Lacks Snap.

The demand for gray goods in this market again lacked snap yesterday. In the limited printcloth business of the day were spot and September sales of 38½-inch 64-60s at 9⅝ and 9½ cents respectively. For spot 39-inch 68-72s 10½ cents was paid, while later deliveries of 38½-inch 64-56s brought 9¼ cents. The general asking price for 37-inch 48-square, 4-yard sheetings was 9¾ cents, but there were reports of sales at an eighth under that figure. Other sheeting business included sales of 36-inch 6.15s at 7 cents. Business in the heavier cloths embraced 37-inch 3.95-yard drills at 10 cents and 30-inch 3-yard drills at 12⅝ cents. Spot deliveries of both constructions were sold at the figure given.

That the advance of 10 per cent. or more in the cost of umbrella and parasol frames announced by the frame manufacturers this week will be reflected in prices of umbrellas is the unanimous opinion of manufacturers of these articles, regardless of their view of the action. This is the second advance of frames within a few months, and while the condition of business compelled many manufacturers to try to absorb the first increase there is no margin whatever in present prices. Dull retail business has not encouraged buying orders and stocks in manufacturers' hands are low. Although the advance affects practically all grades an equal amount, the lower grades will feel the largest percentage of extra cost. The umbrella manufacturers, it was said yesterday, will doubtless make a virtue of necessity and the increase in frame costs will be the occasion for their readjusting prices proportionately in the immediate future.

Doubt is expressed in the hosiery market here as to a permanent demand for half-hose to be worn with long trousers by small boys. The opinion of many leading hosiery selling agents, according to the special news letter of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers is that the long-trouser vogue for boys gives every indication of being only a bubble. The reasoning followed is that while the long-trouser suit for boys may be a "dress-up" proposition, the average boy of 8 to 12 years of age will not wear it every day. Accordingly, there is held to be no chance of supplanting seven-eighths goods with the English adaptation of half hose.

Stress Prints for Next Spring.

The favor accorded printed silks during the past season promises to continue well into the Fall and leaves no doubt about their being popular for the Spring of 1926, according to leading silk firms here. Specialty lines of warp prints are being brought out for Fall by representative concerns. These are said to show a departure from the former handling of this class of prints. They are processed on 36-inch taffetas and, in addition to the conventional rose designs, feature orchid and other floral patterns. These designs, according to a well-known silk-printing company, are well spaced, with flowers brought out in the natural colors on nile, lavender, blue, maize, pink and other soft pastel grounds. Preparation of the print lines for next Spring is actively under way, and both wide and narrow goods will again be emphasized strongly.

A manufacturer of electric fixtures here is placing on the market a new lighting device for dining rooms which has aroused considerable interest. The feature of the new fixture is that it is equipped to take a shade which will match those of other lamps in the home, as well as draperies and other furnishings. The manufacturer also supplies buckram, parchment and non-combustible celluloid shades in highly decorative effects. The canopy or top of the fixture is made of polished cast brass, and from this is suspended a silk cord in which the electric wiring is concealed. Just above the metal part supporting the shade is a tassel. This and the silk cord are shown in several colors. The fixture, which takes a shade eighteen inches in diameter, wholesales at $22.50.

Children's Socks Less Active.

For the present business in infants' socks for next Spring appears to have simmered down to normal. Buyers who have not yet placed detailed orders are shopping around, making comparisons, and are placing definite business carefully. In at least one important house orders booked to date on fancy top seven-eighths goods exceed those placed for infants' socks. In the case of leading mills, however, it is agreed that the new season in infants' socks has started off better than any other in several years.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Due to the increased interest shown in juniors' wear Hillman & Israel, 358 Fifth Avenue, have started a new factory devoted entirely to junior modes. They will manufacture a complete line of one and two piece balbriggan dresses for misses exclusively.

Felix Tausend, importer of linens and manufacturer's agent, 43 White Street, will return on Tuesday on the steamship Paris after spending three months in the linen market of Czechoslovakia.

The Amalgamated Silk Corporation, 395 Fifth Avenue, has obtained the services of Mme. Ludmilla Tchirikoff, a Russian designer.

BUFFALO BUYS FORT PORTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—An honorable career of more than 113 years as an army post will close for Fort Porter, near Buffalo, N. Y., some time before Oct. 1, 1926, when the garrison will depart and the fort will be turned over to the city for use in connection with the new bridge across Niagara River and Black Rock Harbor.

Announcement was made today that purchase of the post by the city for $400,000 had finally been completed. The money will be used in constructing new permanent quarters for troops at Madison Barracks, N. Y.

In addition to the nine-acre tract covered by Fort Porter, the War Department also will surrender control of a twenty-seven-acre strip of adjacent land along the Erie Canal which was ceded by the State in 1853, to revert to the State when no longer needed for military purposes.

Fort Porter was first mentioned in army records as "the fortified point at Black Rock," when it played a part in Indian campaigns. It was regularly garrisoned under its present name in 1843 and has housed troops ever since, the battalion of the Twenty-eighth Infantry and several detachments of auxiliary troops now being stationed there. The sale contract calls for evacuation by the military by Oct. 1, 1926.

ASSAIL FILIPINO SCHOOLS.

MANILA, Aug. 6 (AP).—The average Filipino child spends less than three years in school, and the average attainment of children completing four primary grades is equal to that of a second grade student in the United States, a survey of the education system here by a committee of American experts disclosed.

Recommendations of the educators, who were headed by Dr. Paul Monroe of Columbia University, were before the Philippine Legislature today for action during the present session.

On the teaching staff of 27,000 the educators found only four Americans who had been adequately trained. Due to this condition and the short school life of each pupil, the average child gets little of permanent value from schooling and receives no lasting command of English.

The report finds that 97 per cent. of the pupils enrolled in the public schools are in primary and intermediate grades; that secondary education is too academic; there is a need for more vocational training; the educational administration has been too much under direct political influence; that facilities have been extended too rapidly for efficiency; that quantity has been preferred to quality.

LOST CORNERSTONE OF BANK IS FOUND

A small copper box placed thirty-seven years ago in the cornerstone of the Bank of America building at the northeast corner of Wall and William Streets was found yesterday by workmen engaged in demolishing the old structure to make way for the bank's new home. There was no record of the location of the cornerstone, but workmen have been on the lookout for it for more than a week. All of the documents and papers in the box were found intact and well preserved.

These included copies of New York City newspapers of Nov. 15, 1888, various papers and notices pertaining to the bank's affairs, a copy of the forty-sixth annual report of the Board of Education and a canceled gold certificate for $10,000 drawn on the bank to the order of the New York County National Bank. The bank was then depositary for the gold fund of the Clearing House.

A list of the bank's directors of the period shows the names of James M. Brown, William L. Jenkins, Samuel Thorne, Charles G. Langdon, George A. Crocker, David S. Egleston, Edmund W. Corlies, J. Harsen Rhoades, Augustus D. Juilliard, Oliver Harriman and Frederick P. Olcott. Mr. Corlies was President and Dallas B. Pratt was cashier. Mr. Pratt is at present a director of the bank and the only living representative of the executive personnel of that time.

The newspapers found in the cornerstone featured the marriage of Miss Mary Crowninshield Endicott, daughter of the Secretary of War, to Joseph Chamberlain, even then famous in English politics, which was set for that day in Washington. Transactions on the New York Stock Exchange for that day involved 223,000 shares and sales of railroad bonds aggregated $925,000.

The contents of the box will be deposited in the museum and library of the new bank building.

Finds Father Dead From Gas.

After waiting for several hours at his garage for his father to come and relieve him, Edwin Oltmann went to his home at 45 Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, yesterday, and found his father, Bedrick, 58 years old, dead in a bathroom. A tube had been attached to a gas jet and hung near his head. All the openings by which air might get into the small room had been filled. The son could give no reason for the suicide.

AUTO THIEF GETS 4 YEARS.

Term to Be Added to 15-Year Sentence Ordered Last Week.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 6.—John Lapore, 19 years old, of 43 North Bleecker Street, Mount Vernon, was sentenced to four years in Sing Sing by County Judge William F. Blakeley today for grand larceny. Lapore was sentenced last week to a fifteen-year term for highway robbery, making his term nineteen years.

He was convicted of stealing an automobile belonging to Vincent O'Neill of Mount Vernon on Feb. 2. When arrested, the police said, he had in his pocket a list of places in Mount Vernon and other towns which he and two companions intended to rob.

Lapore told them, police said, that while he was in high school he resolved to forsake a possible business future and follow a career of crime, and left school for that purpose.

He was the picture of nonchalance in court today. He waved to several people in the courtroom and displayed no emotion whatever when sentenced.

How Would You Like to Be the Man Who Bought a Corner on Jamaica Ave., Jamaica, Before Electrification for About $75,000 and Hold It for $750,000 Today?

BABYLON

"A Second Jamaica"

One of the many remarkable increases in Jamaica real estate since the Long Island R. R. began to run electric trains to Jamaica in 1910 was called to my attention the other day by a well-known operator. A farsighted man bought a corner plot on Jamaica Ave. at Bergen St. about 15 years ago for approximately $75,000. The value of the property kept increasing year after year, as electrification increased the number of commuters to Jamaica from 3,910 in 1910 to 35,657 commuters in 1924. This man was recently offered $500,000, and is now holding his corner plot for $750,000.

Just think of it! What $200 would have bought in Jamaica near Sutphin Boulevard and Jamaica Ave. only a few years ago, would cost about $3,000 today. Go to practically any section of Jamaica and you will find the same story of tremendous increases in values since electrification of the Long Island R. R.

NOW BABYLON, where it is no wonder that thousands who know what electrification to Jamaica did for the prosperity and growth of that city, have called Babylon "A Second Jamaica." Every one is now saying that history should repeat itself at Babylon now that the Long Island R. R. has electrified its lines to Babylon, giving Babylon a great push toward great prosperity.

Perfected transportation means increased population. Increased population means demand for land, and the greater the demand for land the higher the price. This is not an opinion, but a fact.

Whoever comes to Babylon to buy real estate from me now will have only the present low prices to pay, as the properties I am now offering were acquired by me before electric trains were running to Babylon. Future profits coming with increased values should be made by those who buy Babylon lots from me now.

So I say, do your own thinking at BABYLON—A SECOND JAMAICA. The opportunity is here—it is up to you to decide whether you are going to be one of those "lucky" ones who a few years from now will be among the fortunates who CAME and SAW and BOUGHT before increasing population causes prices to soar.

PRISON LAW VOID, OTTINGER HOLDS

BUT SUPERINTENDENT STAYS

ALBANY, Aug. 6 (AP).—The law creating the State Board of Prison Industries and the position of Superintendent of Prison Industries, hailed by Governor Smith and its advocates as the means of rehabilitating the industries of State prisons, is unconstitutional, in the opinion of Attorney General Ottinger.

The Superintendent of Prison Industries is Robert T. Kent, who was appointed Aug. 21, 1924, by the Superintendent of Prisons, with the consent of the Governor, at an annual salary of $7,500.

The opinion was set forth in a letter to James L. Long, Superintendent of Prisons, on May 28. The question was raised as to the authority of the Board of Prison Industries to order certain materials for use in the prisons of the State.

The board was created in 1924, to consist of the Superintendent of Prisons, the Superintendent of Prison Industries and the Superintendent of Purchases.

Advocates of the legislation asserted that it would put the prison industries on a firm footing. One of the most important results expected was the probability of being able to pay prisoners a reasonable wage, instead of the one cent and a half a day, maintained for years, which would help them in supporting their families.

The Attorney General said in part:

"I am of the opinion that Chapter 601 of the Laws of 1924 is unconstitutional and void, so far as the same relates to the prison industries in State prisons.

"I am of the opinion that the Superintendent of Prison Industries, appointed pursuant to Section 170A of the prison law, has no power to purchase any goods or materials to be used in the State prisons."

Superintendent Long said today that this ruling would have little or no effect upon the work. The Superintendent of Prisons has all the powers conferred upon the Board of Prison Industries.

As to the question to pay for convicts working in prison shops, Mr. Long said that under the present law the rate of pay is discretional with the Superintendent of Prisons up to a maximum of 20 cents a day, but the ability of the State to pay a higher rate is dependent entirely, under the law, upon the profit turned in by the industries.

A higher wage scale has already been put into effect in the prison shops, Mr. Long said. The scale runs from 5 to 9 cents a day. The old rate of 1½ cents still applies to convicts who do work outside the shops, but men in the prison industries have been working under the new scale since July 1.

Superintendent Kent is still performing his duties and is receiving his salary. It is explained that the right of Mr. Kent to continue in his position has not been questioned officially by any one.

SUES FOR LOSS OF LEGS.

Woman Charges Neglect in Reducing Fat Ankles—Asks $500,000.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 6 (AP).—Suit for $500,000 damages was filed here yesterday against Dr. E. W. Littlefield and Dr. James L. Chapman, plastic surgeons, by Mrs. Helene C. Herrington, widow of Bert Herrington, criminal lawyer.

Mrs. Herrington charges that negligence in an attempt to remove superfluous flesh from her ankles resulted in the necessity for amputating both legs.

BOURNE HEIR ASKS CUT IN HIS WIFE'S ALIMONY

She Wants Him Held in Contempt for Non-Payment—Decision Reserved.

An application by Arthur K. Bourne Jr., grandson of the late Commodore Bourne, who was head of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, and heir to part of his estate, for a reduction in the alimony of $50 a week granted to his wife, Mrs. Beatrice W. Bourne, after a separation suit and a counter-application by Mrs. Bourne to have her husband held in contempt for non-payment of alimony, came before Supreme Court Justice Donohue yesterday. Bourne also asked that an order for his arrest granted to his wife on her plea that he was about to leave for California, and under which he was compelled to give a bond, be vacated.

Samuel A. Berger, counsel for Mrs. Bourne, opposing Bourne's application, said that he knew Bourne intended to go to California as soon as possible to prosecute an action for divorce there. He said that Bourne had "never earned a dollar or done a day's work," although he is said to be employed by the Singer Company in California. The attorney contended that the $50 alimony award should be increased instead of reduced, because Bourne has been able to live as a man of leisure and was only awaiting the time when he is to receive his share of his grandfather's estate.

In reply to a question from the Court, Mr. Berger said that the California suit is pending and will be contested and that Mrs. Bourne's suit here will probably be heard in October.

Counsel for Bourne replied that he came to New York with the intention of remaining and for that reason the arrest order should be vacated. They said that Bourne had no income of his own, but got $11,000 from his grandmother's estate recently, half of which he used to pay his debts.

Union to Demand 20 Per Cent. Increase in Fall River.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 6 (AP).—Restoration of the 1920 wage schedule in cotton and woolen textile plants here will be sought by the United Textile Workers of America, John L. Campos, Secretary of the Doffers and Spinners Union, affiliated with the international body, announced today. The change would mean a wage increase of approximately 20 per cent.

Mr. Campos said the Emergency Committee of the United Textile Workers had instructed its officers to take steps to bring about the increase. No date has been set for making the formal demand on the manufacturers, Mr. Campos said.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug 6 (AP).—The State Branch of the American Federation of Labor in convention here today condemned by resolution wage cutting in textile centres and called upon President Coolidge to institute an investigation of the cause of a cut in textile wages.

HOLYOKE, Mass., Aug 6 (AP).—The Farr Alpaca Company today posted notices announcing a general wage reduction of 10 per cent., effective Monday. At the same time the operating schedule will be extended from three to four days a week. The firm employs 3,200 persons.

LEAVES WINE TO DAUGHTER

Brooklyn Man's Will Asks for Prayers to Be Said in Jerusalem.

A legacy of 100 gallons of wine was included in the bequest in the will of Moishe Ber Yudelman, who died on April 26, at his home, 815 North Lafayette Street, Brooklyn. The clause reads: "I do hereby bequeath to my beloved daughter, Bessie Rosen, 100 gallons of wine and $100." Mrs. Rosen lives at 354 Kosciusko Street, Brooklyn.

Yudelman left only personal property valued at $1,000. After leaving other small bequests, the testator directed that "all residue of the estate is to be sent to some institution in Jerusalem for the purpose of saying prayers for my soul."

NARCOTIC SMUGGLING IS GROWING HERE

Andrews and Nutt Discuss Increase and Take Measures to Meet It.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—Increased smuggling of narcotics through the Port of New York was the subject of a conference today between Assistant Secretary Andrews of the Treasury and L. G. Nutt, chief of the Narcotic Unit. Additional forces were promised to Mr. Nutt to combat the traffic wherever possible.

The narcotic chief indicated that some difficulty still was being encountered with smugglers along the Mexican and Canadian borders, but that the recent treaty negotiated with the Dominion was bringing about an improvement. Mexico also was cooperating, he said, as a result of agreements reached at the El Paso anti-smuggling conference.

Mr. Nutt said that on the whole, illegal use of narcotics is on the decline, that seizures have considerably fallen off with a corresponding increase in bootleg prices and that reports for a recent ten-month period showed that over 95 per cent. of court cases had resulted in convictions.
